Confusion Marks Opening Day Of Work On Tollway

Commuter confusion marked the first day of a three-month construction project on the Northwest Tollway yesterday, as early-morning drivers found unmarked median crossovers and speed limits not posted.

Michael Hartigan, tollway assistant chief engineer, acknowledged commuters encountered "confusion entering certain areas" but said all of the proper signs should be posted for today's drivers.

A number of tollway incidents were reported to police, including construction workers walking off the job because of erratic drivers near O'Hare Airport, Hartigan said. "Several tickets were issued to subjects driving through medians and proceeding on lanes where workmen were located," said State Police Lt. William Burt.

There was one major accident on the Tri-State Tollway, which is also under construction, that stalled traffic for miles. Hartigan said a semi-truck jackknifed and blocked the entire roadway at 11 a.m. and stopped all traffic flow for a short time.

Tollway officials said last night that "traffic was lighter on the Northwest Tollway than expected" attributing it to "people taking other means of transportation and alternate routes." However, a Chicago and North Western Rwy.

spokesman said no noticeable increase in passengers was noted yesterday.

There was a 2½-mile traffic jam on the Tri-State Tollway south of O'Hare Airport yesterday during the morning rush hour.

CONSTRUCTION ON the tollways yesterday consisted primarily of crushing concrete and work on bridges.

A tollway spokesman said he encourages drivers today "to begin their travels earlier" to avoid a possible 20 to 30-minute delay due to the barricaded lanes.

Two lanes in both directions are open to traffic with eastbound drivers crossing over to the inner lane of the opposite roadway.

Although speed limit signs were not posted yesterday, there is a 40 mile-an-hour limit through all construction zones.

The two simultaneous highway construction projects include 11 miles on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways. Northwest Tollway construction begins at the Kennedy Expressway juncture and goes west to Meacham Road near Schaumburg. The Tri-State work runs from Ogden Avenue to the Northwest Tollway.

The $6.5 million projects will be completed by Aug. 1, according to tollway officials. The highways will be resurfaced as well as bridge repairs and lane striping.

A SEEMINGLY ENDLESS string of cars inched toward Chicago yesterday during morning rush hour and suburban commuters will experience similar congested driving conditions for the next three months while the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways are under construction. The bumper-to-bumper traffic is shown at the junction of Northwest Tollway and Elmhurst Road.

Two Groups Seek Liquor Licenses For Same Building

A dispute over legal rights to the former Dale House Restaurant, now being called Hillside Restaurant, has resulted in the scheduling of a public hearing into the granting of a liquor license for the establishment by the Hoffman Estates Village Board.

Two applications for liquor licenses for the same building have been filed with the village. The second came in Monday night, from Roger Gilbert, 217 Nottingham Ln., who said he represented Twinbrook Investment, Inc. The firm formerly leased the building from Multicon Properties, Inc., and had an arrangement with Dale House, Inc., which operated the restaurant and held the first license until it closed late last year.

Last week Multicon asked the board to grant new liquor licenses for the same building in its name.

THE HEARING tentatively was scheduled for tomorrow night, but yesterday Village Mgr. George Longmeyer reported Multicon's attorney had asked a different date be chosen. Longmeyer said he expected to announce the date sometime today.

GILBERT, WHO refused to specify his position with Twinbrook, Monday night said, "It is our belief the building is in the illegal possession of Multicon." Twinbrook has instituted legal action over rights to the property, and had been delaying filing a liquor license application until after the litigation ended, said Gilbert. Multicon's request for a license apparently prompted Monday's application filing, although Gilbert said he anticipated the court case would be heard within a few weeks.

Mayor Frederick Downey pointed out that Multicon had presented the board last week with the old liquor license issued for the restaurant.

"They broke into the premises and took it," said Gilbert.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert suggested a hearing should be scheduled to determine which company should receive the license, saying he hoped to keep the village out of any future court action that might be brought in the matter.

In discussing the hearing date after the meeting, Roy Whitehead, regional superintendent for Multicon, repeatedly asked Gilbert to name his position with Twinbrook.

"Are you president? Are you vice president? What is your position?" asked Whitehead.

Gilbert replied "No" to the first two questions, and said of the third, "I don't want to go into that." He did say, however, the president of Twinbrook would be in El Paso until Thursday, and might not be able to prepare himself for a hearing Thursday.

Gilbert said Twinbrook is to be represented at the hearing by Atty. David Chaimovitz, Chicago.

Cubs' Spirits Soar As Jet Setters

by NANCY COWGER

The 64 boys in Cub Scout Pack 195 joined the Jet Set in superb style Saturday, touring the Northern Illinois-Indiana area in their very own DC-9.

At least it was their own DC-9 for awhile, 30 minutes to be exact. The Cubs chartered the half-hour jet ride from North Central Airlines, taking off the runway at 11 a.m. and touching down again at 11:30 a.m.

For most, the ride should never have ended. They literally were in Heaven. A few were "scared," but they forgot their fears in the thrill of it all.

There was so much to see and do, so many things to try out for the very first time. Like using the bathroom "way up here." The line ranged from three to 15 boys most of the flight, although those at the end were hard put to stay there and risk missing some other new experience.

Everything had to be tested many times over. "What does this do?" competed with "Are we really over Lake Michigan? That looks like an ocean" were most frequently heard comments.

Switches for individual reading lights over each chair, and knobs activating air blowers especially intrigued some of the Cubs, while others busied themselves moving seat backs and pulling down individual tables to ask "When do we eat? What's for lunch?" The disappointment of no meal on such a short flight was short-lived, with so many things to see.

Saturday was humid on the ground, but many Cubs were convinced it rained heavily higher up, and jockeyed for best position to see what happens to rain when it hits a jet engine.

THE ENGINES were a special fascination. Those sitting near them were favored with extreme good fortune, if they were Cubs. They could sit and stare, and try to catch a working part in motion. For adult chaperones along for the ride, it was get out of the way or be trampled.

Hostesses Linda Wales and Sandy Daugaard were especially helpful, answering a barrage of questions. Nearly every boy took a brief walk-through in the pilot's cabin to watch captain Bob Hicks and co-pilot Ron Bartlett at work.

In short, the flight was a complete success. Only one youngster lost his breakfast, and the hostesses termed that something of a record. The words "I don't feel so good" were not as contagious as "can't we stay up longer."

'Project Help' List Grows To Nearly 600

Luther League members of Prince of Peace Church, Boy Scout Troop 297 and 40 members of Cub Scout Pack 297, plus a number of individuals from Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates this week boosted the Project Help volunteer list to nearly 600.

Although The Herald's campaign to enlist 400 workers for the joint-village environmental effort met its goal two weeks ago, additional recruits are being welcomed.

The long-planned ecological happening will be launched Saturday when crews of volunteers begin clearing major roadways and streets in both communities of winter's accumulation of litter.

That phase of the tri-part improvement and beautification program, coordinated by members of environmental committees in both towns, is being directed by Mrs. Terri Glynn of Schaumburg, and Mrs. William Hocker of Hoffman Estates.

Volunteers who have pledged time to the roadway clean-up are asked to assemble at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the north end of the Golf-Rose Shopping Center parking lot.

Work crews of 15 to 20 people will be dispatched from that point to specific areas, Mrs. Glynn explained.

Workers assigned to areas in Hoffman Estates near or adjacent to the shopping center will walk to their assigned spots. Schaumburg workers will be transported to their posts by public works vehicles and a bus furnished by Schaumburg Park District, a program co-sponsor.

Portions of Higgins Road and Golf Road in both villages will be covered.

MEACHAM, ROSELLE, Schaumburg and Wise roads will be policed in Schaumburg; Jones, Hassell and Hillcrest roads plus Grand Canyon and Evanston lanes in Hoffman Estates will also be cleared.

Overlapping work areas in both towns are being coordinated by police chiefs Martin J. Conroy and John O'Connell.

Nine Schaumburg public works department vehicles will be used in Saturday's work, and will be followed closely by squad cars from that village.

Two Hoffman Estates public trucks will travel work routes at various times to collect waiting sacks of debris.

Jaycees from both communities will "strawboss" the operation under the direction of Denis Ledgerwood and Al Larson both of Schaumburg.

Heavy protective gloves and boots were listed as "musts" in apparel for Project Help workers by Mrs. Glynn. She also recommends slacks or ankle length pants and sweaters or jackets as dictated by weather.

VOLUNTEERS are asked to come prepared for as many hours of work as necessary. They are being asked to bring sack lunches and returnable cans of soft drinks packaged in an easy to carry fashion.

Workers are not being asked, however, to bring any special equipment to assist in the roadside clean-up.

Two thousand plastic bags for refuse collection have been donated by Tobin-Stahr, Inc., of Elk Grove, but Mrs. Glynn issued an additional plea this week for more plastic bags as well as soft drink donations.

Questions concerning this week's phase of Project Help may be directed to Mrs.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

J. Edgar Hoover, who built the FBI into one of the world's most renowned crime-fighting organizations, died in his sleep at age 77. (Background story on Page 6.)

Evidence of the crossover vote Gov. George C. Wallace hoped would carry him to victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in Indiana failed to materialize in early returns. . . . In Ohio, Humphrey's head-to-head clash with Sen. George S. McGovern was marred by charges of voting machine tampering.

An FBI agent said the government used a wiretap to gather evidence against the Harrisburg Seven, but he insisted the haggled conversations never were used in the government's case. Attorneys for the Rev. Philip Berrigan contended prosecution of the Roman Catholic priest was unconstitutional.

The FBI said it arrested a United Mine Workers official from Middlesboro, Ky. — Albert E. Pass, 51 — in connection with the murders of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

The State

The Illinois Senate turned back an attempt to revive a bill that would lower the legal drinking age in the state to 18. The bill, which was rejected last week by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would have allowed 18-year-olds to buy beer, wine and malt liquor.

Federal and state officials assisted authorities in Madison, Ill., investigating the cause of an explosion that destroyed four homes, injured 20 persons and sent debris over a wide area. Investigators said it may have been triggered by a gas leak.

The World

Gunmen in Belfast, Northern Ireland, fired on soldiers along the "peace line" separating Protestant and Catholic communities. . . . In Londonderry, the Protestant political party headed by militant Rev. Ian Paisley appealed for conciliation talks with Catholic civil rights leaders.

The War

Scores of North Vietnamese tanks and infantrymen continued their push toward Hue, smashing through part of South Vietnam's new northern defense line, an artillery base 20 miles to the northwest. More than 20,000 Communist soldiers captured Artillery Base Bastogne, about 12 miles south of Hue, field reports said.

Sports

Holdout pitcher Vida Blue ended one of sports' most bizarre salary disputes by signing a $63,000 contract with the Oakland Athletics. . . . Chicago Cubs' first baseman Joe Pepitone requested voluntary retirement because he is "no longer interested" in playing baseball, according to a Cubs' statement.

The Market

Stocks dropped sharply for the second consecutive session as investors continued to show concern over Price Commission profits policies and the Vietnam War. Trading was moderate on the New York Stock Exchange, where the Dow Jones industrial average fell another 7.08 points to 935.20. The average NYSE common share price declined 25 cents. Turnover picked up to 15,370,000 shares from 12,880,000 traded Monday. Prices were sharply lower also on the American Stock Exchange.

Governor Richard D. Ogilvie, Chairman

Seven Leaders Of Cancer Drive Named

Seven Northwest Suburban residents will lead the American Cancer Society's 1972 Crusade to raise $116,000 locally for the fight against cancer.

William Griffith, crusade residential chairman for the Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society, announced the appointment of Arthur Jungdahl, 16 S. Prindle, and Robert Sabin, 826 S. Vail, as co-chairmen of the Arlington Heights crusade; Mrs. Charles Klasterman, 401 W. Dundee Rd., as chairman of the Buffalo Grove crusade; Frank Treanor, 79 Kendal Rd., Elk Grove Village crusade chairman; Bernard F. Lee, 1440 Blackhawk, Mount Prospect crusade chairman; Victor Kopinski, 15 Larch Dr., Prospect Heights chairman; and Jerry Spatz, 7875 Ramsgate Circle, crusade chairman in Bartlett, Streamwood and Hanover Park.

The residential crusade goal for the Northwest suburbs is $40,140. The rest of the 1972 crusade goal is expected to come from business and industry, memorial contributions, and special gifts.

The American Cancer Society has a three-fold program which the annual crusade supports.

Research projects such as the recently announced work in preventing blood vessels to form in tumors, educational programs which make Americans aware of the signs of cancer, and service to cancer patients needing outpatient treatment and assistance with recovery from cancer before returning to normal life are all supported through the crusade.

Last year, 34 per cent of the crusade money went to research, 28 per cent to public and professional education, and 18 per cent to patient and community services.

Law To Aid Handicapped Persons

Hoffman Estates is the first village in the state to approve a local ordinance requiring special provisions for handicapped persons in semi-public buildings, according to officials.

The state already requires by statute that publicly owned buildings, accommodate the special problems of handicapped persons. But, village board action Monday applied similar mandates for such buildings as department stores, financial institutions, public areas of funeral parlors, industrial buildings, markets, office buildings and retail or service stores.

Building Commissioner Daniel Murphy has developed the new ordinance working with Village Atty. Edward Hofert and the Hoffman Estates Jaycees. Murphy reported he consulted with the Building Officials Conference of America (BOCA), which sets generally accepted national building code standards, before completing the document. The conference has requested the village submit the adopted ordinance to them for incorporation in revised BOCA codes, said Murphy. The Jaycees were consulted because they first proposed the new law, working with the governor's committee on employment of the handicapped.

JAYCEES PROJECT Ramp Chairman Pete Smith, who uses a wheelchair himself, termed the new ordinance "excellent."

"Architectural barriers hinder both occupational and recreational pursuits of Hoffman Estates' citizens. Buildings without ramps, doors too narrow, bathrooms without facilities for the handicapped will be a problem of the past for citizens of Hoffman Estates," said Smith.

The ordinance will apply only to new semi-public buildings, or those being remodeled. They are designed to provide access and usability for persons with either temporary or permanent physical handicaps, and the aged.

The new ordinance deals with the slope and width of ramps, and requires level platforms at regular intervals, among other details. Entrances and doorways are to meet minimum widths, and have level floors on either side large enough to accommodate wheelchairs. They are to be operable by wheelchair users. Handrails are to be required on stairs. Floors are to have slip-resistant surfaces, and if they are not at a common level throughout a structure be connected by ramps.

TOILET ROOMS are to be appropriately fitted for persons in wheelchairs, with at least one sufficiently wide stall with handrails on either side in each building. At least one water fountain in each building must be low enough for use by wheelchair users.

Elevators are to allow wheelchair traffic, and controls for elevators, lights, heat, fire alarms and any other essential use, items are to be within reach of persons in wheelchairs.

Warning devices are to be audible as well as visible. Facilities within buildings are to be identified with raised letters or numbers on walls next to doors within a specific height range, for detection by the blind. Special knobs are to be placed on doors not intended for normal use, leading to areas which might be dangerous for blind persons.

Liquor License Fee To Change

Fees for all Hoffman Estates business licenses, except liquor licenses, will be the same this year as they were last year, the village board decided Monday night.

The board instructed Atty. Edward Hofert to prepare an ordinance repealing action taken two weeks previous, and reinstating licensing fees in effect until then. Liquor licenses, however, are to remain at the increased fee level approved by the board two weeks ago.

A study commission is to be appointed, including Hofert, Village Manager George Longmeyer, some village board members and representatives of the business community. It is to conduct an exhaustive review of business regulation costs, licensing procedures and fee structures, over the next several months, according to Hofert. Recommendations on revisions then are to be presented to the board.

Although the board reinstated the old fees, except for liquor licenses, some businessmen still may be paying higher fees than they did last year, said Longmeyer.

The old licensing ordinance has not been administered properly in the past, and some firms were improperly licensed, said Longmeyer. He pledged to enforce it properly this year, except in cases where ordinance calls for multiple licenses which will obviously cost much more than enforcement.

LAST WEEK a contingent of businessmen attended the board meeting, complaining bitterly about the new ordinance fee schedule, which in some extreme cases increased fee charges from a range of around $50 to close to $200 or $300.

Mayor Frederick Downey announced all 1971-72 licenses would be effective an extra month, through the end of May. Meanwhile, he said, Longmeyer would meet with merchants to discuss possible solutions to the problem.

The board apparently had not intended businesses with more than one licensing category under one roof to be charged multiple fees to operate, as the new ordinance provided. The old one had the same provision, but according to Longmeyer it was not properly enforced.

After a meeting with the merchants Friday, Longmeyer recommended the action taken by the board Monday.

'Commercial' Judging Begins Late This Week

Judging in the commercial phase of Project Help, a joint environmental happening in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates, will begin late this week.

In both villages, a special award will be given once each week, through May 20, to the participating business noted to have done the most to beautify its surroundings.

Merchants involved in Project Help through this week include Snyder-Hoffman Drugs, Hoffman Estates Post Office, National Tea Co., Hoffman-Rosner Corp. and Fabbri's Flowers, Inc., all of Hoffman Estates.

Enlisted from Schaumburg are: Woodfield Ford, Colonial Ford, Larry Paul Oldsmobile, Sundance Western Wear and Schaumburg Airport.

Signaling their cooperation in Project Help Fabbri's Flowers, Inc. has agreed to provide flowers for exterior planting at cost to other participating businesses in both communities.

Arrangements may be made by contacting Shirley Clemmens, manager, of the floral shop, at 894-2244.

Coordinated by Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee (CEC) and Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee, guidelines for commercial judging will include:

- general overall cleanliness of building exterior;
- neatness of loading dock or refuse area;

- effort made to add live greenery;
- effort made to eliminate unsightly features on the premises.

Businesses wishing to join the commercial phase of Project Help may still do so by calling The Herald at 394-2300, Ext. 256.

Blood Sought For Teacher Who Faces Kidney Surgery

Blood is needed for Gerald Cody, 27, a teacher in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 who faces removal of both kidneys and an eventual kidney transplant.

Cody, a fourth grade teacher at Schaumburg Elementary School, has undergone intensive kidney dialysis treatment for the past four weeks.

Surgery scheduled for this week has been temporarily postponed.

Billings Hospital, where the surgery and transplant will be done, is now accepting blood donors in Cody's name and he is scheduled to enter Billings late this week for tests.

Anyone interested in donating blood in his name may do so at any hospital. It is necessary, however, that all donations are accompanied by the following information:

Donations should be stated as being made in behalf of Gerald Cody, at the dialysis department of Billings Hospital, at the University of Chicago Hospitals and Clinics in Chicago.

His mother said her son must undergo three five hour sessions a week on the dialysis machine.

His sister, Sharon, 31, who lives with her parents in Chicago, will give one of her kidneys to Gerald, said his mother.

She added that her son has lost little time from school during his illness doctors say is glomerulo nephritis.

Cody is past president of the Schaumburg Education Association and presently an active member.

District 54 secretary Betty Helsper said the district is also planning an areawide blood drive to be held in one of the schools. The date is to be announced shortly.

The district has also established a cash fund at the Schaumburg State Bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg, in Cody's name to help defray expenses of surgery and dialysis treatment.

Cody, formerly of Chicago, has lived in Schaumburg the past four years with Mrs. Helsper's mother, Mrs. Walter Ellis.

'Flappin Follies' Show Slated May 23

Roaring 20s skits, dances and comedy numbers will highlight "The Flapper Follies" variety show planned by the Winston Churchill School PTA this month.

The cast for the variety show will be made up of parents and teachers from the school.

The program is scheduled for 8 p.m. on May 23 at the school, 1520 N. Jones Rd., Schaumburg.

'Project Help' List Grows To Nearly 600

Glynn, 529-8868, or Mrs. Hocker, 529-4837. In the event of inclement weather, volunteer workers may call either of the two for instructions.

Next Saturday will be devoted to planting trees and shrubs in both communities and Project Help will culminate May 20 with creekbed area cleaning in the two villages.

Persons wishing to join Project Help are asked to call The Herald at 394-2300, Ext. 256.

Names of all volunteers, groups, organizations and businesses represented in Project Help will be printed in The Herald.

Most recent volunteers are: Bob Clarke, Peggy and Pam Kendall, Amy and Brad Lyerla, Rochelle Hill, Cindy Rush, Debby Apking, Pam Keller, Jim Dotson, Bill Seger, Karen Nicholas, Jim Knopf, Nancy Stupka, Jerry Dykigo and Ed Crutchfield. All are members of Prince of Peace Luther League.

Other sign-ups this week include: Shelly Frangella, Janet Victor, Bill Bolper, Cathy, Mary and Mike Sgarloto and Sue Klasky, of Schaumburg.

'Helpers': Need Ride Or Sitter? Don't Worry

Need either a ride or a babysitter in order to work at Project Help?

If either problem plagues you . . . worry no more!

Persons needing rides to assembly points any of the next three Saturdays may obtain transportation by calling Mickey or Gerry Mandel of Schaumburg Village Cab at 529-8200.

Cab owners have volunteered their services to pick up Project Help workers at their homes and deliver them to gathering points.

However, requests for rides must be made 24 hours in advance to allow for scheduling. The taxi firm cannot offer rides home after work sessions are completed.

Free sitting service for any of the Saturdays may be arranged by telephoning The Herald at 394-2300, Ext. 256.

Or, perhaps you may want to do your part in Project Help by offering to assist in the preschool sitting arrangement for parents wishing to enlist in the joint-village improvement and beautification program.

Golden Group To See 'Hello Dolly'

The S & H Golden Group, a local social club for persons over 55, will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Schaumburg High School gymnasium, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd., to view "Hello Dolly."

Directing the play is John Van Hook, music director. The cast is composed of members of the music department. The performance will cost members 50 cents.

Tickets and more information may be obtained by contacting Harlo Sartorius at 894-4794. The social group is sponsored by the Schaumburg Park District.

SHS To Present 'Hello Dolly'

More Schaumburg High School students will be able to participate in this weekend's presentation of "Hello Dolly" because the double cast technique has been used.

Performing in the lead roles of the Jerry Herman musical will be April Nornellini, Lauren Olsen, Bill Eggbeer, Larry Anable, Brian Mullins, Jon Kulkwarf, Steve Schollosser, Roger Streu, Joan Wilcoxen, Carol Thorsen, Mary Helen Slingerland and Kim Doner.

Performances will be given at 8 p.m. on May 5 through May 7. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for adults and $1 for students. Tickets are available at the high school music department.

Cecily Atcher and Debbie Norman are the student directors of the play. John Van Hook is the faculty director with Keith Trimble serving as student coordinator.

Faculty members Keith Burt and Rollins Potter are also assisting with the production.

2 Workmen Hurt On Walden Job

The injury of two workmen and the theft of a $1,300 silverware set were both reported Monday at Schaumburg's Walden development, Algonquin and Meacham roads.

The two construction workers, John Rosianowyz, 52 and Anthony Brazulia, 29, both of Chicago, were injured while working on the first floor of a motel being built at Walden. A large wooden beam dropped from the second floor striking both men, Schaumburg police said.

Rosianowyz was struck in the neck and Brazukis in the shoulder and chest. Both were taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, where they were treated and released.

Most Officials Are Optimistic

Water Shortage Not Expected Here

by ROGER CAPETTINI

The rain that fell in Baraboo, Wis., Friday will be used to wash dishes and sprinkle lawns in the Northwest suburbs sometime around May 1, 1972.

During the spring and summer of 1972, however, water consumers in the area will have to be satisfied with the water available from the wells in their respective communities.

The odds on turning the kitchen faucet and getting a steady flow of water, however, seem to have improved over previous years. While several villages and sections of them have experienced severe water shortages in recent years, most local officials indicate they do not expect serious recurrences of the problem this year.

The water that comes from the wells in the Northwest suburban area, state water officials believe, originates somewhere near Baraboo, northwest of Madison. John Guillou, chief engineer for the Illinois Division of Waterways, said each molecule of water takes somewhere near 1,000 years to filter its way to the wells in this area.

That will do no good this year, as every municipality in the area each year sinks new wells to provide the water needed to sustain the continued growth in the area.

Officials in all but two of the 10 Northwest suburban communities are optimistic about their respective water supplies this year.

Berton Braun, Palatine village manager, said recently, "Under our present conditions, we're not in very good shape."

One of the present conditions to which Braun refers is the broken-down well in Winston Park, the village's largest subdivision. Braun expects the well to be back in working order sometime during the summer, but not in time to be of any help for the peak rush on water this spring.

THE HEAVIEST use of water in Palatine, as in the other communities, comes when residents start working on their lawns. That work usually begins around this time each year and continues through mid-June.

"There's no way we can produce enough water economically to serve everyone in town who is planting new lawns on the same day," Braun said.

Dan Larson, Buffalo Grove village manager, is neither optimistic nor pessimistic about the water situation in his village.

Larson explained the village has a study on water currently under way. But without the results of that study, he is not making any guesses. Two years ago, many Buffalo Grove residents had to boil water for drinking and cooking purposes.

Several towns in recent years have had to resort to rationing water. Arlington Heights, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Wheeling and Elk Grove Village all have had restrictions on sprinkling. Generally, homes with even-numbered addresses are permitted to water lawns on even-numbered days, alternating with homes with odd-numbered addresses.

Only Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines place no restrictions on sprinkling.

The water shortage problem stems from more communities drilling more wells to supply more people, businesses and industry. Most of the towns cannot keep up with the demand. The problem is compounded each year as the water table drops, about 10 feet annually.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS will have two more deep wells, numbers 12 and 13, into operation this summer. Drilling is now proceeding on well 14 at the rate of 160 feet per day. Drillers expect to hit water at about 1,800 feet.

L. A. Hanson, village manager, said a six-million-gallon reservoir is expected to go into use in mid-summer.

Palatine is considering building a ninth well as construction continues on the eighth. Elk Grove Village is making plans for its eighth well with a two-million-gallon reservoir to be added to the present 6½ million-gallon village storage capacity.

THE WATER WHICH flows from the taps in Northwest suburban homes today probably started out 1,000 years ago near Baraboo, Wis.

lion-gallon reservoir to be added to the present 6½ million-gallon village storage capacity.

Within the next two weeks, Hoffman Estates officials expect to put wells nine and 10 into operation. John Hossack, public works superintendent, said the sprinkling restrictions could be lifted with the completion of well 10.

Buffalo Grove has four wells on its line and has constructed a 500,000 gallon storage reservoir. One of the wells is being rebuilt to more than double its pumping capacity.

Wheeling also doubled the capacity of one of its wells during the winter and is considering construction of another well near Hintz and Buffalo Grove roads.

Through the winter Mount Prospect has repaired or reconditioned each of its 14 wells. David Creamer, public works director, said a new control panel is being installed, which will enable his crews to better monitor and control the supply.

Still another well is being planned for Schaumburg in an attempt to stay ahead of the demand expected in connection with the projected growth of the village. Rolling Meadows apparently has kept a few steps ahead of that demand, and consequently enjoys a water supply situation superior to most other communities in the area.

JAMES MULDOWNEY, city engineer, said the city has five wells in operation, a sixth under construction and another in the planning stage. The city, Muldowney said, has not had a water problem since it was incorporated 17 years ago. The seventh well, for example, planned for the area around Golf and Algonquin roads, is being installed in anticipation of the needs of a new department store and several industrial developments planned for that area.

The City of Des Plaines stands far above the rest, however, when it comes to water supply. And there is good reason for it — Des Plaines supplements the water it gets from its wells with an almost unlimited availability from the City of Chicago.

As the respective communities continue drilling new wells, however, and as the water table continues to drop, the concern increases over the life of the wells. Some officials seem to believe the wells could go dry someday, or at least could get so deep as to become economically unfeasible.

Virtually all officials in the area agree the answer to the ultimate problem is to go to Lake Michigan for water.

Several area communities have made application to the state for permission to divert water from the lake for that purpose. Four municipalities — Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine — have joined together in DAMP in their efforts to secure an allocation.

DAMP spokesmen say they cannot go ahead with plans nor can they seek financing for the system, however, until they receive an allocation from the state.

FRIDAY, Guillou, who is in charge of making those allocations, said his office will send out preliminary, tentative allocations within the next two weeks to all communities which have made requests.

No preliminary allocation will be made to DAMP, however, because of an overlap in requests, Guillou said.

Guillou explained that while DAMP has made a request for its four member towns, Des Plaines has filed an additional application in its own behalf. Guillou said he will ask DAMP officials to iron out this overlap so that they can be granted an allocation as soon as possible.

The state water official added he cannot see why DAMP has trouble lining up financing for the plan without an allocation. He said other similar organizations have had no trouble in that respect.

Guillou also disagreed with other water experts on the possible crisis situation which could arise in relation to water supply. He discounted the possibility that wells will run dry and said estimates that DAMP would need several years to complete engineering and construction of a system were not accurate.

Guillou said he believes DAMP could develop such a system within two years if an urgency developed and certainly within five years.

Until then, however, most residents in the Northwest suburbs will have to look at a calendar before turning the outside faucet and will have to check the bathroom tap before tossing the kids into the tub for their nightly bath.

WELLS AND WATER storage tanks communities drill more wells to provide more water to more people, Northwest suburbs each year as more business and industry.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

The future of the Lake Michigan Bill of Rights did not appear bright during the first Senate hearings, conducted Monday in Chicago.

A parade of witnesses, pro and con, appeared before seven members of the Senate Agriculture and Conservation Committee.

Questions and comments from the senators left observers with a clear impression that they were sympathetic to the opponents of the bill, whose arguments all followed the same general lines.

Leading the questioning were Sen. John Knuppel, a Democrat from Downstate Petersburg, in Menard County.

He repeatedly made the point that "people in Havana, Cairo and Bone Gap (all of which, he felt compelled to explain, are towns in Illinois)" are not as qualified to make decisions regarding the future of Lake Michigan as are the City Plan Commission and City Council of Chicago. He was referring to members of the Illinois General Assembly, although at last glance there were no members of that body from Havana, Cairo or Bone Gap.

Sen. Charles Chew, a Democrat from Chicago, showed up two hours late for the meeting but soon took over the defense of the Chicago city administration, demanding of each witness favoring the bill, "Don't you think the people of Chicago are capable of handling their own affairs?"

THE WISER witnesses avoided giving Charlie a direct answer to that one.

Knuppel and Chew made it abundantly clear they consider what happens to the Lake Michigan shoreline in Chicago is the business of the city officials of Chicago, notwithstanding the injunction in the bill that the lake is held "in trust for the maximum benefit, use and enjoyment of the citizens of the State of Illinois."

Among the opposition witnesses Harold Jensen, vice president for real estate of Illinois Central Industries, owners of the railroad of the same name.

Jenson declared, and cited evidence in support of his assertion, that the I.C. is dedicated to the preservation and enhancement of the lakefront.

He argued that the bill's ban on high-rise buildings within a mile and a half of the lake and imposition of state authority on buildings in the area would impair all future construction there. Jenson pointed out the bill's provision requiring "maximum physical and visual access to the lake" could be interpreted to mean no further building at all.

He also explained to the committee that the I.C., in cooperation with the city, is planning a high-rise building complex on 83 acres between the lake and Michigan Avenue.

The area, said Jenson, is now a maze of railroad tracks, sheds and warehouses, and would be vastly improved by the I.C. project, which will include buildings on no more than 20 per cent of the 83 acres.

Randolph Cooper, executive director of a planning corporation called the Chicago Central Area Committee, agreed with Jenson that the bill would becloud future construction. He also argued as did other witnesses that the "bill of rights" would infringe on the home rule powers of the city.

Knuppel and Chew demonstrated a lively concern for the home rule power, created by the 1970 constitution and yet to be clearly defined by the legislature.

They also demonstrated concern the bill could be used as an instrument to block construction of an airport in Lake Michigan.

Terming the bill of rights "purely political," Chew at one point told Abe Eiserman, Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee, "You are not here because you are concerned with this bill. You are here to oppose any study which might result in a finding which would permit an airport in the lake."

Moody Chorale Concert Sunday

Senior citizens from the Northwest suburbs are invited to a spring concert of the Moody Chorale Saturday evening by the Evangelical Free Church of Arlington Heights.

Free bus transportation for the concert, which is being held at the Torrey-Grey auditorium in Chicago, will leave the parking lot of the National Food Store, 212 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights at 6 p.m.

Among members of the Moody Chorale are Ellen Banks of Arlington Heights and Robert Bever of Mount Prospect. All members of the group are students at the Moody Bible Institute.

Reservations for the trip should be made with Florence Hansen, 255-1635.

No One Looms As Successor

Hoover — Legend In His Own Time

The big question in Washington today is: Who will be the new director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

Flags are flying at half-staff for J. Edgar Hoover who President Nixon eulogized as a "legend in his own lifetime" following the death yesterday morning of the leader of one of the world's most renowned crime-fighting organizations.

Hoover, 77, was found dead by his maid at 8:30 a.m. EDT.

The last person to see him alive apparently was Clyde Tolson, 72, Hoover's life-long friend and FBI associate director in whose home the two had dined until late Monday night.

Hoover, one of the most controversial, most feared, most admired and — next to the President — one of the most powerful men in the United States, died of "hypertensive cardiovascular disease" or high blood pressure, frequently associated with hardening of the arteries, according to District of Columbia Medical Examiner James L. Luke.

The FBI director had no previous history of serious illness, never discussed his heart condition, and made no mention of feeling sick Monday evening. In 1970, after his annual physical checkup, the ruddy, bulldog-faced Hoover boasted he was "in better shape than I was in 1938."

President Nixon, the eighth chief executive under whom Hoover had served, appeared in the White House press room to mourn the death of "one of my closest personal friends and advisers" and order all government flags flown at half-staff.

"His magnificent contribution to making this a great and good nation will be remembered by the American people long after the petty carplings of his detractors are forgotten," Nixon said.

IN CONGRESS, where demands for Hoover's resignation had been heard in recent years by men accusing him of being out of step with the times, there was nothing but praise for the man nearly everyone — like Nixon — called "a legend in his own lifetime."

A resolution was adopted providing for Hoover's body to lie in state in the Capitol Rotunda, an honor traditionally reserved for presidents, war heroes and distinguished legislators. He will be the first civil servant in U.S. history to be so honored.

There also was a move to name for Hoover the new $100 million FBI headquarters building under construction near the Justice Department. Although Hoover fiercely dismissed calls for his resignation, saying he would serve as long as his health and performance were satisfactory, there had been speculation he would choose to retire on his 80th birthday, New Year's Day of 1975, the year the FBI building is to be completed.

Tolson, in failing health for the past decade, was named acting FBI director until the President appoints a successor to the $42,500-a-year post. Congress decreed in 1968 that Hoover's successor must be confirmed by the Senate, with the understanding that he would serve an indefinite term at the pleasure of the President.

Although Hoover jealously maintained his total dominance of the FBI and kept his choice of a successor a closely guarded secret, his own choice to succeed him apparently was W. Mark Felt, former FBI inspector general who emerged as No. 2 man behind Tolson in a high-level shakeup last fall.

OTHER FREQUENTLY mentioned possibilities included Myles Ambrose, former U. S. customs commissioner whom Nixon designated as his special assistant in the Justice Department to direct drug law enforcement, and Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White.

Hoover was born Jan. 1, 1895, in Washington and was graduated from George Washington University with a law degree. He joined the Justice Department July 28, 1917, at age 22 and soon was working in the enemy alien registration section with one of his first major tasks being a study of subversive activities.

His critics said he never got over his first job. He came in for particularly harsh criticism when he talked publicly about a pending indictment against the Harrisburg Seven conspirators. Some observers said the government never would have brought that case to trial had Hoover not talked about it beforehand.

Despite the criticism and his advancing years, Hoover stayed on the job. As recently as his last birthday, he said he was in "excellent health" and said he would not consider stepping down "as long as I can be of service to my country and have the health, vigor and enthusiasm to perform my responsibilities in the manner my superiors and the public have a right to expect."

Hoover outlasted 16 attorney generals. His critics and admirers alike believed he wanted to stay on the job until a new $100 million-plus FBI headquarters building is completed in Washington. It is expected to be finished in about three more years.

NIXON NOTED some of the criticism in his statement on Hoover's death. He said that because of Hoover's "indomitable courage in the face of sometimes vicious attacks, the flag of the FBI will always fly high."

John Edgar Hoover wielded power among the mighty as the nation's top law enforcement officer for nearly a half century. He also was highly popular with the public.

Three presidents found the combination unbeatable enough to keep the bulldog-faced Hoover in office years past the mandatory retirement age of 70 with the results that he served longer than any other federal bureaucrat in modern times.

His last years were among the stormiest as the FBI came under increasing fire from politicians, left wing groups, civil rights organizations, and even some of his staunchest admirers who felt it was time for Hoover to step down.

He paid them little heed. In the "law and order" framework of the Nixon Administration, Hoover spoke out often and loudly, apparently confident the President and his immediate boss, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, would rise to his defense. They did.

In 1970 and 1971, lawsuits were filed against Hoover by disgruntled former employees, by a would-be-female agent, by leftist groups who accused him of threatening their civil rights. He was accused by House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and others of wiretapping congressional telephones and of exceeding his authority in the field of civilian surveillance.

His troubles peaked after a fuss with former Democrat Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark who suggested in a book published in November, 1970, that Hoover had so dominated the FBI with a "self-centered concern for his reputation" that the agency sometimes sacrificed effective crime control in a pursuit of personal glory.

An intensely reactive man, Hoover saw red. He called in a Washington Post reporter for rare interview to denounce Clark as a "jellyfish."

FROM THEN ON his every action drew attention. Every time he disciplined an employee and it became known, there were headlines. He got a reputation for shipping agents who incurred his wrath to faraway posts. Butte, Mont., became both a favorite and a joke.

Hoover surprised everyone, however, when he told joke after joke on himself at a June, 1971 party in honor of the attorney general's bombastic, blonde wife, Martha Mitchell. He gave official Washington a rare look at this legendary figure and an even rarer glimpse of an unsuspected sense of humor.

Complaints against his regime were nothing new to the director. Thirty years earlier disciplined agents complained he was a tyrannical martinet.

But it was this iron discipline that enabled Hoover to make the FBI a respected, world-famous organization, noted for its integrity. His rigid methods were the only basis on which Hoover would accept the job of housecleaning the then Bureau of Investigation, a scandal-ridden haven for political hacks, in the early 1920's.

Illinois Officials Pay Tribute To Hoover

by United Press International

Expressions of regret and tribute flowed from Illinois officials soon after the announcement that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover is dead.

"My first reaction was that an institution had died," said U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson, who learned of Hoover's death in a Chicago courtroom Tuesday morning.

"The FBI and Hoover had become synonymous. But that's wrong, the FBI will go on as the world's greatest law enforcement agency," Thompson said.

In White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., where he is attending a Republican governor's conference, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie said Hoover "epitomized the professional approach to law enforcement for nearly half a century."

Ogilvie, a former special assistant U.S. attorney charged with fighting organized crime and one-time Cook County sheriff, was rumored in the past as being one of those under consideration by President Nixon as a successor to Hoover.

HOWEVER, IT seems unlikely that Nixon would tab Ogilvie for the job and pull the governor out of a political campaign in a state that the President regards as pivotal to his own reelection.

U.S. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., commented in Washington, D.C., on Hoover's death.

"One could quarrel at times with J. Edgar Hoover's conduct of his office, but no one could fail to admire the tenacity of his devotion to the cause of law enforcement or loyalty which characterized his long service," Stevenson said.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., also in Washington, said: "Under the direction of Mr. Hoover, the FBI received just recognition for the high quality and caliber of its agents. Our nation has lost a distinguished public servant who devoted his life to the FBI and the field of law enforcement."

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, at Bloomington, praised Hoover for "tremendous integrity" and said he was convinced that replacing the FBI director "will be one of the most important appointments President Nixon will have to make."

Edward V. Hanrahan, the controversial Cook County state's attorney indicated in connection with an arms raid in which two Black Panther Party leaders died, called Hoover "a symbol of excellence and absolute integrity."

"HIS DEATH is a real loss to every law-abiding, patriotic citizen in America. We desperately need this kind of dedicated ability in law and government today," Hoover directed one of the FBI's most famous episodes in Chicago, the slaying of notorious bank robber John Dillinger outside the Biograph theater on Sunday night, July 22, 1934. Dillinger was betrayed to FBI agents by "the woman in red" and it is said that bullet holes from the gun battle in which the bank robber died can still be seen in a telephone pole in an alley near the theater.

The slaying or capture of Dillinger and other depression area bank robbers, who eluded local police by escaping in fast cars across state lines, gave the FBI a worldwide reputation and led to an expansion of the agency's powers.

Wheeling GOP To Hear Carey

Bernard Carey, Republican candidate for Cook County state's attorney, will address the Wheeling Township Republican Organization at a meeting in Mount Prospect this evening.

Also appearing at the meeting will be Lucy Reum, candidate for county recorder of deeds.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn, 200 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect. The public is invited to attend, said Richard A. Cowan, Republican township committeeman.

Carey, of South Holland, is presently a special assistant to Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, in charge of the investigation into state claims against the estate of the late Paul Powell.

He served in the FBI from 1960 to 1965 and was appointed Cook County undersheriff in 1966. He served briefly as acting superintendent of the Cook County Jail in 1968, and in 1969 was appointed assistant director of the Illinois Department of Public Safety.

Following reorganization of the Department of Public Safety, Gov. Ogilvie appointed Carey deputy director of the Department of Law Enforcement. He was responsible for organization of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation.

CAREY RAN unsuccessfully for county sheriff in 1970.

Mrs. Reum, of Oak Park, was a delegate to the Sixth Illinois Constitutional Convention, at which she served as vice chairman of the legislative committee. A former Oak Park township committeewoman, she was an alternate delegate to the 1964 Republican Convention.

Mrs. Reum is active in a number of civic organizations, including the League of Women Voters. She is married to former state representative Walter J. Reum.

24 S. DUNTON COURT • ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILL. 60005

OPEN THURSDAY AND FRIDAY TO 9 P.M.

Education Today

by Betsy Brooker

The courtroom was virtually empty. From his seat at the front of the room U.S. Judge James Parsons looked down on two tables — divided into separate camps. Attorneys representing the plaintiff sat at one table and attorneys representing the defendant sat at the other.

The suit was a poor crowd attraction. Only three persons, one a reporter, had come to watch the proceedings.

The disinterest was due partly to the dryness of the issues — school finance and school organization. But the proceedings in that courtroom were the first step to an upcoming study and legislation that may completely transform what we know as school district organization in Illinois today.

The wheels that were set in motion will probably go unnoticed until the public feels the crash of change. And then it may be too late to change direction.

State aid is the question at hand, but in reality the suit challenges the entire state system of education.

The Edward Rothchild family of the North Shore and High School Dist. 113 filed the suit in the U.S. District Court on Dec. 1, 1971. The plaintiffs charge that the state aid formula is discriminatory and unconstitutional because it favors unit districts (combination of elementary and secondary grades) over dual districts (separation of elementary and secondary grades).

DUAL DISTRICT discrimination strikes a strong chord in this area — the heartland of Illinois dual systems. Districts 15, 25, 62, 207, 211 and 214 already have joined the plaintiffs along with approximately 300 other dual districts.

Defendant State School Supt. Michael Bakalis is backed up by approximately 100 unit districts including the city of Chicago.

Aside from the remote possibility of lower tax bills, state aid is indeed a pretty dull subject. But Judge Parsons will not let the suit rest with this question alone.

If the judge simply called for increasing dual district aid, the state would have to find an additional $100 million. Lowering unit district aid to the dual rate is vehemently opposed by unit district officials.

Changing the formula is a simplistic solution that doesn't do anything about the reasons why we have formula disparity in the first place. Unit districts are given more aid as an incentive for all districts to form kindergarten through grade 12 systems. It has been the philosophy of many state officials that all districts should have the same organization and that the unit system is the preferable of the two.

So Judge Parsons must not only consider the money issues but also what comprises good district organization. He has turned to a special study group charged with the responsibility of "developing a definition of high quality education and determining which districts produce the most efficient delivery of high quality services."

quality services."

IN ORDER TO secure state approval and state money for the study, the attorneys on both sides have designed a bill calling for a $100,000 appropriation for the study.

The prospect of a long drawn out study still makes the suit sound dull. But if we consider what legislation the attorneys may propose after the study is completed, the suit takes on real significance.

At this point it is possible the outcome of the legal action may be a change in the structure of many school districts and a change in how the state distributes aid.

Considering the fact that the plaintiffs filed the suit to avoid reorganization, the suit has taken an ironic twist. The state education office is leaning toward unit systems and so is the legislature. A mandate for statewide unit systems seems a bit drastic and for that reason is probably unlikely.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

South's bid of four spades represented a slight stretch. His opening bid was just about minimum and North's jump to three spades had strongly invited a game bid but not forced South to make that call.

If you are going to overbid you need to know how to play tough hands and South certainly handled this one with real skill.

If West had opened a trump and East taken his ace and played a second trump South would have no way to collect 10 tricks, but West made the normal lead of the king of clubs.

South looked over the hand carefully and asked himself the important question from the code word ARCH. How can I make this contract?

The answer was that he needed six trump tricks plus the three side aces and king of hearts. This meant he had to work out a cross-ruff to collect a total of six trump tricks.

He would have liked to duck the first club in hopes that the suit would be continued but East's deuce meat that there was a good chance that West would shift to a trump so South took the first club.

Then he played ace of diamonds; ruffed a diamond; ace and king of hearts; ruffed a heart; ruffed another diamond; ruffed another heart; ruffed a third diamond and relaxed.

East could overruff and lead a second trump or discard. Either way South was now sure of his six trump tricks.

Sperm Banks: Future On Ice?

by TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK — The time is the future. The world is recovering from a terrible nuclear war. And amidst the rubble and ruin the survivors discover one more ultimate horror: A significant portion of the male population has suffered radiation damage. Many are sterile. Most others altered enough to preclude procreation for fear of genetic mutations. So. Doomsday.

The scenario, admittedly, is farfetched. But it is one of the motivating factors behind a somewhat strange new business developing in the nation — the freezing and storage of human sperm for use months, years, even decades from now. Call it generations on ice.

There are at present five commercial depositories in the nation where men can actually purchase a kind of fertility insurance for themselves and the world. The depositories are known as sperm banks. Their function is to collect specimens of human sperm, freeze them and lock them in storage containers against the day the depositors may want to withdraw the savings and put them to work. What work? The work of making babies by the process of artificial insemination.

THE LARGEST of America's sperm banks is IDANT Corporation. The name is Greek for a unit of heredity. The bank is five months old. It has 200 depositors.

IDANT is located in a building fronting Manhattan's 5th Avenue. The elevator operator there eyes customers a little warily, but points the way to the basement. The basement? Oh, man. Yet there is nothing shabby about the corporation. Quite the contrary. It is large and posh and hints of the future. The only thing old hat is a sign notifying the acceptance of Master Charge accounts.

Dr. Jerome Silbert is in command. He is 29. There are two medical diplomas hanging in his office. One regular and one for the science of cryobiology (freezing of living matter). He does not just about his business. He gives no response to gags about freeze-drying tomorrow. He says, solemnly, that sperm banks are just one more way in which "man can keep his options open."

The options are necessary, Dr. Silbert says, because of the changing world. Sterility these days has become both a fad and a threat. Population worriers are getting 750,000 vasectomies a year. Chemical ingestion is a still unknown gamble. Radiation has been known to escape from color television sets. And then there is nuclear war itself.

"GENERALLY," says Dr. Silbert, "the type of customer we get here is a man who thinks ahead. He may not worry about sterility today, but what about tomorrow? Nobody knows what's going to happen tomorrow. Suppose the man has two children, and he gets a vasectomy, then his children are killed in a car accident? Sometimes vasectomies can be reversed, sometimes not. So, if he has a sperm specimen deposited with us, his chances of fathering another family are that much better."

Note here. Dr. Silbert does not say that specimen deposits are a "guarantee" of fathering future families. There is no such assurance. Sperm freezing is a developing science. So too, in fact, is artificial insemination. "We know that there are five million calves born each year by the process. There have been 300 to 500 human beings born the same way. We also know that some frozen sperm has been successfully used in artificial insemination." Other than that, scientists are still learning. And the truth is that anybody who deposits sperm for freezing is doing so largely on plain hope.

Still, increasing numbers of people are so hoping and so depositing. The fee is small: $80 for the service, plus $18 a year storage. And the idea of having one's progenies in deep freeze is a kind of comforting security for some.

For whom? Athletes worried about contact sports. Bluebloods worried about genetic integrity. Ill people about to undergo radiation treatment. All kinds.

SO THEY come in. Mostly younger people. They are allowed the option of giving the sperm specimen at IDANT, in a private room (erotic literature is provided), or collecting the ejaculate at their leisure at home. Most choose the latter. Either way, they must produce enough semen (usually two or more efforts) to fill a few dozen ampules (tube containers) for testing and storage.

The ejaculate is analyzed for potency, sperm count and volume. If it is acceptable (some semen is not) it is slowly frozen to 110 degrees below zero, tested once again, then dropped to minus 321F. There it is labeled, recorded and stored in stainless steel vaults containing smoking liquid nitrogen.

And that's it. Quick. Simple. Painless. Ah yes, let the damn bombs fall.

Biking? Use Rules Of Road

Spring's here — if we can believe the calendar — and with it are our non-polluting vehicles of pleasure, convenience and freedom, the bicycle.

But, as your six-year-old son hops on his and heads toward school, or as you pedal out beyond the subdivisions in search of some peace and quiet, how well do you know bicycling's "rules of the road?"

Here's a quick quiz. Answer "true" or "false," the right answers are listed at the end of the editorial.

- Both a horn (or bell) and brake are required on bicycles.
 - If you're riding a bicycle, you are always required to stop at stop signs.
 - Bicycle riders don't need to stop for a school bus which has stopped to load or unload passengers.
 - Parents cannot be held responsible if their child violates a traffic law.
 - Parents do not need to report a bicycle accident if there is an injury.
- Even if you answered all questions correctly, it might not hurt to obtain a copy of "Bicycle Rules of the Road," published by the Illinois Secretary of State's office. It's available at many local police stations.
- Police officials praise its value, not only in preventing traffic violations but in preventing your son or daughter from getting hurt—or from hurting a pedestrian—in traffic.
- Many rules of bicycling, are, of course, little more than common sense. Rear-end reflectors, light clothing after dark and common courtesy — these are three easily-remembered but important rules for bicyclists to remember.

Hopping on that vehicle and taking off — traveling wherever you want, as long as your legs hold up — gives you a sense of power and freedom. Streets that have been dull before become infused with new sights, new smells and new sounds. Ever ride a bike at 6 a.m.? It's a peaceful but bracing experience.

Bicycling, however, easily creates a false sense of security, a feeling that the motorists will naturally get out of your way and that the stop sign down the street doesn't apply to you. "Bicycle Rules of the Road," however, can teach you that a bicyclist must obey the laws, just like an automobile driver.

Family cycling on a spring day is another pastime — and valuable for teaching your children about safety. Let them lead you around the neighborhood; point out to them which roads are safe and which are too hazardous for the young, inexperienced cyclist. (Perhaps your children can do the same for you, too.)

Finally, buy a lock for your child's bicycle. It'll avoid the heartbreak and tears of theft. Police officials report that, once again this spring, bicycle theft is common — so don't give the thief an easy target.

And... have a good ride!

'Great Union Country'

Britain may have slipped to second-class status, but there's one thing you can say about her: She's a great union town.

Such is the power of labor there that striking coal miners were able to bring the country to a virtual stop recently.

At least one prominent American labor leader would like to see one union in this country big enough and powerful enough to be able to do what the striking British miners did — paralyze the entire country.

According to Forbes magazine, Harry Bridges hopes to merge the 65,000 members of his International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU) with the giant two-million-plus strong International Teamsters Union, and later with the East Coast's International Longshoremen's Assn. (ILA).

"If we combine truckers, dockers and transportation workers," the magazine quotes him as saying, "we would have the power to make a strike extremely dangerous for business. It wouldn't want to risk one."

This would be fine and dandy if along with great power came great wisdom and statesmanship. Unfortunately, as Lord Acton pointed out, what usually accompanies power is corruption, and the greater the power the greater the corruption. There is no evidence that labor leaders are different from other men in this regard.

Actually, the worst thing that could happen to labor would be for a grandiose vision like Bridges' to come true. The inevitable public reaction would bring those things labor fears most: the application of antitrust laws to unions, compulsory arbitration and abolition of the union shop.

Yet one wonders. Despite the hardships they were put to, the British public generally supported the striking miners. In fact, they jolly well relished the show. It was something like the camaraderie they felt back when Jerry was blitzing London.

America has never been blitzed. Yet.

The Public's Issue

Student Outlines Protest Plans

As the war has heated up, so has dissent. With the focus on May Day — traditionally Law Day and now a day for war protest — a student at Forest View High School, Jeff Beebe, has contributed a "Public's Issue" on his views on student protest.

Disagree (or agree) with his point of view? Drop us a letter and we'll publish it on the editorial page either as a letter to the editor or perhaps as a "Public's Issue" column.

by JEFF BEEBE

May Day: for some people it means honoring law, justice and the "American Way." For others it is a rallying point for the destruction of "racism, sexism and nationalism."

The former "American Way" people are the more traditional citizens. They celebrate May Day (Law Day) and Law Week in the expected manner by going about business as usual.

The latter groups are more likely to hold nationwide demonstrations organized by the Progressive Labor Party (a socialist movement designed to allow labor rule, in lieu of "industrial fat cats and greedy politicians"), the Black Panther Party, Students for a Democratic Society, Gay Liberation and a number of other near and far Left groups.

It should be pointed out that these groups are many and varied, and while representing the idea of change, each group and person is different and should be treated as separate entities, except for a few common goals the interests and ideals are peculiar to a particular group or individual.

The "New Left," radicals or whatever one wishes to call them, believe in many things, among them economics, politics, the practical and the ideological.

One organization, the Progressive Labor Party, is a good example of individual valuation. This group has one very practical goal, accompanied by an ideological, perhaps intangible, goal.

The practical goal is the 30-for-40 principle. This means that labor will organize and achieve a 30 hour week with 40 hours pay. This, ideally, would create one-third more jobs accompanied by a pay raise. The other goal is the eventual liberation of the United States by an internal communist takeover.

Other causes, popularly mistaken to be an exclusively Black Panther cause, is the drive to free "political prisoners." A list of these would include Angela Davis, Billy Smith, etc. On the list of others to be freed are draft resisters, exiles and deserters.

The demonstrations surrounding May Day center and draw attention to the Vietnam conflict. The war is perhaps the most publicized and popular cause to facilitate a demonstration.

President Nixon's war policies have reached many citizens and drawn many people together to strive for a common cause: end the war in Vietnam.

The Indo-China war is a groundwork from which, at a given demonstration, groups and individuals gain solidarity. Therefore, when shown on the 10 p.m. news, people tend to see a protest as a monolith, backed by one common interest. Whether that interest is Indochina, economic or just-out-to-have-a-good-time is up to the demonstrator or perhaps the observer.

No matter what one feels about the purpose or people who take part in a demonstration, one thing is clear: Citizens of the United States are guaranteed the right to assemble and dissent. As long as we precious guard these freedoms, we may call our country great. We have the right to change.

Laseke's 'Tales' Draw Criticism

Laseke's "Tales of their 'garbagemen'" made interesting reading. Especially the one about the plastic vs. galvanized cans. In the winter garbage freezes no matter what kind of container it is put in and the way they're handled either results in cracked ones (plastic) or dented ones (galvanized).

Also there was quite an issue made regarding the size of the containers. After the article appeared I watched the pickup in our neighborhood for two days. The men would go up one driveway and then the next drive, so they were picking up the garbage from two houses and putting it in the LARGE containers they use.

If the majority of homeowners have become as interested in ecology, as our family has by saving their bottles, cans and newspapers and taking them to the ecology centers at the fire stations and to the church on Central Rd., that doesn't leave much for Laseke to pick up. We are down to one can where we used to have two and sometimes three.

The clincher, though, was an article in the Herald the other day about the opening of a third recycling center. I knew Laseke furnished the containers for the glass and cans, but I thought they did this out of the goodness of their heart. Huh! Was I surprised to read they get half of what these items bring in, according to the article this amounted to half of $4,400. So, it boils down to the fact they are collecting twice, once from the bill sent to each home-owner and again from the cans and bottles we the home-owners take (on our own time) to the recycling centers. Garbage is a profitable business I'd say.

Dist. 57: Resignation 'Politics'...

As a rebuttal to the letter of Edith Freund (Dist. 57 Board Member), I would like to quote from a letter I sent to Mr. Robert Novy, President of Dist. 57 Board —

"In her letter to the 'Fence Post' (April 27), I believe that Hannah Wilson has summed up very well the feelings of many citizens of our community.

It is my opinion that the board has played politics with the voters of this community, and regardless of what Harry Hanson said in his news release to the Herald about the fact that there wasn't enough time (between March 26, when he knew he was leaving the district, and April 8 when we voted for school board members) to go through the legalities of changing the number of board members to be elected on April 8, I firmly believe that Mr. Hanson, and the board (if they had knowledge of his plans, and I'm convinced that they did) did the community a disservice by not making this fact known before the elections.

"The excuse of keeping Mr. Hanson on the board to assist in preparing the budget holds no water at all. He is leaving the district — his replacement should be involved in making the budget since he/she is going to have to live with these financial figures for the next year."

Dist. 211 Defended

In response to your editorial regarding the need for continued and more stable support for the Center for Child and Family Studies and the special education programs at Dwyer School, I am concerned at the erroneous impression your comments, perhaps inadvertently, may have left with your readers regarding District 211's lack of participation in the program. You have stated that "High School District 211 is the only district not sending students to the special school. As a result, an elementary school student has to leave the program once he reaches the high school level if he lives in District 211," implying, I'm afraid, that District 211 is making no provision for these students, which is not the case. District 211 has a long commitment towards serving the mental health needs of students with special problems as evidenced by an extensive and expanding variety of special education programs.

The route we have taken may not be identical to that of our neighboring districts, but no less sound, and in large measure is predicated on a desire to serve our students without exclusion from the regular school environment.

You have also stated, without "the mental health program, many would be placed in private schools for the retarded, state mental institutions, or other facilities." If you are implying, without access to the Dwyer Elementary School program and District 214's program, youngsters are summarily excluded from any special programs or services to provide for their needs, then this, too, is very far from the case. There are also elementary districts who have and are also commendably serving youngsters with behavioral and emotional problems utilizing and strengthening their own similar internal resources without sending students elsewhere.

In summary, we also commend other districts who have demonstrated concern for their students' needs through utilization of the Dwyer School programs, but we submit there are alternative approaches equally effective in ameliorating students' problems.

Word-A-Day

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — "This definitely is 'the Year of the Flea,'" said the young man with the bushy moustache and unsmiling eyes. "Because of an unusual combination of temperature and humidity, there will be more fleas this year than any time in the last century."

While that prospect might make most people shudder or itch, it gave gut satisfaction to DeWitt Helm, the new president of Miller-Morton Co., a subsidiary of A. H. Robins, Inc., the big Richmond, Va. pharmaceutical firm. You could almost hear Helm's mind clicking as he noted that dog fanciers spent about $54 million on flea collars and tags in 1971. And his company took more than half that market through its Sergeant Pet Care department.

Helm expects sales to boom this year because the long-range weather information he buys from Weather Trends, Inc. predicts lots of humid days ahead. Fleas are more numerous in humid weather, so the reproduction rate is higher.

"We watch weather closely. Flea collar sales rise when the barometer falls," said Helm.

EVEN WITHOUT humidity the sales curve should go up, according to Helm. The "humanization" of pets has made that field an ever expanding one. "Did you know," he asked, "that there are more licensed pets in the United States than children, that more money is spent on dog food than on baby food?"

"We fish where the fish are," said Helm. "We want to take a broad straddle and go after the mass market . . . the 32 million dogs and 22 million cats in American homes. We want the house dog, not the show dog."

Noting that sales in the pet accessory field alone run about $800 million annually, Helm said he's spreading the Sergeant label into such areas as pet beds, toys, collars, leashes and dishes.

In recent years Sergeant had added 160 new products, exclusive of food, to its line.

"We already are the biggest in pet medicines, from cough syrups to ear creams," said Helm. "Why there's a $30 million dollar a year market potential in worming problems alone."

HIS MANAGEMENT team presently consists of 34 persons averaging 38 years of age. His 81 salesmen serve 23,000 outlets. And he's determined to get into supermarkets.

"That will be the next big push," he said.

The flea collar market is an example of how chance happenings affect the business world.

Back in 1964 a man named Jack Greenberg walked into a Shell Oil Co. office in California and noticed a material that looked like white spaghetti hanging from a coat hanger.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Vapona, a material used to kill farm bugs," was the answer.

"Would it kill fleas?" Greenberg asked.

"It might."

Greenberg's company paid less than $1,000 to test Vapona as a flea killer, found it worked. More than 100 million flea collars and tags have been sold since that day . . . making a $54 million dollar industry which has attracted 31 companies.

the sharing of household tasks. Full-time housewives averaged 57 hours a week on household tasks. Working wives (employed more than 30 hours a week) reported they spend an average 34 hours a week on household tasks — 23 hours or 40 per cent less time.

And not because that much of the work had been shifted to the husbands, who "averaged about 1.6 hours a day on household jobs, whether or not their wives worked." Total time — paid work and "volunteer" work — came to about the same for both husbands and wives: 63 hours a week for women, and 64 hours for men.

Where did the missing housework go? Teenagers took up part of the slack — in those families that had teenagers. Where the mother was not employed, teenagers averaged 1.8 hours of housework a day. If the mother was employed, teenagers put in 2.7 hours of housework. Not nearly enough to account for those missing 23 hours a week.

Are working wives that much more efficient, or is some of the work simply left undone? The survey, unfortunately, "did not reveal whether the same 'output' of household work was accomplished in the lesser time, or whether household tasks were truncated or given up entirely," says the study, published in the department's Monthly Labor Review.

Other surveys and case studies provided this picture of the division of labor in families of husbands and working wives:

"Wives did most of the inside work, while husbands did home maintenance and yard work. Husbands helped with marketing, record-keeping and child care."

"WIVES WERE more likely than husbands to prepare dinner, shop for groceries and do the laundry, while husbands were more likely to do repairs and heavy yard work, and to empty garbage and trash. Cooking breakfast and washing dishes were most often shared." But:

A Harris public opinion poll showed that "almost half the working women polled felt that men should do more repair work; more than one-third felt they should help more with child-care, cleaning and shopping. About one-fourth of the working women surveyed wanted men to help more with dishwashing."

The solution, obviously, is for husbands of working wives to get busy and figure out how the women cut their housework time by 40 per cent. Then they can whiz through their own chores in fewer hours, and have time left over to pitch in and help with the childcare, cleaning, shopping and dishwashing.

Cites Need For Money Management Courses

Exec Says Few Know How To Spend

Education for a wide spectrum of age groups is constantly being improved. But in one area — personal money management — there is still a lack of courses offered at any school level, according to William A. Reasoner, president and chief executive officer of Waddell & Reed, Inc., Kansas City-based national financial services complex.

"Most people still don't know how to set up a simple family budget," Reasoner said, "nor how to stick to it if they do. This little nugget of knowledge alone could help keep many families solvent. It could help solve the almost universal problem of making family income meet

Reasoner notes that "adults and children alike are urged every day to spend. But few people seem to really know how to spend wisely, and more important, how to save."

"A CURRICULUM of personal money management courses, starting in grade school and running through high school could help immeasurably in what now seems so difficult for most people," Reasoner said. He suggests a basic personal financial course, teaching the differences between necessities, luxuries and affordable items. It would include simplistic methods of cash flow bookkeeping and control of daily expenses.

"A course in credit, its uses and abuses, would be a must with particular emphasis on credit card purchases; and installment buying: its perils, as well as its advantages when properly utilized," said Reasoner. "The curriculum should definitely have a course covering insurance."

"In conjunction with this there should be a course in investing, since insurance and equity investments, along with savings, are the basics of any sound financial program."

"And young people probably would disdain it, but instruction in setting up retirement programs should also be included. This course is a must for adult education classes as well. We do our children an injustice when we send them out into our complex society totally unprepared to meet the simplest of economic problems — handling their own money," Reasoner said.

Accord Reached On Cordova Plant

BOSTON, Mass. (UPI) — CNA Nuclear Leasing, Inc., the only company currently leasing nuclear power to utilities, announced it reached agreement with the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co. covering the purchase and lease-back of nuclear fuel for the power generator near Cordova, Ill.

CNA, a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corp., said the transaction involves the purchase and lease-back of Iowa-Illinois with UOP's long-term forward plans and 25 per cent interest in nuclear fuel at the Quad Cities nuclear generating station near Cordova.

Commonwealth Edison Co., a partner in the station, retained 75 per cent ownership in the fuel for the twin 809 megawatt generators. Iowa-Illinois has about 145,000 customers in Iowa and Illinois.

Donald H. Shaw, treasurer of Iowa-Illinois, said, "The lease helps us to make the transition from our past electric generating practices, where our investment in fuel was minimal, to nuclear generation, where fuel inventory is a sizable item."

A CNA spokesman said the leasing procedure "offers a way of conserving capital and maintaining the lowest possible rates for the public."

The Atomic Energy Commission controlled and leased all nuclear fuel until 1971, when federal law prohibited the AEC from writing new leases and required existing AEC leases to end by June 30, 1973. The AEC continues to regulate private use of nuclear materials.

There are 24 nuclear power plants operating in the United States and 112 more are under construction or being planned.

Universal Sells Fabsteel Division

Universal Oil Products Co., Des Plaines, has negotiated the sale of its Fabsteel Division business and certain of its fixed assets for undisclosed terms to an investor group.

John O. Logan, UOP president and chief executive officer, said the Waskom, Texas based operation has been consistently profitable, but does not fit in objectives.

Housewives of the nation, arise. You can cut 23 hours a week off the time you spend on housework, just by putting your mind to it.

That would seem to be the conclusion (a dangerous one, possibly) to be drawn from a study of what happens to the housework when married women are gainfully employed.

What appears to happen is that the working wife finds she doesn't really have to spend all that time schlepping around the house with broom and dustpan. About 40 per cent of the housework is, apparently, illusory or dispensable.

The study, by two women gainfully employed in the Department of Labor — one an economist, the other a research analyst — sought some answers to how America's burgeoning number of working wives handle family responsibilities. One survey cited in the study suggested that they handle the housework problem simply by doing less of it.

IN SYRACUSE, N.Y., and surrounding suburbs, 1,300 families were queried on

Stirrings In The Convent

Change Comes Gradually To Conservative Order

by DOROTHY OLIVER

(First of two parts.)

Outside things haven't changed much over the years.

The rambling, red-brick convent presents a sturdy, traditional image to passing motorists as it sits sheltered by trees set back from the busy thoroughfare.

Inside the casual visitor would hardly detect any change. An aging sister in floor-length black habit unlocks the heavy front door and politely ushers the caller to a comfortable sitting room where the silence is disturbed only by noises from the outside world.

Down the hall in the ornate, golden chapel sit one or two sisters engrossed in their wordless prayer, running beads through their fingers or quietly turning the pages of small black books.

THE STILLNESS is broken by the sound of striding feet and a young, smiling sister stands in the doorway dressed in the modified short habit and veil worn by the majority of religious. She is eager to tell about the conservative but continuing changes that have taken place in her order. Changes only those inside the secure convent walls can fully understand.

"Religious life before tended to be an isolation from the world. Now we are people of the church reaching out to people," said Sister Carol Marie, assistant director of novices and vocation director of Sacred Heart Province, Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, Des Plaines.

"New fields have opened up and the religious are going out to people more. We're taking more of a part in parish work and in the schools."

"THERE IS MORE stress on, 'I am a person, an individual, a woman putting herself in a religious life,'" she said.

Sister Carol Marie's job is to go to elementary schools and interest 8th grade girls in the order's new home aspirancy program and to interest high school girls in becoming affiliated with the order.

Before last year girls could affiliate with the convent right after they graduated from 8th grade. They lived in a large white house in back of the convent during their high school years and their lives were guided by the sisters.

Now the future sister lives with her parents, attends the high school of her choice, dates and joins activities while she is affiliated with the community. One sister guides the aspirant toward her vocation.

"ONCE A MONTH the aspirant comes here for a spiritual talk. While guiding them you watch the changes taking place in them — their whole personality begins changing towards the religious life," Sister Carol Marie said.

If, after high school graduation, the aspirant chooses the religious vocation, she becomes a postulant and moves into the Province House. A year later she becomes a novice and spends the next two years studying the spiritual life, the constitution of the order and attending classes at DeLourdes College in Des Plaines, run by the sisters.

At the end of the second year the novice takes the first of three temporary vows and becomes a scholastic. Once she has made the three one-year vows she can ask for permission from the community to take her final vows, make a final commitment and become a senior or final professed sister.

"IT IS psychologically and emotionally better to have girls enter the convent after they have completed high school or work or college," Sister Carol Marie said. "There are now many lifestyles to choose from. The older woman knows what life is, she makes a more mature decision to enter the religious life."

There are no postulants with the Province House now and only three novices. The three are 30, 29 and 19 years of age.

"The older (women) have a harder time adjusting. They tend to ask why a lot but are willing to accept more challenges once they know why," she said.

Once in the convent the future nun leads a full day. There are morning mass, prayers, meditation, college classes, meals, spiritual classes, one or two hours of free time for recreation, television or hobbies and homework. There is no time for idle hands or idle minds; there is always something to learn, something to do, someone to talk to, some part of one's self to know more about.

THE NUMBERS who have entered communities like Sister of the Holy Family of Nazareth are small. The three-story convent has room for many more than the 60 who presently live there.

Large numbers have left the vocation and turned to other lives. "Some leave because they want more freedom," Sister Carol Marie explained. "I have freely accepted the rules we have and follow them. Some can't. Some leave because of psychological illness. Some can't contend with community life. Others may wake up to the fact that they made a mistake."

"Some tend to think religious are super-human. We're not, we are very human," she smiled.

What brings a young woman into an order admittedly conservative, cautious when contemplating change and steeped in the desire to remain a close-knit community?

SISTER CAROL MARIE had been dating, going steady, when she decided at 17 that Christ would be the man in her life. "I decided to give myself to Him but therefore to everybody," she said. "I hoped it would be the right life for me and found it was. I found peacefulness, assurance."

Despite her happiness she is realistic in looking back over her 12 years as a sister. "Everyone is faced with the question, did I make the right choice? In our life we work with people, children, we see our families. Our woman's instinct says, I could have had that. But this is your life — you can help so many people in this life."

AT 14 SISTER KRISTIN became an aspirant and began living in the community. Now, six years later she is a scholastic preparing for her final vows and ready to teach full-time next year. She is one of the seven who have continued their vocation out of the original class of 20.

"I don't hold anything against those who left. I don't think anything in our life is easily accepted," she said.

"Everything has not been as I thought. I've been growing up, finding what I like. Anyone making a decision at 14 finds out things are different than they thought."

"My life is being a witness, being of service — personally not just through the community — being what I am."

SISTER ELLEN MARIE, formerly Mary Ellen Cherry of Hoffman Estates, was ready to join a convent at 13, but her parents persuaded her to complete high school, date and find out about the world before entering her vocation. She did so, but while in high school her desire to be a sister grew. She looked around for an order and joined Sisters of the Holy Family at 18.

"Being a religious is not the only way you can serve but it was the one for me," Sister Ellen Marie explained, adding that serving and giving were the things she most wanted from her life.

She adjusted to the community life, leaving home, going to college, the restrictions, the newness.

"I chose this order because of its family spirit and closeness. Their ideals match mine."

PROBABLY THE biggest change in the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth is their regard for the individual. When the order voted on changing to the new habit, those who preferred the old were allowed to keep it. The new nuns don't hesitate to question or challenge.

"After talking to one of the new sisters the older ones will come to me and shake their heads. 'They have so many questions, they are so bold,' they say," Sister Carol Marie said.

To this order change has been gradual and slow. Will it continue?

"Yes," Sister Carol Marie said with a wide smile. "Without change there cannot be growth. If we're supposed to be working for the church, the needs of the church change and we must also."

"The whole idea of life is to find out where you are going to be happy," she said. "We are happy here."

Tomorrow: The Liberal Religious

IN SOME RESPECT the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth haven't changed at all. Their day remains structured and time is allotted for each sister to participate in prayer, meditation and mass.

OUR FOUNDER WORE barbed belts under her habit and stones in her shoes as penance," explained Sister Carol Marie of the relics kept in the Chapel Gallery of the convent. "She found out all it did was made her grouchy so she stopped," she laughed.

ALL SISTERS ARE equal now and have been for the past 10 years. There was formerly two classes of sisters, the domestics and the choir. A move by the Catholic Church to bring more human rights to the convent changed the class practice.

A FEW HOURS EACH day are set aside for sharing and enjoying community life. Sister Carol Marie leads novice Sister Ellen Marie, center and other members of the order in a sing-a-long. Everyone in the convent receives music instruction as part of her education and the sisters play together as an orchestra in performances for friends.

Shirlee Christensen

Cheryl Thake

Linda Johnson

The engagement of Shirlee Kay Christensen to Wade Lee Abbott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Kenneth Abbott of Mount Prospect, is announced by Shirlee's parents, the Herbert Christensens of Evanston, Wis.

The wedding is planned for Aug. 19 in the First Baptist Church, Evanston.

The young couple are students at Ottawa University in Ottawa, Kan., Shirlee majoring in social work and Wade in business.

Mrs. Leonard Thake of Arlington Heights announces the engagement of her daughter, Cheryl Jean, to Robert A. Galizia, son of Mrs. Kay Galizia of Arlington Heights and Frank Galizia of Chicago.

Cheryl, daughter of the late Leonard Thake, is a graduate of Arlington High School and Northwest American School of Beauty Culture. she is now a hair stylist in Des Plaines.

Her fiancé graduated from St. Viator High School, attended Northeastern University and is a supervisor at Northwest Community Hospital.

A July 29 wedding is planned by Linda Ellen Johnson of Arlington Heights and R. Stanley Johnson of Morton Grove. Linda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Johnson, are making the announcement.

She is a '70 graduate of Arlington High School and works at Old Orchard Country Club.

Her fiancé is the son of Mrs. Henry Lux of Morton Grove and the late Stanley B. Johnson. He is a '68 graduate of Maine West High School and is employed by R. A. Ness & Co., Chicago.

Groom Composes His Wedding Music

For the April 1 wedding of Kathryn Anne Fotopolus and Michael Clay Bartlow, the groom composed the nuptial music himself. Michael is a junior at Northwestern University, majoring in psychology, and is the son of the C. G. Bartlows, 2022 Cayuga Lane, Mount Prospect.

His bride, daughter of Mrs. Thomas W. Beckman and Dr. John Fotopolus, both of Winnetka, is medical librarian at Evanston Hospital. She also attends Northwestern part-time.

The couple exchanged vows by candlelight at three in the afternoon in Kenilworth Union Church. Afterward there was a reception for 100 guests at Winnetka Woman's Club.

KATHRYN CHOSE A white organdy gown appliqued with lace roses and pale blue rosebuds. The dress had bishop sleeves, a high neckline and chapel train. Kathryn's headpiece was a crown of lace accented with pale blue velvet ribbon and held a short bouffant veil in place. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses.

Maid of honor Nancy Houfek of Winnetka wore a pale blue linen dress with white organdy sleeves and stand-up collar. The bodice was sprinkled with lace daisies. Nancy carried blue and white roses and daisies in a nosegay arrangement.

The bride's sisters, Paula Fotopolus and Karen Beckman, were bridesmaids, along with Corinne Kass of California. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor, as was the flower girl, 6-year-old Elizabeth Bartlow, the groom's sister.

MICHAEL CHOSE Roy Moore of Chicago as best man, while Robert Mellet, Wheeling, and the groom's two brothers, Dr. Bruce Bartlow and Brian Bartlow, served as ushers.

Among the special guests at the afternoon festivities were the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Reznicek of Omaha.

After the reception the newlyweds went to Starved Rock State Park for a short honeymoon and are now living in Evanston.

Michael is a graduate of Wheeling High School. His bride attended New Trier High and the University of Michigan for a year before returning to Evanston to work.

And The Bridesmaids Wore Boots

Midi boots in brown trimmed with ivory lace peeked from the brown and ivory midi-length gowns of Vickie Young's attendants when she became the bride April 8 of Steven McAuliffe.

The high-necked gowns featured a border of four-inch lace at the hemline and at the cuffs. The ensembles, as well as the matching bonnets worn by the attendants, were made by the bride's aunts, Juliette Misar, Northbrook, and June Prescher, Naperville. The girls carried bouquets of pink daisies and white carnations to complete their costumes.

Vickie and Steven are both graduates of local high schools, but they met at a music festival at Gages Lake two years ago. Daughter of the Victory Youngs, 617 N. Elmhurst Ave., Mount Prospect, Vickie is a '69 graduate of Prospect High School, and Steven, son of the William McAuliffes, 1136 S. Haddon, Arlington Heights, is a '69 graduate of Forest View High School.

THE COUPLE were married in a double ring service in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Park Ridge. For the four o'clock, candlelight service, Vickie chose a white satin gown with Empire waist, a neckline trimmed in seed pearls and chapel train. Her fingertip veil was held by a Camelot headpiece trimmed in seed pearls and lace, hand made by Aunt Juliette. Vickie carried white roses, carnations and mums.

Pamela Carlson, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Patricia Madl, Mount Prospect, and Karen Bunker, Arlington Heights. Flower girl was Vickie's cousin, 8-year-old Dawn Prescher, Naperville, and ring bearer was Vickie's cousin Sonny Misar, 7, Northbrook, who wore a brown and tan suit with ruffled shirt.

BEST MAN was Dennis Muhr, Wheeling, and ushers were the bride's brother, Russell, Mount Prospect, and C. L. Smith and Lenny Tylistkim, Des Plaines.

A reception for 200 guests was held at Butch McGuire's Banquet Hall, Mount Prospect, after which the newlyweds honeymooned for two days at the Palmer House in Chicago. They are now making their home at 225 S. Rohlwing Road, Palatine. Vickie is employed at Korvette's, Arlington Heights, and Steven with Anvan Industries, Elk Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Nolting

Arlington Pair Married April 8 In 'Hometown'

An Arlington Heights couple, Patricia Breister and Arnold Nolting, are newlyweds making their home at 1108 W. Hawthorne, Arlington Heights. Married April 8 in St. James Catholic Church, Patricia is the daughter of the John Paul Breisters, 924 N. Walnut, and Arnold is the son of the Elroy Noltings, 205 W. Wing.

Patricia, a graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, is a part time student at Harper and is employed by Illinois Bell in Arlington Heights. Arnold, a graduate of Arlington High School, is employed at Mr. Steak's in Rolling Meadows.

Patricia chose a silk organza gown with high neckline, Empire waist outlined with Venice lace, puffed sleeves with lace at the cuffs and with lace appliques sprinkled on her gown. Her chapel veil was fastened to a lace and pearl headpiece and she carried blue carnations, stephanotis and glads.

CAROL BREISTER, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Lynne Sullivan and Rebecca Flavin, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. All wore gowns of light blue chiffon with bodices of royal crushed velvet. The gowns were made with puffed sleeves, high necklines and with white daisies around the sleeves and Empire waists.

Sgt. Charles Nolting of Ellsworth, S.D., was his brother's best man, and ushers, both from Arlington Heights, were Roger Frank and Raymond Woss.

Following the double ring service, 100 guests greeted the pair in the Colonial Room of the Deville Motor Inn. Patricia and Arnold honeymooned for a week in Miami Beach and Nassau.

LOCATED IN DRESS DEPARTMENT.

AT TOP OF THE TOWERS Mrs. Frank Currier, right, left, was chairman of the club's spring luncheon, and accepted the top job of Arlington Heights Woman's Club which is entering its 86th year. Mrs. George Dutro, Mrs. Laddie Poduska, conducted her last meeting as president of the club.

He Dined With 400 Gals, Got $600 Check

—There was one lone gentleman among the 400 women gathered at Top of the Towers last week for Arlington Heights Woman's Club's annual spring luncheon. But Ronald Sterrett, who has all daughters, acknowledged that "women don't scare me at all."

Sterrett, principal of the new Samuel A. Kirk Developmental Training Center for the Handicapped in Palatine, was there to accept from the club a donation of $600 which will be used at the Center to develop a garden for the blind.

The club also took this opportunity to donate $400 to the Arlington Heights Historical Society. The donation was accepted by Mrs. Clarence Hendrickson, long-time Arlington Heights Woman's Club member, past president of the Illinois Federation and the president of the Historical Society.

The luncheon also marked the end of the club's 85th year and the introduction of the new president, Mrs. Frank P. Currier, 1006 Stratford, Arlington Heights. But before Mrs. Laddie F. Poduska retired from the presidency, she introduced state officers and past presidents. Twenty-five year members and bridge winners were announced. She also announced club awards and individual winners of literature awards, modestly skimming over the two awards won by herself for Japanese poetry.

Receiving 25-year pins were Mrs. R. M. Conrad, Mrs. Walter Edelblute, Mrs. Roy Fidler, Mrs. Clarence Hendrickson and Mrs. Donald Thompson. State officers included Mrs. Hendrickson, convention program chairman; Mrs. Gordon Beckley, historian; Mrs. William Stark, chairman, American Home and Citizenship; and Mrs. Stephen Jurco, Home Life and Young American chairman.

Past presidents introduced were Mrs. Charles Stadelman, Mrs. Hendrickson and Mrs. Jurco.

Always a gala affair, the luncheon entertainment included solos by Jeanne Johnson and a "tour" of Paris via fashions from the Beatrice Dorsey Shop in Dundee. The ensembles, as suitable for spring in Arlington Heights as they are for the Riviera or the East Bank, were as gay a collection as any shown in the area this season.

Long skirts were big as were blazers, shrinks, the layered look, halters and the nautical look. There was lots of red, white and navy, black and white sometimes combined with yellow, and brown with black or white. Prices ranged from around $50 for a one-piece jump suit with matching skirt to a three-piece navy and white ensemble at $275.

Right in fashion with her long, white gown was Luncheon Chairman Mrs. George Dutro. Also in long gowns were her co-chairman Mrs. Frederick Leydig and several committee members.

Next On The Agenda

BETA SIGMA PHI

"To See and To Know" will be the program at 8 tonight for Lambda Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. Cesar Gonzales of Buffalo Grove will give the program in the Buffalo Grove home of Mrs. Robert Lerdal. Mrs. Dave Dumm, Arlington Heights, co-hostess, will be installed as president and Mrs. Tom Choje, Palatine, vice president. Secretaries to be installed are Mrs. Al Poole, Palatine, and Mrs. Kenton Jens, Arlington Heights. Treasurer is Mrs. Tim Parker, Buffalo Grove, and extension officer, Mrs. Robert Gillis, Rolling Meadows.

To observe Mother's Day, the social committee will entertain members' mothers or daughters at a salad luncheon Saturday.

ELK GROVE NEWCOMERS

A wine tasting party and election of officers are on the agenda for Elk Grove Village Newcomers Club at 8 tonight in Salt Creek Country Club.

Elections will precede the 8:45 wine tasting which will be presented by a representative of Christian Brothers.

A social and service group, Newcomers is open to all women in Elk Grove and surrounding communities. Membership chairman is Mrs. William Kapela, 439-6346.

AMVET AUXILIARY

Dolores Robach, department president of the State of Illinois, Amvet Auxiliary, was speaker at the recent meeting of Albert Emmerich Post Auxiliary 265, Buffalo Grove.

Highlight of the meeting was the awarding of essay and poster contest honors. Kendra Martin, Kilmer School, took first in essay, Alan Anderson, Alcott School, second First place poster winner was Darren Brooks, St. Mary's, second, Mike Fitzgerald.

The Auxiliary also donated to the fight to save Mustangs and each member will be writing to Operation Sad Sack. The group is also concentrating on the mental health program.

13th DISTRICT GOP WOMEN

"What's Ahead for the 'GOP'" is the topic to be presented Monday by Peter H. Dominick, junior senator from Colorado, at the annual meeting of the Women's Republican Club of the 13th Congressional District of Illinois. The program will be held at the Kenilworth Club, 410 Kenilworth Road, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

The nominating committee of the club has presented the following slate for election at the meeting: first vice president, Mrs. Warren Jones; third vice president, Mrs. Albert Lindley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Porter; and treasurer, Mrs. Robert Kearney. Current president of the club is Mrs. Gerald Brask of Arlington Heights.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Officers of the Chicago Suburban Northwest Tri Sigma Alumnae Association will be installed Monday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Thomas W. Bessey, 201 Banbury Ave., Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. William Pfeifer, Arlington Heights, will be installed as president, Mrs. Karl Kuban, Mount Prospect, vice president. Secretaries to be installed are Mrs. Richard Bennett, Des Plaines, and Mrs. John Kretzco, Mount Prospect. Treasurer is Mrs. John Mattoon, Arlington Heights. Mrs. William Distel will be Panchellene representative.

All alumnae are invited and those interested in joining the group may call Mrs. Bessey at 439-9764.

Toy Safety

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Food and Drug Administration (FDA) proposal would require all electrically operated toy sewing machines to be designed in a way to eliminate the possibility of a child's finger being pierced by a needle.

Another proposal on the toy safety front: play pots and pans and containers for holding hot liquids must be designed to prevent accidental spillage and must have insulated handles.

FUN AND FELLOWSHIP prevailed at Top of the Towers last week when Arlington Heights Woman's Club held its spring luncheon. Mrs. C. F. Leydig, luncheon co-chairman, receives plaudits from Mrs. N. J. Mettelke on the lush African violet centerpiece and the gay luncheon decor.

"COME SEE AND Sew," a mother-daughter creative fashion show presented by Queen of the Rosary Catholic Women's Club, Elk Grove Village, will include Mrs. Edward Burawiecki and her daughter Lori as models. The show will be held at 7 p.m. Friday in Loretta Hall of the church. Besides home sewn fashions, handicrafts made by the women will also be on display. Tickets, 439-7316.

Speaking Of . . .

Re-cycling Yourself

by KAY MARSH

What's good for you — physically, fiscally and psychologically — and also good for the environment?

The answer, of course, is bicycle riding. And more and more of us, especially the adults, are re-cycling ourselves these days.

National Bikeology Week this year is May 1-7 and seeks to promote the theme of ecology through bicycling. Our local college chapter of Friends for Bikeology is currently pushing for a nine-week physical education course in bicycling. The group also plans to (1) work from aerial photographs to determine the best routes for bicycle trails on campus; (2) offer a bicycle safety program for grade school children, which will include a bicycle safety check and the distribution of safety coloring books, and (3) sponsor a "cycletron," a type of bicycle marathon to raise money for ecology.

FRIENDS FOR BIKEOLOGY cites numerous ways in which bicycling helps ecology. Bicycles, its members point out, don't pollute. Bicycle trails are narrow and planned in a design with nature. The bicycle is flexible and can be maneuvered so that practically no harm is done to the landscape and ecological communities. Enthusiasts also point out the healthful aspects of regular bike riding, as well as the absence of parking problems. Cycling, they find, offers convenient, cheap transportation.

Whatever the reason, Bikeology Overview, published by Friends for Bikeology, reports that bicycling has reached an all-time high in popularity. Some 8.5 million bikes were sold last year, and industry officials predict sales of more than 10 million bikes this year. Bicycle sales may exceed auto sales in 1972. The current bike boom, moreover, has been heaviest in adult models, which are generally more expensive.

And what about costs? Today's most popular bikes are the 5- and 10-speed cycles, which can easily run from around $100 to more than $200. A major mail order house offers an adult 3-speed light-weight bike for $49.95. There are also folding models, tandem bikes, unicycles and even three-wheelers sized for adults.

ACCESSORIES CAN EQUAL your initial investment. You'll probably spend at least $1 (and maybe up to $25) on some kind of lock and chain. You'll also need a good headlight and perhaps, too, a spare inner tube and patching kit plus a tire pump and small tool kit to make emergency road repairs. You may want to buy a bike carrier, to mount on your car's roof or rear bumper. You can even treat yourself to an old-fashioned bicycle clip to keep your pants leg out of the chain (though youngsters say a clothes-pin or big rubber band works just as well). You may also need a baby carrier, available to mount front or rear. (However, experienced cyclists suggest that a back-pack arrangement, similar to a papoose frame, is more satisfactory if your youngster is less than about 18 months old.)

More exotic gear sells well, too, according to a recent Wall Street Journal report. You can, for instance, spend $25 to $30 on cycling shoes, $8 on chamois-lined gloves and $25 on chamois-lined pants. You can even buy dog repellent in an aerosol can to clip to your handlebars and battery-powered lights that strap on your arms and legs to make you more visible to motorists when you ride at night.

ROLL YOUR OWN. But even without such deluxe equipment, a family bike hike is one of the greatest ways to celebrate May. Experienced "spokesmen" suggest that you pick a destination no more than 10 miles away. Perhaps you can use hiking trails or special bicycle routes (such as Wisconsin's 320-mile state-wide trail from Kenosha to LaCrosse). If not, stick to back roads. Always keep to the right and travel single file — parents in front and rear, children in the middle. Plan for frequent breaks and a leisurely picnic lunch. Chances are, you'll want to try another longer family bike hike soon. Then you, too, will be sold on Bikeology — for ecology, economy, and just plain old-fashioned fun.

Dear Dorothy: I certainly enjoy your column and would like to share my recipe for cooking grits. It would never qualify for anyone who had to watch a diet, but is it delicious! Pour 1 cup three-minute grits into 4 cups boiling water, stirring constantly while pouring. Then add 1 egg, stirring until well blended. Add 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ (3 ounce) stick margarine. Cook until done and serve hot. — Mrs. Charles M. Britt

Had exactly one cup of these grits on the shelf, and feeling lonesome for the stuff, tried your recipe. It is delicious, but what fattening food isn't? We used to have grits often until his royal highness, who's made of sterner stuff than I am, decided that to control weight we had to cut certain things. Grits lost out, but with your recipe maybe we can win an occasional round.

A columnist's life: A quick answer was urgent, wrote the reader. It was difficult since there was no name and no address on the letter. But then came the second letter, this time indignant about my not responding. After all, she wrote, it wasn't as if it was an anonymous message; she had put her initials on it!

Dear Dorothy: Painting is a simple activity for young children on rainy days which gives them a lot of pleasure. Just get out food coloring, some cotton swabs and a few sheets of paper and they will be as busy as bees. No paper on hand? Get out some brown paper bags. — Liz Dwyer.

Dear Dorothy: If you don't want moths to bother wool yarn you're storing, wind it around a mothball. — Inge Solomon.

NOW Offers All-Day Women's Lib Parley

North Suburban Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) is holding an all-day conference Saturday, May 13, in Terra Hall, Kendall College, 725 Collax in Evanston.

The conference will feature workshops and panels on a variety of topics dealing with the role of women past, present and future. Keynote speaker will be Susan Davis, editor of Spokeswoman, a newsletter for women.

Those in attendance will have a choice to participate in one of three morning workshops followed by a panel discussion. The format will be repeated in the afternoon.

The three morning workshops are "Abortion," "The Equal Rights Amendment and Its Implications" and "Divorce, Marriage and Family Law." The three afternoon workshops are "Media Image," "Volunteerism" and "The Masculine-Feminine Mystique."

COST FOR THE conference, which runs from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., is $5 including a box lunch. Valucha, a Brazilian folk singer, will entertain during lunch.

A free day care center is also being set up by NOW North for the convenience of women who want to attend the conference, but who have no one to look after their children. There is no extra charge for this service.

Tickets may be obtained by writing Women The Revolution, 145 Wagner Road, Northfield, Ill. Additional information is available through 496-2620 or 251-5152.

Local Artist To Give Critique

Members and guests attending the Thursday meeting of the Community Arts League of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove will have the chance to participate in a critique to be presented by Jack Schmitt of Schmitt Design in Palatine.

The meeting will be held in the old church building in Chamber of Commerce Park in Wheeling, Wolf Road north of Dundee Road. It will begin at 8 p.m.

Schmitt studied at the Art Center of Design in Los Angeles and the University of Illinois. He has worked as a graphic artist for the Ford Motor Co. and art director for Shurtluff Central Corp.

Currently he is in business for himself as a free lance design consultant in graphics and packaging design.

Schmitt has exhibited his watercolors at Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights. He has also taught classes in watercolor there and for the Barrington Women's Club.

Further information about the meeting Thursday is available through Mrs. R. Bruhn, 537-0760.

Wrong Notions

NEW YORK (UPI) — When it comes to health, most Americans know a lot less than they think they know, says the Health Insurance Institute. Among the wrong notions held by most Americans are: a steady diet of red meat can cause high blood pressure; the primary cause of diabetes is eating too much sugar; rapid pulse, fatigue, low blood pressure are warning signs of a possible stroke. All these statements are false.

The Doctor Says

By Margaret F. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Three weeks ago I lost my first and only granddaughter. It was a dreadful experience. My daughter said she was fed and bathed at 11 a.m. and put back to bed. About 1:30 p.m. she went upstairs to wake her and found the baby was dead. We raced her to the hospital by ambulance, but it was too late. The doctor told us this was a crib death. Could you please write something. It has worried me ever since she died as to what could cause this. It is such a shock when a baby is fat and healthy and only two months old to die suddenly.

Dear Reader — Yes, it is always a terrible shock and disappointment. Fortunately, the condition is rare. Several different theories concerning this problem have been studied. Once it was attributed to an enlarged thymus gland, the gland lying over the heart which is exceptionally large in children and diminishes in size with age. The exact way it was felt to cause death was never completely explained. A current theory is that the airway becomes suddenly obstructed — perhaps by spontaneous closure in the larynx area. This has even occurred while a baby was nursing at the breast.

No doubt there are several causes for such tragic events. I can only tell you that these problems don't seem to be inherited and it doesn't mean that the problem will occur again. It certainly does deserve a lot more study.

I want to emphasize emphatically that such a death cannot be prevented by the parents and has no bearing on any known aspect of parental care. Parents suffer needless anguish after this type of mysterious event, thinking if only they had done this or hadn't done that.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 78 years old and I am in good health, but I have been bothered with a hernia for the last three months. I am wondering if I am too old to have surgery.

Dear Reader — There isn't such a thing as being too old to have surgery if it is indicated. Of course, each case has to be evaluated on an individual basis regardless of whether the patient is a newborn or more than 100 years old. In general, people we consider very old can tolerate minor surgery reasonably well, and some can tolerate major surgery. It is amazing what can be accomplished today with the modern advances in surgery and medical support.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., Padlock Publications, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Administrators Back State School Board

The Illinois Association of School Administrators has officially taken a position urging the Illinois General Assembly to enact legislation creating a state board of education. The new state constitution provides for a state board, but it is the responsibility of the legislature to pass the needed law.

The position of the Illinois Association of School Administrators, as stated by a special committee including superintendents Kenneth Gill, of Wheeling Dist. 21 and Donald Strong, of Arlington Heights Dist. 25, recommended that the board be composed of 15 members initially appointed by the governor with the aid of a regional selection committee. Thereafter the board would be selected by a combination of six appointed by the governor and seven elected from state judicial districts.

The members of the state board of education would serve without salary. If enacted into law in 1972, the board would begin in January, 1973, in an advisory capacity and would assume all functions in 1975, when the term of the present state superintendent of public instruction expires. Passage of the legislation now would avoid last minute legislation and implementation in 1974, say the administrators.

The Lighter Side
by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There seems to be a consensus among political analysts that Sen. Edmund Muskie's decline as a presidential candidate was precipitated by the tears he shed in the snows of New Hampshire.

Perhaps this should serve as a warning to other office-seekers to refrain from lamentations as they move on to the remaining primaries. But not necessarily.

Muskie, apparently, cried for the wrong reason.

There was a feeling among the electorate that an article about Mrs. Muskie, which prompted the Senator's weeping, wasn't really all that distressing.

Had Muskie saved his tears for something the voters regarded as due cause for sobbing, he might still be in the van.

What politicians need, obviously, is some sort of guideline to help them determine the nation's emotional ceilings.

WHICH HEART-TUGS do the voters consider cry-worthy, and which merely warrant a catch in the voice or a doleful countenance?

Judging from the Muskie campaign, candidates are expected to accept unfattering articles about their spouses with a certain amount of equanimity. But what about attacks on their dogs?

Have attitudes changed since the late President Roosevelt shrugged off attacks quivering lip.

on himself and his family but publicly deplored defamation of his little dog Fala?

Seeing answers to such questions, I conducted a survey among a representative sampling of voters to ascertain what the MPE (Maximum Permissible Emotion) would be in four typical campaign situations.

For what it may be worth to Humphrey, McGovern, Jackson, Wallace, McCarthy, Chisholm, Mills, et al, here are my findings:

1. CANDIDATE MAKES nostalgic visit to childhood home, which is now a shopping center, and meets little old lady who was his seventh grade teacher. She demands to know why he hasn't turned in his English assignment.
2. Candidate visits Indian reservation and is made honorary member of tribe.
3. Candidate visits construction project and is given souvenir hard hat.
4. Candidate visits Chinese-German neighborhood and is urged to sample dish of sweet and sauer kraut.

MPE—Blowing nose to keep tears from welling in eyes.

MPE—Wiping away tears under pretext that something is lodged in eye.

MPE—Biting lower lip to fight back tears.

MPE—Turning face to wall to conceal

State Employment Service Hosts Veterans' Job Fair

The Illinois State Employment Service, in cooperation with the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, Governor Ogilvie's Jobs for Veterans Committee and other organizations interested in the plight of unemployed veterans, is hosting a Veterans' Job Fair — 1972, to be held at the International Amphitheatre at 42nd and Halsted streets.

The date of the job fair will be May 9 and 10 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. There will be free parking as well as refreshments for all who attend.

A massive effort on the part of the Illinois State Employment Service has resulted in the participation of over 800 employers ready to offer job openings to veterans who are unemployed and looking for work. The employers participating will be from suburban as well as Metropolitan Chicago Areas.

It is anticipated that thousands of job openings, covering the full gamut of occupations will be available to unemployed veterans. Available, also, will be opportunities for apprenticeship and training programs.

Veterans' Job Fair — 1972 will be the largest all-out effort ever conducted to promote employment of veterans.

Though geared to young men of the Vietnam Era, the job fair will be open to veterans of all previous conflicts.

The fair will be free of charge to both employers as well as veterans looking for work.

Mrs. Traficanto Named Hospital Top Employee

An Elk Grove Village woman, Mrs. John Traficanto, has been named "Employee of the Month" for May at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Mrs. Traficanto, RN, 310 Howard St., is assistant head nurse on the third-floor medical-surgical unit for the evening tour of duty.

A graduate of St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing in Chicago, she has a broad nursing background. Mrs. Traficanto has had experience in pediatric and medical-surgical nursing at St. Joseph Hospital and taught pediatric nursing there. She has also been head nurse of the men's floor at Oak Park Hospital, spent many years in private duty nursing and also worked at St. Benedict's Home for the Aged in Chicago.

The "Employee of the Month" is the mother of three sons, two of whom also are employed by the medical center. Sewing and cooking are the favorite pastimes of Mrs. Traficanto, a native of Hopkinsville, Ky.

Still Some Limitations For 'Under-21s'

Illinois has made a number of changes in its law that enhance the legal status of 18-year-olds, but there remain some important prohibitions affecting persons under 21, according to the Illinois State Bar Association.

By amending the law to permit 18-year-olds to vote in all state and local elections, Illinois has followed the lead of Congress, which approved a Constitutional amendment lowering voting age from 21 to 18 for presidential and congressional elections.

Beyond that, recent changes in Illinois law provide that the 18-year-old man, like the 18-year-old woman, shall be considered of "legal age" as this applies to the right to hold property, execute contracts and to remove himself from the parental home and control if he chooses to do so. The 18-year-old woman has had these rights for some time under Illinois law.

At the same time, Illinois lawmakers have left unchanged the old restrictions affecting marriage by a man under 21 and the sale of alcoholic beverages or the issuance of a driver's license.

Thus, even though a woman may marry at age 18 without parental consent, a man still must wait until he is 21 — although he may marry with parental consent at age 18.

ANY PERSON — male or female — who buys an alcoholic beverage in Illinois must be at least 21 years of age on penalty of a $50 fine, or jail term of 10 days to one year or both. And any driver's license application from an unmarried person under 21 must be accompanied by the signed consent of a parent. Moreover, withdrawal of consent means cancellation of the license.

The ISBA says some confusion has arisen because of an amendment to the Illinois Probate Act reducing legal age of men from 21 to 18 to be equal with that of women "for all purposes." Essentially, the ISBA says, the change means "for all purposes" of the Probate Act and even in that respect there is an exception, since the 18-year-old remains a minor as to gifts of cash, securities or insurance proceeds made to him under the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act.

The Probate amendment is not a blanket bestowal of all majority rights upon 18-year-olds as some people have believed, the ISBA says.

Finally, in the case of a divorce, the parent who is required to make payments for the support of a boy will find that this obligation may now be terminated at age 18, unless the child is continuing his education, in which case a court may order that the support be continued, perhaps including the expenses of applied to girls upon reaching age 18 but, previously, support payments for boys ordinarily continued to age 21.

HELP Seeks To Help American POWs

HELP, a newly created organization designed to assist in freeing the more than 1,600 Americans imprisoned or missing in Southeast Asia, will continue its campaign May 13 at Woodfield.

Composed of eight Hoffman Estates residents, the organization will sponsor three POW-MIA (Prisoner-of-War and Missing-in-Action) booths between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., explained Bruce Mason, 178 Jamison Lane in Hoffman Estates.

Mason is president of HELP, which describes its main goal is to keep the public aware that these men are still being held in bondage, even though the war has been winding down.

The booths will be located in front of the Just Pants Shop, the I. Miller shoe store and the Woodfield Camera Shop in the shopping center. The purpose of the booths will be to sell POW-MIA bracelets and bumper stickers and to solicit names for clemency and mercy petitions to be sent to Hanoi, North Vietnam.

THE BRACELETS, which include the name and rank of individual servicemen imprisoned or missing in Southeast Asia, are intended to constantly remind the wearer and the public that American men are still imprisoned.

The copper bracelets cost $3 and nickel bracelets are $2.50. The proceeds of all donations including bracelet and bumper sticker sales are forwarded to VIVA, a nonprofit student organization headquartered in Los Angeles. VIVA, in turn, uses the money to produce more bracelets, print and distribute literature and bumper stickers and other related POW material to the community and schools throughout the nation.

HELP describes itself as nonprofit and nonpolitical and says it welcomes participation from all concerned people. The club is not restricted to Hoffman Estates residents.

HELP also will sell bracelets by mail. Persons interested are asked to write a check out to HELP, including an extra 25 cents for mailing costs, and send it to HELP, P.O. Box 903, Arlington Heights.

Somebody Out There Must Like Guvnah George Wallace

by IRA BERKOW
(First in a Series.)

WITH WALLACE CAMPAIGN — They call it hippodromin' down where George Wallace comes from, but folks up North they not seen anything like it since the county fair.

Bunting on the auditorium balconies. A spangled and twangly five-piece band heatin' up the folks with "Y'all Come" and "Wabash Cannonball" and Billy Grammer of the Grand Ole Opry and Grandpa Jones of Hee Haw. The president of the Hard Hats of America on stage wearing an incongruous suit with his tiky hard hat. All 'em there to put in their two cents worth for the candidate.

This is a major part of the rallies for the presidential hopeful, "the honorable George Corley Wallace Jr., Guvnah of Alabama," as m.c. George Mangum, the burly, silvery-haired Baptist pastor from Selma, shouts, clapping and flapping his loose hands over his head like a seal.

Enter the sedately dressed but feisty Guvnah, carrying a notebook and a cause, short and bushy-browed, striding straight into the applause and stage lights bent on action, looking like Jimmy Cagney.

AND HE GIVES 'em all hell, all them pointy-headed pseudo-liberals who are teaching treason in the schools, all them social schemers in Washington who give our money away as fast as a mule eatin' briars, all them welfare chislers who take it, and all them "faceless and nameless" bureaucrats who walk in and out of big build'ns like ants and carry nothin' in their satchels but peanut-butter sandwiches.

Somebody must like all this, and liking it more than ever. George Wallace swept the Florida Democratic primary by carrying 42 per cent of the vote, and he was second in Wisconsin — a long way from home, geographically at least — behind Sen. McGovern but ahead of the favorite, Sen. Humphrey. And he was strong in the Pennsylvania and Massachusetts primaries.

Well, why not? He tells us also that our taxes should be lower, that we should watch out for the Russians and the Chinese and that our streets should be safe and our kids oughta be able to walk to a school where we can keep an eye on them, and not have them bused into some dark jungle of a neighborhood. He doesn't say race, but race is blatantly there.

Of course, he appeals to our fears and our prejudices. He does not appeal to our hopes. And perhaps that's because all too often there seems little hope. Hardly a one of us is happy with our lot. If we aren't broke in the pocket from over-taxation, we're broke in the head from a mugger's club. Not all those folks applauding him are wild-eyed reactionaries who see a Commie under every pink petal.

JOHN, the kindly, blind masseur at the LaCrosse, Wis., YMCA: "Not that I'm a Wallace man, but he makes enough of a stink about when other politicians shoulda done long time ago. I think that's what we need now. A good romper-stomper."

Larry Smith, a Culligan man, wearing a Wallace button and an intelligent look in his eyes: "I support him, but I sure as hell hope he doesn't make president. I want him to shake up the people in Washington. He's saying what a lot of us want to hear, even though we know he's oversimplifying things. One thing though, people have stopped taking him for a fool."

A judge in Nashville, after hearing Wallace address a joint session of the state legislature, tells a reporter: "Just what we wanted to hear. He can tell it just fahn."

A black woman named Janet, a student at the University of Wisconsin: "He says a lot of things that are true. And if I just listen to him and didn't know his history, I'd probably be for him."

Many, like Janet, know his history. He burst on the national scene in 1963 when he stood in the doorway of a University of Alabama building and refused, very temporarily, to allow his school to be integrated. Hippodromin' of the highest and most demagogic political degree.

They know that after he lost in 1968, in his first try for governor, that he said it would be the last time that he would allow an opponent to "out-nigger me." And in his 1962 inaugural speech, said "Segregation now. Segregation tomorrow. Segregation forever."

He has been supported by the Ku Klux Klan and the notorious White Citizens' Councils and by Gerald L. K. Smith, famed anti-Negro and anti-Semite, and has been denounced in the Alabama Senate as "a Hitler."

They also know that what he says he wants for the country isn't all that he has even got for his own state (and he has been governor in fact since 1963 — with four years in the not-so-behind-the-scenes when he ran his late wife, Lurleen, in his place because of the no-succession rule in Alabama).

"He talks about education," says a high school social science teacher from Coon Rapids, Minn., who came to Wisconsin to hear Wallace speak. "But his state has one of the worst educational systems in the country, second only to Arkansas, according to the National Education Association."

"I remember one kid who came to our school from Alabama. It took him two years to catch up to where the kids his age were in Coon Rapids. When he was a junior, he went back to Alabama. And they gave him a high school diploma. They said he had fulfilled all their requirements."

"BUT I'M watching those people applaud him. It shakes your faith in people."

And those who look into his history know that, though Wallace rails against the influence of "big government" in our lives, he has twisted arms in his home state. He cut off liquor advertising from papers critical of him (the Alabama whisky business is state-run). He has tried to browbeat educators into cutting off salaries if 63 per cent or more of students skip school — i.e., for purposes of protesting and marching.

And in the week before the Wisconsin primary, W. Guerry Pruett resigned as Alabama's highway director and said he didn't want to serve Gov. Wallace in any way because, it was reported, Pruett was disenchanted by Wallace's presidential campaign fund.

And so when he comes off a plane, two bearded students hold signs saying, "We want a president, not a dictator." Another wears a face covered with black caking.

Wallace has encountered his share of hecklers. He is undaunted. (Why, in Florida when he refused to debate John Lindsay, the mayor's supporters tossed a chicken in Wallace's path. Wallace, the unperturbed and consummate politician, bent and shook the leg of the chicken, to approving cackles from his own supporters.)

But now, at the airport, after answering the greeting reporters, he looks to the sign carriers for the first and only time and puts his fingers to his lips, as if to say, "Kiss it!"

Elk Grove Wins Team Honors In Barrington Test

Elk Grove showed off its considerable track strength outside the Herald area Saturday by romping impressively to first place in the 10-team, fourth annual Barrington Invitational.

In the process, the Grenadiers of coach Jim Wendler set two new meet records and carried home three first places. They tallied 73 points to 51 for second-place Dundee.

The records were by ace hurdler Frank Taucher with :14.9 in the 120-yard highs and the middle distance relay team of Jim Hickey, Jeff Schroeder, Scott Dorsey and Darnan Archbold with 3:39.6. The old record had been 3:42.4. The order of leg distances in this relay was 440, 220, 220 and 880.

The other first was by discus thrower Jim Leopardo with 152-7 1/2, his best effort of the spring and second best in the Herald area.

Taucher also took second in the 180-yard low hurdles in :20.1. His previous :19.9 is right behind teammate Dave Jensen (:19.7) in the area this spring. Jensen was third in the lows Saturday with :20.4. Taucher has the best time in the highs in this area so far, :14.7.

Randy Stenberg was third for Elk Grove in the high hurdles in :15.8.

Brian Powell placed twice in distances with fourth in the mile run (4:32.9) and third in the two-mile (9:40.2).

Other individual placers for the Grens in field events were Bill Butler with second in the high jump (6-0), Warren Jacobson with third in the same event (also 6-0), Schroeder with second in the long jump (20-3) and Bob Radzis with fourth in the discus (133-10).

The mile relay team took second and came up with the third best mark in the area this year with 3:33.1. Members were Jim Hickey, Schroeder, Archbold and Dorsey.

Another runner-up unit was the sprint medley group with 1:40.6 (legs were 110, 110, 220 and 440). These boys were Stenberg, Leopardo, Bill Butler and Harry Challenger.

Rounding out the points for Elk Grove were the two 880-yard relay teams, each of which finished fourth. The varsity quartet of Jensen, Taucher, Stenberg and Dorsey was timed in 1:34.9. The frosh-soph 880 boys — John Willard, Brian Walker, Mike Demarie and Harry Challenger, had 1:38.4.

Elk Grove will host Glenbard North in a Mid-Suburban League dual meet tomorrow at 4:30 and then participate in the 12-team Falcon Invitational at Forest View Friday night.

COUGAR CLEARS. Sophomore Rick Phillip of Conant flops over the high jump bar at 6-1 for a third place finish in the Class A event at the 40th Palatine Relay. Phillips equalled his season best in his specialty.

Topples Uncle Andy's For Men's Championship

Buick-In-Evanston Wins Again In Classic Bowling

THE WORLD OF sport will undergo many, many changes during the next 20 years. Some will be revolutionary, some minute.

The young stars of today will be on their last legs, making room for new faces, new achievements and new headlines.

KINGMAN HOME RUN KING
San Francisco, Calif. — Dave Kingman, a graduate of Prospect High School in Mount Prospect, Ill., surpassed both immortals Babe Ruth and Henry Aaron on the all-time home run list.

Kingman, completing his 22nd year of baseball with the San Francisco Giants, parked three circuit clouts out of Candlestick park to give him 716 for his career. Ruth has been pushed into third place with his 714 while Aaron owns second with 715.

The righthand slugger says this might be his last year in the big show, but he'd like to pad his total to ward off challenging Greg Luzinski who just planted his No. 700 last week. Greg, who grew up in Prospect Heights, is also finishing his 22nd year in the big leagues.

HIGH SCHOOL DYNASTY
Arlington Heights, Ill. — St. Viator High School, located about 20 miles northwest of Chicago, celebrated its 500th consecutive dual-meet golf triumph yesterday.

The incredible streak (a national record) which started over 23 years ago, reached the 500 perch when the Lions whipped Rolling 'Estates, a first-year school in the same area, 140-172.

Head coach Terry McDonald, who helped begin the skein during his playing days in the early '70's, was speechless after the verdict, expressing only that Viator's next goal would be 1,000!

AMBIDEXTROUS SOX HURLER IN HALL
Cooperstown, N.Y. — Legendary Wilber Wood, the rubber-armed right and lefthand knuckleball pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, has been voted to the Major League Baseball Hall of Fame.

The decision came as no surprise. Originally a righthander only, Wood learned to throw the knuckler lefty as well during the spring of 1978. He became the only man in the White Sox pitching rotation and bullpen and recorded his best year in 1980 when he went 120-42.

Wood retired five years ago, the minimum to become eligible for the Hall. His career totals include 1650 victories and 12 pennants for the Chi-Sox.

In appreciation for his many years of dedication, the White Sox management announced that his picture will appear on a mug during the next regularly-scheduled night home game.

VIDA: ACADEMY'S UNANIMOUS CHOICE
Tinseltown, Calif. — Vida Blue, who began his acting career some 20 years ago, was rewarded with a coveted Oscar for his leading role in "The Last Pitcher Show."

The movie, based on the best-selling novel by Jim Bouton, had Blue portraying a young southpaw pitcher for the Oakland Athletics. The theme of the flick centers around Blue's contract negotiation problems that eventually threaten to end what began as a brilliant career.

"Blue was perfect for the role," an Academy spokesman proclaimed after the decision.

Charles O. Finley also stole the script in the movie and won an Oscar for his role as best supporting actor. Accepting for Finley was the man who made the production possible—the Commissioner of Baseball, Alex Johnson.

JACK NOT MISSING TOUR BUCK
Columbus, O. — Jack Nicklaus, the Golden Bear of professional golf, is not feeling the effects of his retirement from the tour this year.

Speaking from his mansion in Columbus, the multi-billionaire said his newly-formed business venture "Master Jack" is booming. The firm sells green jackets.

HEAVYWEIGHT MATCH UP FOR GRABS
Normal, Ill. — Ever since girls were given the "okay" by the Illinois High School Association to participate in interscholastic sports back in 1975, several new schools have been put on the map.

Two more should gain prominence during the 1992 state high school wrestling championships tomorrow when Alice Bear and Bertha Quake vie for the heavyweight title.

Alice, a three-year letterwoman for Mat Town High, and Bertha, who pinned her way past the districts and sectionals while representing Half-Nelson High, are both undefeated this season. There are only five boys among the 24 finalists.

DISTANCE STARS. The Herald area made one of its strongest showings of the Palatine Relays in the two-mile run with four of the five places. Left to right were: Joe Sweeney (St. Viator), 9:40.5 for fourth place; Curt Ostby (Riverside-Brookfield), 9:32.8 for second; Jim Wise (Forest View), the winner with 9:31.4; Gary Marshak (Maine East), third with 9:39.4 and Mark Nugent (Fremd), fifth with 9:49.6.

'Y' Members Place In State Judo Meet

Fifteen members of the Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines won trophies in the recent State YMCA Judo Championships.

In the boys division, 9-year-old Philip Fermo from Mount Prospect won 2nd place in the 9 and 10 year old lightweight division. Steve Lindstrom, from Arlington Hts., won 2nd place in the 9 and 10 year old heavyweight group, while his brother Andy won the 1st place trophy in the 11 and 12 year old lightweight division. Paul Fermo earned 2nd place in the 11 and 12 year old heavyweight group. In the 13 and 14 year old lightweight division, Mike Prellberg from Highland Park placed 1st and Paul Furlong from Hoffman Estates placed 2nd. In the 13 and 14 year old heavyweight group, Dan Frellberg won 1st place, Pete Fermo won

It's tough to repeat as champion in any sport.

Everybody gets up a little higher, tries maybe a little bit harder, when facing the champs.

But no matter how hard they tried in the Paddock Classic Traveling League for 1971-72, the story was a repeat of 1970-71.

Buick-In-Evanston walked off with the grand championship.

Sure, it took the powerful Buick entry a rolloff this year to grab the top prize after sweeping both halves in 1970-71.

But even in the rolloff last weekend Buick was awesome.

With Russ Grosch rolling a booming 604 at Ten Pin Bowl on Saturday Buick swept seven straight points from Uncle Andy's.

Grosch opened at 233 and followed with a 246-215 combination to easy outdistance the other nine bowlers in the match.

That 246 keyed a 984 second game output, the highest by Buick in their march to the title and the real crusher for Uncle Andy's.

After a tense 944-904 opening victory for Buick, with Grosch firing a 233 for the winners and Joe Simonis a 209 and Don Eberl a 203 for the losers, the eventual champions had an easy time in the second game.

Grosch's big performance took the spotlight in a victory of over 160 pins, and although Uncle Andy's came back fighting to make it interesting in the third game, Buick had too much firepower.

Dick Kamin rolled a 225, Grosch a 215, and Ray Olson a 205 in that third game triumph while George Schmidt hit 215 and Mike Wagner 203 for Uncle Andy's.

In the windup Sunday at Striking Lanes Uncle Andy's finally crashed into the win column with 216s by Simonis and Eberl leading the way. They did gain the consolation of rolling a 996 in victory, the highest game by either team in the two day roll-off.

Fine team balance dictated for Buick-In-Evanston in the decisive finish with Ray Olson firing a steady 203 to lead the way in a 953-912 conquest.

It's tough to repeat as champion in any sport, but the group of Fred Hansen, Terry Herlihy, Dick Kamin, Russ Grosch, and Ray Olson turned the trick in style last weekend.

Hail the champs.

Pirate Golfers Continue Surge

Golf Editor

When you're hot, you're hot and that's exactly what the Palatine golf team is at the moment. Not only did the Pirates of Marc Denny out-shoot once-beaten Wheeling and twice-defeated Forest View, but they did it with a hole-in-one!

Pirate freshman Bob Capoun drilled an ace on the par 3, 109-yard sixth hole and then chipped in on the ninth for a birdie two in pacing Palatine to a fine round of 161.

Wheeling was a heartbeat away at 163 and as head coach Jack Berry lamented, "You can't beat (Capoun's) shooting like that." Forest View pulled up with a 171 and suffered a double setback.

Capoun's sharpshooting easily led to medalist honors as he solved Wheeling's Chevy Chase layout in a sparkling 33. Support came from 48's by John Lowergan and Jim Sobeyzynski while Dave Hafner cashed in a 43. Mike Long was fifth in 48 strokes.

The stunned Wildcats counted Chris Krolack's team-leading 40 and consistent 41's by Bob Winter, Mark Bull and Jack Kennedy toward their total of 163. Dave Melberg contributed a 43 as the 'Cats' fifth man.

Forest View soared to a 171 as Todd

McDonald showed the way with a 40. Dave Moody carded a 42, Gary Mayer a 44, Chuck Pelice a 45 and Mike March a 48 as the Falcons' MSL record leveled at 4-4. Palatine remains an eyelash behind unbeaten Prospect at 7-1 while Wheeling sank to 6-2.

In the frosh-soph derby, Forest View slammed a 179 to Palatine's 191 and Wheeling's 213.

ROLLING MEADOWS SWEEPS
Rolling Meadows made its second triumph of the season an emphatic one by blasting non-conference foe Stevenson on three different levels.

The varsity breezed home behind their best effort of the campaign in soundly humbling Stevenson, 175-191. Carl Schweikert's snappy 39 over Golden Acres was the key to the Mustangs' success.

Scott Werner and Tom Carlstrom each recorded 45's while Todd Sander notched a 51. Stevenson's counters came from Steve Miller's 43, Bruce Kaiser's 44, John Anderson's 50 and a 52 by Pat Tobin.

Meadows also conquered in the sophomore division, 200-257 as Steve Nicoloff signed a scorecard of 49. Ken Hatfield duplicated that feat for the Mustang freshmen who completed a sweep for the afternoon, 219-268.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the His & Hers Mixed League at Elk Grove Bowl, Tony DeRosa was high with a 666 series which included games of 250-213-203. Other top series were Arnie Goeddeke's 593, Mike Ballard's 583, his wife Carol Ballard's 580 and Earl Tate's 564.

Pete Santucci hit 558, Ralph Roller 555, Barb Goeddeke 488 and Lorraine Kastning 477. Newly elected officers for the coming year are Peter Santucci, president; Mike Ballard, vice-president; and Mary Ann Tate, secretary-treasurer.

Harper's Rambo Vaults To Two Marks

"It was probably as well as we've ever run in a relay collectively."

That was what a pleased Harper track coach Bob Nolan had to say about his team's showing in the Blackhawk Relays in Moline Saturday. No team scores were kept but Harper was unofficially second to host Blackhawk.

And in the process the Hawks came up with no less than five school records — four by relay units and one by pole vaulter Tom Rambo — plus a pair of meet records.

Rambo's outstanding 14-5½ vault had to be the highlight of the day for Harper. This smashed the school record he held of 14-0, also beat the meet record of 13-8 and was well above the 14-2 qualifying mark for the national finals.

The other meet record was by the 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay team of Tom Mason, Dan Wendell, Warren Larson and Rambo. They turned in a :60.3 compared to the meet record of :61.2 and the Harper record of :63.0.

The other three school records were as follows: The mile relay team was first in 3:26.0, breaking the old mark of 3:27.2. Members were Mason, Tom Simpson, Wendell and Larson with Simpson leading with :49.3 quarter-mile leg.

The distance medley unit also won a thrilling race in 10:52.3, as anchor man Pat Dunning made up an 85-yard deficit at the start of his leg and ran a 4:30 mile, nipping his man at the tape. The first three in order were Vince Weidner (440), John Geary (880), and Tom Klinker (three-quarters).

The other record was by the 888-yard relay which eddy enough finished third. Their time was 1:32.1, breaking the old Hawk standard of 1:33.0, by Mason, Wendell, Larson and Simpson.

There was one other winner for Harper

— Geary, who won the open mile run in a fine 4:26.5. Dunning was second in this event with 4:28.7. Both of these times were about 10 seconds faster than those runners' previous bests.

Dave Ohman was third in the discus throw with 126-11 and also tossed the javelin 144-2 without placing. Fred Beasley had 145-11 in the javelin (no place) and was fifth in the shot put.

Other points came on a pair of fourths in relays. The 440-yard unit ran :44.2 by Mason, Wendell, Larson and Simpson (sprinter Warren Allston was held out of this one because of a sore muscle).

The other fourth was by the mile spring medley team of Simpson, Jim Kistela, Klinker and Weidner with 3:46.5. Legs were 226, 220, 440 and 228.

Harper will host a quadrangular this Saturday, its last home meet of the season, against Kennedy King and Wright of Chicago plus Kishwaukee of DeKalb.

Meeting Thursday For Fishing Camp

Canada, here they come — again.

Plans are now under way for another fishing excursion by area boys to the popular Black Bear Lodge, located northwest of Red Lake, Ontario.

One trip is set for June 16, through June 26, and a meeting and film on the summer excursion will be shown in room A224 on Thursday, May 4, at 7:30 p.m. at Forest View High School.

Main organizers for District 214, excluding Hersey High School, are Dick Mudge (253-0804) and Dave Theesfeld (258-0088). The Hersey-directors are John Hangey (824-9578) and Bill Kopp (439-0935).

In District 211 the men to contact for additional information are Al Berman (358-5496), Charlie Feutz (529-1324), Merv Miller (FL 9-1669), and Gary Scholz (894-3354).

The entire cost of the trip is $150 per boy. This price includes the following:

1. Transportation to Black Bear Lodge and back (2,000 miles round trip.)
2. Lodging for nine days (including two nights en route).
3. Flight into and out of Black Bear

Lodge from Red Lake, Ontario.

4. Meals while at Black Bear Lodge.
5. Fishing License.
6. Boat, motor and fuel.
7. Transportation of fish home.
8. Accident and sickness insurance.

Black Bear Lodge is not a sport skill camp, and boys are free to spend their time as they wish.

Black Bear is located on Red Lake, approximately 30 miles northwest of the town of Red Lake, Ontario. Northern Pike, Walleye, and Lake Trout are three species of fish in the lake.

Black Bear Lodge is owned and operated by Walt Rundle, a teacher at Fenton High School. He has spent over 15 summers in the Red Lake area operating this type of camp.

Boys will be housed in log cabins, 8 to 12 boys to a cabin, and there is also a main lodge for eating and spending leisure time.

A typical day starts with sunrise between 5 and 6 a.m. Breakfast is at 8 a.m., lunch at 1 p.m. and dinner at 6 p.m. Shore lunches are provided for anyone desiring them.

The sun usually sets between 10 and 11 p.m., providing plenty of fishing time. A car caravan, with an adult driver in each car, will take the boys to Red Lake, Ontario, and then the boys and baggage will transfer to planes for a trip to Black Bear Lodge.

Applications are being accepted now, and questions may be directed to any of the camp organizers or presented at the May 4 meeting at Forest View.

Hersey Tops Arlington; Falcons Bump Grove

Mark Leonhard's masterful performance on the mound, coupled with an 11-hit bonanza, allowed Hersey to rebound with gusto over Arlington in a makeup tilt on the Hersey diamond Tuesday, 11-1.

The Huskies had been wiped out by the Cardinals 13-0 one day earlier at Arlington.

ton's field and a win yesterday would have just about assured Fran Sommers' unit of a North Division title in the Mid-Suburban League.

But after jumping into a quick 1-0 lead, the guests were bombarded by big bats of Leonhard, Dave Zare and Brad Smith and dropped back into a tie with Hersey in the North loop race.

Smith rapped out three hits and drove in four runs, Zare was two-for-four and tallied four times while Leonhard collected a trio of safeties. On the mound Leonhard shook off Arlington's quick blitz and allowed only one more hit over the next six innings, whiffing 11 en route for third triumph in four circuit decisions.

The opening Card run was produced with one out when Rick Kolari slammed a triple up the middle and trotted home on Russ Kirchoff's one base rip to right center.

Hersey knotted things right back up in the bottom of the first after Dave Zare had reached on a fielder's choice and advanced on Leonard's hit. A single by Smith brought him across.

In the third, Zare, Leonhard and Smith put back-to-back singles together to open the inning, and with a double steal sandwiched between, Smith's hit produced two more runs. Smith then scored on collision at home plate.

Zare scored again in the fourth to make it a 5-0 contest. He led off with a double and came across on Smith's third straight hit. The hosts put the game out of sight in the fifth as Pat Hart singled, Matt Loris walked, Pat Broderick walked and Alie Welchers singled home Hart.

Zare reached base again on a fielder's choice, sending in another runner and Leonhard's shot to center was miscued bringing two more men in.

Card starting twirler Jim Locascio absorbed the loss, his first setback in three verdicts.

PRYOR, MONROE BEAT GROVE

Mike Pryor's three-run homer broke up a tie in the fourth inning and Forest View, behind the curve ball artistry of Larry Monroe, beat visiting Elk Grove yesterday, 6-3.

Monroe's 11-strikeout, six-hit pitching helped lift the Falcons back into contention for the South Division title with a 3-1-1 record. The Grenadiers are now 1-3-1.

Forest View took charge in the first inning when Bill Milner doubled in Pryor who had walked. Milner also scored after two ground outs with Joe Dimaggio recording the RBI.

A double by Steve Schelten, a passed ball and an infield out by Dan Connolly made it 2-1.

The Falcons got one back in the bottom of the frame on a single by Craig Stiles an a run-scoring double by Monroe.

The Grenadiers, who fought the Falcons to a 2-2 tie on Friday, tied the game in the third. Rick Hauserman's ground rule double scored Bob Sronkoski. Bob Chen, who had reached on a fielder's choice and had moved to third on the two-bagger, tallied on a ground out by Scott Pruitt.

The winner's big rally came with two outs in the fourth, Bob Richter reached on a fielder's choice, Monroe hit an opposite field single and then Pryor hit what appeared to be a deep fly down the right field line. However, the gusty winds carried it just over the fence, 285 feet from home plate, for an opposite field homer.

Elk Grove tried to mount a last-ditch rally in the top of the seventh on a fielder's choice and single No. 2 by Tom Tringali with two outs. However, Forest View's sophomore ace hurler got the last man to ground out.

Jim Stewart was the starting pitcher. Jim Laing relieved him in the second and was tagged with the loss.

Zander Silences Prospect

Southpaw Craig Zander spun a nifty two-hitter and contributed two hits and two runs batted in as St. Viator blanked Prospect, 4-0 in a non-conference game yesterday.

The hard-throwing lefty brought his strikeout pitch to the park as 13 Knights eventually discovered. Zander struck out the side in the first and second innings while recording two in two others.

The Lions solved Prospect's Scott Grear for a run in the second on an error, a stolen base and Zander's RBI single up the middle. A two-out triple by Ken Martin preceded Joe Bombicino's shot through the box to make it 2-0 in the third.

Viator sent the final pair across in the sixth as Stan Bobowski and Frank Cliggett led off with singles, Jim Bucaro was hit by a pitch and Zander and Ed Collins were credited with sacrifice flies.

The Knights threatened in the first inning when an error, Val Graffiti's single to right and a walk jammed the bases with only one out, but Zander pitched out of danger with two whiffs.

After Steve Mahanna dragged out Prospect's only other hit on a bunt leading off the fourth, Zander knocked down 10 straight and 12 of 13 in finishing strong.

Grear was also impressive in limiting the hard-hitting Lions to just six safeties. Prospect's defense bailed him out of two potentially damaging innings with slick doubleplays. The righthander walked only one and fanned four.

The triumph boosted Viator's overall record to 10-3 while the defeat leveled Prospect at 5-5.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

THE GUY IN THE boat had done the right thing... and so had a dozen or so along the shoreline... they had taken a kid fishing.

Often, taking a kid fishing is merely an excuse some anglers think they need in order to justify going panfishing on purpose. And why there is any kind of stigma attached to swimming a worm in search of crappies, perch and bluegills is beyond me. But there is... and there shouldn't be.

Probably part of the reason for the snickers directed toward the bobber fisherman is based on the fact that he hasn't spent a lot of money for his outfit, he isn't working very hard and he isn't taking "tackle busters." And the guy doing the chuckling has spent a lot of money for his outfit, he is casting and working and changing lures... and he isn't taking any "tackle busters" either.

In both cases, however, the fisherman is probably to blame if he isn't catching fish. (How is it a golfer can have a bad day and blame himself... but put the same guy on the water and his lack of experience or practice becomes the fault of "the elements"?)

Nonetheless, panfishermen too often believe that they are indulging in the simplest of all sports... and that it is humanly impossible to do anything wrong.

Penalize yourself, if you must, but if you're going to take a kid fishing, be careful... do it correctly. For example:

Go panfishing with panfishing equipment. Use line and hooks and other accessories that are made for panfish. A Lake Michigan sized bobber, for instance, is like a signal flag to even the dumbest bluegill. Leave it home. Here are some other do's and don'ts that make fishing for the midwest's bread and butter fish a lot more productive:

1. Most important of all, sinkers or split shot have only one function — to counterbalance your bobber so that the slightest nibble carries it below the surface. Remember, your bobber should just barely hang at the surface!

2. Never put the split shot or sinker near the hook. The bait should drift down in the water naturally, not hang like a dead weight. Keeping the split shot up near the bobber will also keep fish from nibbling at that instead of the baited hook.

3. Don't believe that old malarkey about "the bigger the hook the bigger the fish." It's wrong! A long-shanked, light, thinwire 8 or 10 hook gives your bait better action and damages it less, so it lasts longer and is more lively. Fish usually inhale a bait without realizing the hook is there. This also applies to big bass and walleyes. Don't buy one of these mixed assortment of hooks, the hooks are invariably too thick. Buy a box of the size you want and remember... thin wire!

4. The lighter the line, the more strikes you'll have. You may not land every fish that strikes, but think of the fun of bragging about the one that got away.

5. Don't use a cable or wire leader unless you're fishing for muskies. (I don't even use one then, but some do.) Don't attach a hook to your line with a clip. Always tie your hook directly to the line. Leaders and snaps chase fish.

6. The largest bluegills and crappies are the smartest. They are the ones that nibble ever-so-lightly. The little ones stupidly suck up a bait without hesitation. So go back to Rule 1.

7. A small, thin hook should not be buried, or "hidden" in the bait. The more lightly a bait is hooked, the better, and the more fish it attracts.

8. The clearer the water, the lighter the line you should use. Panfishermen should never use anything heavier than 4 pound line... and 2 pound is better, particularly in clear water.

9. Move around. If you're fishing a lake or river or mill pond, it makes no difference, don't waste time at a spot where you're not catching fish... even if you or your Uncle John filled a bushel basket there last week. Many times too, the first fish you catch at a new spot is a big bluegill or crappie. That fish is often followed by a succession of increasingly smaller fish. When the fish start to get too small, you have to move again, because the "biggies" aren't there. If they were the little ones wouldn't be able to get at your bait.

Nite crawlers or angleworms are excellent panfish baits for most of the year (although right now a minnow would be a little better for crappies). For big panfish, bluegills, perch or crappies, cut the site crawler in half and run your hook into the broken end. If you're using an angleworm, hook it lightly, once, through the middle so both ends will wiggle.

Don't hook a nite crawler through the collar, if it doesn't look natural. Hook him just once through the tip of the heavy end.

Your equipment should include light or ultra-light equipment, 4 pound monofilament, a few small split shot, a small bobber, about the size of a nickel, and that thin hook tied directly to the line.

And don't fool around with any "wait and set" theories when you're bobber fishing. When the bobber disappears, set the hook and start enjoying your day.

Hersey Hosts Frosh-Soph Track Invite

Fifteen teams, including the entire Mid-Suburban League lineup, gather at Hersey this afternoon and evening for the second running of the Huskie Frosh-Soph Track Invitational.

Despite the fact that juniors and seniors aren't eligible for this one, the event promises to showcase some stand-out area cinder talent. Fremd, Forest View and the defending meet champs from Palatine as well as the host squad are all considered among the frontrunners for team honors this time, and year-old records in at least half a dozen of the events on tap are considered in serious jeopardy.

Action is scheduled to get underway with the field events at 4:30 p.m. The prelims to the running events will begin at 6 p.m. with the finals kicking off at 7 p.m. and finishing under the lights around 9 p.m.

In addition to the dozen conference entries, contingents will be on hand from Maine East, Maine West and Zion-Benton. Since these outfits are relatively unknown quantities, any one of them might threaten the MSL frontrunners for the top squad trophy.

In the long distance events, Jim Wise of the Falcons is almost a certainty to be the leader and he's considered a sure thing as well to crack the 9:45.9 record for the two-mile after turning in a 9:20 effort just last Friday at the Prospect Invite.

The meet mile mark is 4:32.2 and that is also in danger. Wise has been under 4:30 this season. He and Tom Burridge of the Huskies are the only known sub-ten minute two milers entered and in the mile race another member of the hosts — Ron Stephani — may be the Forest View flash's biggest threat.

Mike Rohr of Fremd heads up a wide open field in the half mile that has a number of entries who've gone under 2:04. Stephani could threaten here as well. In the quarter mile Chris Cooney of Hersey has turned a 52.3 already which is a full second under everyone else and just under the 52.3 meet standard.

The 100 and 220 dashes could go to any one. The Zee-Bees have one standout sprinter but he is anything but a shoo-in.

In the hurdles, Bill Klippert of the Warriors appears to be the class of the field and should have little trouble cracking at least the 15.6 meet mark for the highs. His chief opposition figures to be Glenbard North's Jay Maxwell.

The meet pole vault record of 12-4 could also crumble. Doug Paape of Conant and Doug Lindberg of the Pirates are both 12-footers with the most likely chance of cracking it. The high jump record of 5-9 on the other hand is almost sure to go, with either Rick Phillips of the Cougars or Rich Hammesfahr of Hersey (who just cleared 6-2 this past Monday) in line for honors.

Paul McCoslin heads up a long jump field shooting for a record of 20-8 1/2. McCoslin has bettered 20 feet but he's the only entry in this category.

The shot and discus marks are also vulnerable. Bob Racanelli of Maine East has a 142-foot discus toss to his credit this year and the meet record is only 128-4 1/2.

The shot put record could stay in the

A couple of closely contested meets and one romp highlighted area tennis play Monday afternoon.

Hersey and Conant enjoyed 3-2 victories while Rolling Meadows was stunned, 5-0.

Coach Lothar Peistrup's Huskies just squeaked by Ridgewood as the winners' lineup was sprinkled with substitutes. Two such players had a lot to do with Hersey's home court victory — John Hastings and Al Myers beat Dabe and Paradiso in second doubles, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Posting the other wins were Dave Schunk and the teams of Jeff Seeger and Guy Spinks. Schunk won third singles over Bob Peger, 6-3, 6-1. Seeger and Spinks stopped Start and McGowan, 6-1, 6-0.

Chuck Oldenburg lost to Ron Pertl in first singles, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4. Dean Muenzer, another substitute, dropped his second singles match to Stan Wawro, 7-5, 6-4.

Hersey also won the frosh-soph meet, 5-0.

The Cougars of Coach Roger McCoy decided the dual meet in singles play with three victories — Buddy Edmondson over Dave Walter, 6-3, 7-5; Marty Rohr over Ed Mayo, 6-0, 6-4; and Jim Michaels over Fred Lee, 6-3, 6-4.

Conant's first doubles team of Bruce

Koehler and Vince Kirby dropped 6-2 slams to Joe Kasper and Don Kasper. Eric Burseth and Chuck Evans lost to Erwin Froehlich and Gary Rathunde by 6-3 scores.

Elmwood Park reversed the varsity score to win the frosh-soph meet.

"We didn't quite expect to get beaten as bad as we did tonight," said Rolling Meadows coach Neal Peterson after visiting Lake Park won 5-0.

The Lancers, presently leading the Tri-County Conference, won all but one match in straight sets — Pat Norkett over Stan Hilly, 6-4, 6-4; Brian Arimura over Curt Anderson, 6-0, 6-1; Dwaine Hemmerle over Mark Shannon, 6-1, 5-7, 6-2; Marshalla and Dallas over Don Bohac and Larry Pressl, 6-4, 6-4; and Tierney and Dougherty over Paul Germano and Scott Sirogen, 6-0, 6-0.

The Mustang frosh-soph team also was blanked by Lake Park.

Top Tallying

The Indiana Pacers and the Virginia Squires have each scored 150 points in one playoff game to share the ABA record. The Pacers did it in 1969, beating Oakland, 150-122, while the Squires topped Kentucky, 150-137 in 1971.

Fremd Slams Meadows, 13-1

Everyone got in the act Monday as Fremd bombarded Rolling Meadows with 10 hits and capitalized on eight walks and five errors to trim the Mustangs 13-1 at Pioneer Park.

Doug Pettit picked up his fourth victory in five decisions while hurling a three-hitter at the hosts. He had a shutout going until the seventh frame when an interference call on his battery mate and brother Mark accounted for the lone Mustang tally.

The Vikings on the other hand had little trouble reaching the scoring column. After being blanked in the first stanza they sent runners around and in every inning afterwards, culminating the triumph with a six-run spurge in the seventh.

Mark Pettit opened the floodgates when he singled to lead off the second, advanced on a sacrifice and a single and scored on an error. In the third Terry Kukla walked and was driven home by Bill Peterson's base hit, and in the fourth inning Bob Burke walked and was pushed across by Doug Pettit's hit to make it a 3-0 contest.

John Slack socked a tape measure homerun to left center in the fifth inning. In the sixth three runs trotted across when Slack's bases loaded flyball was misgloved and Fremd sailed into the seventh with a comfortable 7-0 lead in tow.

Kevin Phelan opened the seventh by singling. Kukla then walked and both runners advanced on a free ball and then a wild pitch. Two more free passes ensued, loading the bases, and Mark Pettit then unloaded a triple to bring everyone home.

Pettit in turn was driven home on Slack's single and Slack in turn came in when Jene Bell ripped off a two-bagger. In the bottom of the seventh Len Link singled but was erased on Jack Lloyd's fielder's choice. A wild pitch moved Lloyd to third where he was awarded the plate on the interference call.

Pettit then resigned his eighth strikeout of the game to wrap things up for the visitors.

Rolling Meadows Takes 4th In Addison Trail Net Meet

Competing in their only quadrangular tennis meet of the season, the Mustangs of Rolling Meadows finished fourth at Addison Trail Saturday.

"On the varsity level we did quite well," said Mustang head coach Neal Peterson. "If they just took the varsity scores, we would have tied for second with St. Charles."

However, the hosting Blazers used the combined totals of varsity and frosh-soph action to compile the final standings. They figured out this way:

Maine East 26, Addison Trail 25, St. Charles 22 and Rolling Meadows 17.

The Mustangs had two champions despite finishing last — Mark Shannon in third singles and the doubles team of Don Bohac and Larry Pressl. This netted them six points.

Shannon's victories came like this — over Addison's Don Jarke, 10-1; over St. Charles' Mike Fitzsimmons, 10-7; and over Maine East's Ed Passen, 10-3.

Bohac and Pressl accumulated the other half dozen points for their three victories — over Maine East's Kitzman and Jensen, 10-4; over Addison's Puchalski and Neil, 10-0; and over St. Charles' Mulvey and Anderson, 10-2.

Curt Anderson accounted for the only other varsity points in second singles play. Anderson beat Maine's Jerry Zimmerman, 13-11. Prior to that victory, he lost his opening round to St. Charles, 10-7, and the last round to Addison, 14-6.

The frosh-soph team got three more precious markers — Jim Peterson in first singles, Bob Herman in second singles and Randy Fredericksen and Greg Nykiel in second doubles.

Other varsity performers who lost in the round robin meet from Meadows were Stan Hilty in first singles and the doubles team of Scott Skogen and Paul Germano. Hilty bowed out in this way — 10-4 to Maine East, 10-0 to Addison Trail and 10-5 to St. Charles. The Mustang duo dropped these decisions — 10-5 to St. Charles, 10-3 to Maine East and 10-3 to Addison Trail.

Early Registration Set By Hoffman Association

The Hoffman Estates Athletic Association will hold an earlier registration this year for fall football in order to allow more boys and girls to participate.

The final sign-up, which will be held this Saturday, is very important since the HEAA needs to determine how many teams to field and order the necessary new uniforms as soon as possible. About three months are needed for delivery of the best quality equipment.

Registration will be held at the Park District Vogeley Barn from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. May 6.

There will be a $2 entry and registration fee for all players which is not refundable. This will be used to purchase mouthguards and other safety equipment for tryouts. Other registration fees will not be due until the season begins.

All players must bring birth certificates to sign up.

The Pee Wee Division will be for eight-to-10-year-olds up to 85 pounds, Widgets (Commandos) for 11 and 12-year-olds up to 105 pounds, the Raiders team for 12 and 13-year-olds up to 125 pounds and Open Weight Division for 13-to-15-year-olds over 126 pounds.

The Open Weight team will compete in the George Halas Traveling League.

The HEAA will also take registrations for cheerleaders who may participate in the Fourth of July parade and summer football rally. Cheerleaders will pay no fees at this time.

Any questions regarding the football program should be directed toward Pee Wee Commissioner Bob Cavish at 529-2946, Widget Commissioner Dave Mills at 529-3803 or Commando, Raider and Open Weight Commissioner Les Brown at 885-8799.

Hawk Netmen Post 7-0 Shutouts

Harper College's tennis team should go into the whitewashing business because the Hawks would be good at it.

In two dual meets last week, Coach Roy Kearns' young men registered their fifth and sixth shutouts of the season. This boosted their overall record to 7-2 and left them 5-0 in the Skyway Conference.

The latest SC victory came over Waukegan, 7-0. Playing pro sets, here was how Harper romped:

Bruce Holland over John Day, 10-2; Bill Hitzeman over Rich Wamsley, 10-2; Paul Stevens over Al Smith, 10-2; Randy

Fischer over Save Salva, 10-0; Hitzeman-Stevens over Dwy-Wamsley, 10-1; Holland-Fischer over Smith-Silva, 10-0; and Steve Marresso and Tom Leahy over Nelson-Lukowski, 10-0.

Earlier in the week, the Hawks hammered Oakton, 7-0. The action went this way:

Holland over Jeff Nelson, 10-2; Hitzeman over Larry Doepp, 10-0; Stevens over Steve Pauli, 10-2; Steve Cohen over Kevin Kelly, 10-2; Hitzeman-Stevens over Nelson-Doepp, 10-2; Holland-Fischer over Pauli-Kelly, 10-1; and Marresso-Cohen over Jarvis-Duffy, 10-1.

Saxons' Triumph A Wild Affair

They don't come much wilder than Monday's Mid-Suburban League baseball game between Schaumburg and Conant.

Schaumburg finally pulled out an 11-5 decision in 10 innings in a game that lasted three and a quarter hours.

There were 26 hits, 15 by Schaumburg, which not only scored the first run off Conant's Bill Artus this year in 23 innings but also knocked him out in four innings.

Chet Pudlosky did a fine relief job for six innings but was the loser on five unearned runs, all after a two-out error.

Ken Gast was outstanding, going the full 10 innings for the victory.

The game also had eight errors and six extra base hits, including a pair of round-trippers by Steve Hull, and a triple play AFTER Schaumburg had scored three runs in the second.

Rich Kuchina and Hull each had three hits for Schaumburg as did Gary Pemberton of Conant.

With the victory Schaumburg closed to within a half game of Conant in the South Division. Prospect is virtually tied for first at 4-2. Conant stood 3-1 after Monday and Schaumburg 3-2.

Ordinance No. 514-1972

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING A VARIATION OF THE ZONING ORDINANCE SET FORTH IN ARTICLE IX, SECTION 9.1 (22) OF THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE VILLAGE OF HOFFMAN ESTATES, ILLINOIS

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Hoffman Estates, at a public meeting duly called and held according to law, considered the question of granting a variation to Multiton Properties, Inc. of Article IX, Section 9.1 (22) of the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Hoffman Estates; and

WHEREAS, The President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Hoffman Estates, having considered the recommendation of said Zoning Board of Appeals, find and believe to be in the best interests of the Village that a variation of said ordinance be granted.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED, by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Hoffman Estates, Cook County, Illinois, as follows:

Section 1: That there be granted a variation to Multiton Properties, Inc. of Article IX, Section 9.1 (22) of the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Hoffman Estates, permitting the construction of a building on the property of Multiton Properties, Inc. by thirty foot billboard between Higgins Rd. and Shorefield Road, on the west side of Barrington Road, subject to the following conditions:

1. That the permit issued for the erection of said sign shall be for a period of not more than two years.

2. That the sign be located at least 200 feet from the corner of Higgins and Barrington Roads.

3. That the sign show the permit number, date of permit, and date of expiration.

Ordinance No. 50

AN ORDINANCE PERTAINING TO THE TRANSFER OF CERTAIN FUNDS WITHIN THE 1972-73 FISCAL YEAR

WHEREAS, the Board of Park Commissioners of the Hoffman Estates Park District has determined a need to transfer certain funds within the appropriation ordinance made for the year 1971-72, and

WHEREAS, Section 4.4 of the Park District Code provides that after the first 6 months of any fiscal year have elapsed, the Board may, by 2/3 vote, transfer from any appropriation item its anticipated unexpended funds to any other of the items of appropriation theretofore made, therefore,

BE IT ORDAINED, BY THE BOARD OF PARK COMMISSIONERS OF THE HOFFMAN ESTATES PARK DISTRICT:

SECTION 1. That on April 18th, such date being of the 11th month of the fiscal year, $317.54 in appropriation item L-15.1, heretofore made, and now anticipated unexpended, be transferred to appropriation item L-11.2, thereby increasing the said item by the amount so transferred.

SECTION 2. That on April 18th, such date being of the 11th month of the fiscal year, $3,616.11 in appropriation item L-10.1, heretofore made, and now anticipated unexpended, be transferred to appropriation item L-1.3, thereby increasing the said item by the amount so transferred.

SECTION 3. That on April 18th, such date being of the 11th month of the fiscal year, $1,336.69 in appropriation item L-10.1, heretofore made, and now anticipated unexpended, be transferred to appropriation item L-3, thereby increasing the said item by the amount so transferred.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance in conflict with or inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed and that this ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage and approval according to law.

SECTION 5. That this ordinance is hereby directed to be printed and published in pamphlet form by order of the Board of Commissioners.

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 6, DEFECTIVE SEWERS, OF ARTICLE II, OF ORDINANCE NO. 51-1955

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED, by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Hoffman Estates, as follows:

Section 1: That Section 6, Defective Sewers, of Article II of Ordinance No. 51-1955, be amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 6. Defective Sewers. Whenever a sanitary building sewer, or drain thereto, is obstructed, or is found to be broken or defective so that sewerage or drainage escapes into surrounding soil, or into adjacent premises, repair or replacement may be ordered by the Waterworks and Sewerage Department. Repair required on sewer lines to the property line of the homeowner must be made at the expense of the homeowner or person in control of such property. Certified reports must be filed by an accredited plumbing concern to the effect that the blockage is beyond the homeowner's responsibility before the Village will take over and pay for additional work on said sewers. All rodding of the sanitary building sewer shall be at the expense of the owner or the person in control of such property."

Section 2: Any person, firm or corporation who violates this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than $10.00 nor more than $300.00.

It's Easy To Write A Good WANT AD!

Lots of people get confused when it comes to writing a Want Ad. Do you? If so, here are a few simple rules to make ad writing easy. A good ad is just conversation in print. So when you're preparing to place an ad, just write it the way you'd tell your neighbor about it.

Why Leave Them Guessing?

What do you want to sell or buy? If it's an appliance, what's the brand? What's the size or capacity? Model? Year? Any accessories included? Does it need repair, or is it ready to use? Now put yourself in the buyer's position. If you were reading this ad, what would you like to know? Price? By all means, put that in. In nearly every ad, price is the most important information missing? If so, fill in those blanks, too. All clear, now. OK, just a few more little points.

Ordering Is Easy

Just write the Herald Classified Department or come in and see us at 114 West Campbell, Arlington Heights.

Don't Cut Off Your Own Nose

Once the ad has been completed, read it over. It's time to eliminate a word here and there, but don't "edit" it to the point where the reader may have to guess at the meaning. You might save a few pennies and lose dollars in results.

The Heck With It

If any of this seems complicated don't lose your grip. You can still place your ad. Just pick up your telephone and dial 394-2400. We have 8 lines to serve you, with an experienced ad writer on each one waiting to help you.

Ogilvie Rejects Cloverleaf At Biesterfield Rd.

Construction of a full cloverleaf interchange at Interstate 90 and Biesterfield Road, as urged by the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees, would not "appear to be in the best interest of the motoring public," according to Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

Ogilvie made the statement in a letter to Elk Grove Village Clerk Richard McGrevera, in response to a letter stating the village's opinion that such an interchange be constructed.

In his letter, Ogilvie noted that the Illinois Department of Transportation has no plans for an interchange.

"It is my understanding the spacing between the proposed interchange at Thorndale Road and the facility you have requested for Biesterfield Road is not sufficient to permit proper signing of both interchanges," Ogilvie wrote. "This would create unwarranted congestion on the major traffic lanes."

Ogilvie also wrote that another interchange would create unsafe conditions on the interstate highway, the remainder of which is scheduled to be opened by September.

"With the safety factor in mind, it would not appear to be in the best interest of the motoring public to provide an interchange at Biesterfield Road which would essentially serve traffic of a local nature."

Village Pres. Charles Zetek said he was planning to direct a letter back to Ogilvie, pointing out the reasons the village believes the interchange is needed.

Ogilvie's letter confirmed statements made in March by an Illinois Highway Department official casting doubt on the chances for such an interchange. The official, Henry Yamanaka of the planning division of the department, said there were no plans for such an interchange, which would put the number of interchanges on the highway over the limit recommended by the federal government.

Elk Grove Village officials approved a resolution in March urging county, state and federal governments and highway agencies to construct the interchange. The village based its recommendation on a report compiled by Edwin Thomas, a University of Illinois professor.

Thomas urged construction of the interchange "to ameliorate or eliminate problems stemming from the development of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve."

Commuter Confusion On Tollway

Commuter confusion marked the first day of a three-month construction project on the Northwest Tollway yesterday, as early-morning drivers found unmarked median crossovers and speed limits not posted.

Michael Hartigan, tollway assistant chief engineer, acknowledged commuters encountered "confusion entering certain areas" but said all of the proper signs should be posted for today's drivers.

A number of tollway incidents were reported to police, including construction workers walking off the job because of erratic drivers near O'Hare Airport, Hartigan said. "Several tickets were issued to subjects driving through medians and proceeding on lanes where workmen were located," said State Police Lt. William Burt.

There was one major accident on the Tri-State Tollway, which is also under construction, that stalled traffic for miles. Hartigan said a semi-truck jackknifed and blocked the entire roadway at 11 a.m. and stopped all traffic flow for a short time.

Tollway officials said last night that "traffic was lighter on the Northwest Tollway than expected" attributing it to "people taking other means of transportation and alternate routes." However, a Chicago and North Western Rwy. spokesman said no noticeable increase in passengers was noted yesterday.

There was a 2½-mile traffic jam on the Tri-State Tollway south of O'Hare Airport yesterday during the morning rush hour.

CONSTRUCTION ON the tollways yesterday consisted primarily of crushing concrete and work on bridges.

A tollway spokesman said he encourages drivers today "to begin their travels earlier" to avoid a possible 20 to 30-minute delay due to the barricaded lanes.

Two lanes in both directions are open to traffic with eastbound drivers crossing over to the inner lane of the opposite roadway.

Although speed limit signs were not posted yesterday, there is a 40 mile-an-hour limit through all construction zones.

The two simultaneous highway construction projects include 11 miles on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways. Northwest Tollway construction begins at the Kennedy Expressway junction and goes west to Meacham Road near Schaumburg. The Tri-State work runs from Ogden Avenue to the Northwest Tollway.

The $6.5 million projects will be completed by Aug. 1, according to tollway officials. The highways will be resurfaced as well as bridge repairs and lane striping.

2 Workmen Hurt On Walden Job

The injury of two workmen and the theft of a $1,300 silverware set were both reported Monday at Schaumburg's Walden development, Algonquin and Meacham roads.

The two construction workers, John Rosanowicz, 52 and Anthony Brazulla, 29, both of Chicago, were injured while working on the first floor of a motel being built at Walden. A large wooden beam dropped from the second floor striking both men, Schaumburg police said.

Neil Armstrong Here To Speak To Alexian Unit

The first man on the moon, former astronaut Neil Armstrong, will be the featured guest this evening at the annual spring benefit dinner of the Alexian Associates, a group of community leaders supporting the health care programs of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Armstrong will discuss "Change in the Space Age" at the dinner, to be held at the Itasca Country Club in Itasca.

Prior to the dinner, Armstrong, now a professor of engineering at the University of Cincinnati, will tour the Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Armstrong was selected as an astronaut by NASA in 1962. He served as backup command pilot for the Gemini 5 flight and performed the first successful docking of two vehicles in space in 1966 as command pilot for the Gemini 8 mission.

As spacecraft commander for Apollo 11, the first manned lunar landing mission, Armstrong in July, 1969, became the first man to land a craft on the moon and the first to step on its surface.

An Elk Grove Village woman may be more careful the next time she tries to sell a car, after having her car stolen this week by a would-be buyer.

Pre-Freeze Policy Reinstated

Schools To Charge $10.75 For Books

Each first through eighth grade student in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 schools will pay a textbook fee of about $10.75 next year, according to a school board decision Monday.

The Dist. 59 Board of Education voted to equally assess the cost of textbooks between the more than 10,000 elementary and junior high school students in the district.

Supt. James Erviti estimated this would mean some $120,000 available for books with the $10.75 fee.

There is no book fee for kindergarten children.

The board's action reinstated a policy approved last summer that each student pay his share of the textbook expenditures. The policy was suspended Aug. 15 due to the federal wage-price freeze.

Instead, this past year a $10 textbook fee was charged each pupil with a maximum of two children per family paying the fee.

BOARD MEMBER Sharrie Hilbrandt opposed the prorated textbook fees, saying books belong in the education fund.

"I feel that textbooks are a germane part of the education of our children," she said. "They are not a frill; they belong in the educational fund."

Erviti told the board that textbook fees could not be eliminated without a referendum.

The school board also voted to charge students participating in the district's "pay bus" program part of the transportation cost. Students living more than eight-tenths mile and less than 1½ mile may choose to ride a school bus on payment of a transportation fee. Transportation is provided at no cost to students living more than 1½ miles from the school.

Under the board's policy, 50 per cent of the average cost of bus transportation would be charged each student.

This year a $25 fee was charged each student riding the "pay bus" up to three children in a family.

J. Edgar Hoover, who built the FBI into one of the world's most renowned crime-fighting organizations, died in his sleep at age 77. (Background story on Page 6.)

Evidence of the crossover vote Gov. George C. Wallace hoped would carry him to victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in Indiana failed to materialize in early returns. . . . In Ohio, Humphrey's head-to-head clash with Sen. George S. McGovern was marred by charges of voting machine tampering.

An FBI agent said the government used a wiretap to gather evidence against the Harrisburg Seven, but he insisted the bugged conversations never were used in the government's case. Attorneys for the Rev. Philip Berrigan con-

The FBI said it arrested a United Mine Workers official from Middlesboro, Ky. — Albert E. Pass, 51 — in connection with the murders of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

The State

The Illinois Senate turned back an attempt to revive a bill that would lower the legal drinking age in the state to 18. The bill, which was rejected last week by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would have allowed 18-year-olds to buy beer, wine and malt liquor.

Federal and state officials assisted authorities in Madison, Ill., investigating the cause of an explosion that destroyed four homes, injured 20 persons and sent debris over a wide area. Investigators said it may have been triggered by a gas leak.

Honeywell Used Illegal Ads To Replace Strikers: Union

The United Electrical Union Local 1114 has charged Honeywell Inc. management with using illegal advertisements in seeking temporary employees at the Arlington Heights plant.

The union, which has been on strike for nine weeks at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd., alleges advertisements were placed in local newspapers without indicating the union was on strike. Union Atty. Irving Meyers said yesterday that failure to reveal the strike is in violation of state statutes.

Management and union officials will attend a hearing on the matter this morning at the office of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan in Chicago.

"We want to stop the violation," Meyers said, adding that conviction of the alleged offense carries a $100 to $300 fine for each advertisement.

While the hearing is held in Chicago, another attempt will be made by federal mediators to resolve the strike at a conciliation session.

HOWEVER, UNION officials said yesterday that chances for settlement are dim, unless the present deadlock is broken. "We're just as far apart as when we started," said Don Cameron, chief union steward.

Honeywell spokesman Tony Bartolini

said "the only encouraging thing is that we are still meeting."

More than 550 union workers walked off the job March 3, after the union turned down a two-year contract offer alleging inadequate fringe benefits.

Michael Karpis, union business manager, reiterated the union demands yesterday. He said major grievances in the contract are "over inequities in fringe benefits and job classifications" as well as lack of full vacation benefits for returning veterans.

Temporary workers have been hired to replace the strikers, Honeywell officials said, so that production can be resumed. Management reports that all manufacturing commitments are being met even though the strike continues.

The Arlington Heights firm produces temperature controls and building automation systems for large buildings.

Homeowners Want 'Teeth' In Condominium Bill

by NANCY COWGER

The condominium truth-in-selling bill will not die in committee, or be passed into law without any teeth, if two officers of the Barrington Square Homeowners Association have anything to say about it.

The two, Robin Berglund and Jay O'Toole, have offered to "speak their piece" in favor of a strong bill in testimony in Springfield. They also are willing to try to mobilize other condominium owners and owners associations to work in support of the bill, if need be.

The bill, now pending in the Illinois House of Representatives Judiciary Committee, has been offered an amendment by the Illinois Home Builders Association. The association's lobbyist in Springfield, Jerry Campbell, has agreed the amendment he proposed could kill the effectiveness of the bill which grew from complaints by condominium purchasers in Hoffman Estates.

RICHARD REGAN, Hoffman Estates Plan Commission chairman, worked with Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, in drafting the bill after receiving numerous complaints in his plan commission capacity.

The bill, if passed as originally proposed, would require condominium sellers to disclose full information about expenses, responsibilities and privileges connected with condominium ownership before closing a sale. The sellers would have to present the information in writing to prospective buyers.

The home builders amendment, introduced in the committee by Rep. Bradley Glass, R-1st, would add a clause that in effect would mean the sellers could list areas in which they would not make disclosure, thereby exempting themselves from the bill's provisions.

Berglund and O'Toole approached Regan last week, after reading about the proposed amendment, and offered to testify in favor of the bill as originally proposed.

"THE WAY WE LEFT it with Dick (Regan) was if he wanted us to come along and testify at any time, we would do this," said Berglund.

Berglund said he and O'Toole made the offer because "some of our members have bought houses assuming something would be true, and later found out it wasn't."

But Berglund emphasized there was "no deliberate misrepresentation on the part of Kaufman and Broad (builder of the development). They take great pains to make sure their houses are sold on the up and up," said Berglund.

The problem stems from salesmen who "have gone overboard" to make sales to earn commissions in some situations, Berglund said. "There have been some very deliberate misrepresentations on the part of the salesmen. Many salesmen are largely transient, and just have no allegiance to the company or what it's trying to do."

They are just out to make a buck he said, adding his comment applies to "maybe 25 per cent of them."

BERGLUND SAID HE was speaking as a member of the executive board of the association, a position he and O'Toole both hold. If they testify, it will be as homeowners association board members, supporting their stand, said Berglund.

"I would be speaking as a board member representing what I think my constituency would think," said Berglund. And while the board includes five company officials and only two purchasers, he thinks the entire group would back him.

Berglund also said he would willingly contact other condominium homeowners group to enlist their support as well.

"I'm willing to do whatever he (Regan) thinks needs to be done. I think he's on the right track."

Blood Sought For Teacher Who Faces Kidney Surgery

Blood is needed for Gerald Cody, 27, a teacher in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 who faces removal of both kidneys and an eventual kidney transplant.

Cody, a fourth grade teacher at Schaumburg Elementary School, has undergone intensive kidney dialysis treatment for the past four weeks.

Surgery scheduled for this week has been temporarily postponed.

Billings Hospital, where the surgery and transplant will be done, is now accepting blood donors in Cody's name and he is scheduled to enter Billings late this week for tests.

Anyone interested in donating blood in his name may do so at any hospital. It is necessary, however, that all donations are accompanied by the following information:

Donations should be stated as being made in behalf of Gerald Cody, at the dialysis department of Billings Hospital, at the University of Chicago Hospitals and Clinics in Chicago.

His mother said her son must undergo three five hour sessions a week on the dialysis machine.

His sister, Sharon, 31, who lives with her parents in Chicago, will give one of her kidneys to Gerald, said his mother.

She added that her son has lost little time from school during his illness doctors say is glomerulo nephritis.

Cody is past president of the Schaumburg Education Association and presently an active member.

District 54 secretary Betty Helsper said the district is also planning an areawide blood drive to be held in one of the schools. The date is to be announced shortly.

The district has also established a cash fund at the Schaumburg State Bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg, in Cody's name to help defray expenses of surgery and dialysis treatment.

Cody, formerly of Chicago, has lived in Schaumburg the past four years with Mrs. Helsper's mother, Mrs. Walter Ellis.

Park District OKs $658,200 Appropriations

The Elk Grove Park District Board passed a $658,200 appropriations ordinance for the coming fiscal year, at a special meeting following a public hearing Monday night.

The appropriations ordinance lists anticipated expenditures of the district in the coming year.

The ordinance includes $229,700 in the general fund for administrative costs, salaries and operating expenditures. Another $271,100 in the recreation fund would be designated for programs and recreation personnel salaries.

The remaining $157,400 would be used for bonds and interest, retirement fund, liability insurance and audit expenses.

Parks director Jack Claes said the appropriation ordinance, which was based on an estimated assessed valuation of $228 million, will be used to compute the park district's total tax levy.

Subtracting swimming pool and concession stand revenues from the expenditures in the appropriations ordinance leaves the amount of money that will have to be supplied with taxes.

According to the new appropriations ordinance, the tax levy would be $558,750.

Area Teens Join Sunday Walkathon

Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg teens are joining other Northwest suburban teens Sunday in a March of Dimes Students Walkathon.

Registration for the 17-mile trek that begins and ends at Conant High School in Hoffman Estates is being accepted now by the March of Dimes, Metropolitan Chicago Chapter at 173 West Madison St., Chicago.

Students may obtain registration cards and pledge cards at school and register there, or by contacting the student walkathon headquarters directly at 629-1504.

Participants in the walkathon obtain donations from sponsors for each mile walked along the walk route. Sponsors may pledge from 10 cents to $500 per mile that the individual completes. During the walkathon walkers pass checkpoints and have their cards validated to indicate distance walked.

After the walkathon the verified cards are presented to sponsors to collect pledges.

The money raised goes to March of Dimes programs of birth defects prevention including research, public, professional education and community service.

ANYONE INTERESTED in walking or sponsoring a walker in the walkathon may contact the headquarters or request information from Conant or Schaumburg High Schools.

Conant High is at 700 E. Cougar Trail, off Plum Grove Road. Walkers are urged to register before May 7, however, registrations will also be accepted at Conant on the morning of the march.

The march starts at 11 a.m. with the route planned as follows:

Starting at Conant the marchers will go south on Plum Grove Road to Schaumburg Road, east on Schaumburg Road to Meacham Road, south on Meacham Road to Nerge, west on Nerge to Springinguth, north on Springinguth to Schaumburg Road, east on Schaumburg Road to Illinois Boulevard, north and northeast on Illinois Boulevard to Evans-ton Street, north on Evanston Street following route signs to lead walkers east to Plum Grove Road, south on Plum Grove Road back to Conant High.

First aid personnel will accompany the marchers and police protection will be provided at busy intersections.

Rosary Students In Spelling, Math Tests

Three Queen of the Rosary Catholic School students from Elk Grove Village will participate this weekend in the spelling and math competitions sponsored by the Catholic Archdiocesan Teachers Association.

The three, Kieren Rudden, James Kinn and Janet Barrow, won first places for their grades in the contest held by the Northwest Council of 13 Catholic Schools.

Kieren won the award in the fourth grade spelling contest, James in fourth grade math and Janet in second grade math. Second place winners were Joseph Lassa, third grade spelling, and David Milton, fifth grade spelling.

Queen Of The Rosary Tuition Boost To Be Asked

A tuition hike will be proposed by the parish board of education at Queen of the Rosary Catholic Elementary School in Elk Grove Village, Patricia Clifford, school board president, said yesterday.

Mrs. Clifford said the board decided at a meeting Monday night that an increase in tuition was needed because of a rise in the cost of living. However, she said the amount of the increase has not yet been determined.

She said any tuition proposal must go to the parents of the children for a vote.

"As yet we have no definite figures for tuition," she said. "We'll go over the budget in the next couple of weeks and come up with a tuition proposal."

She said there will be a meeting of parents of school children at 8:30 p.m. May 15 at the school, 680 E. Elk Grove Blvd., for a vote on the board's proposal.

Currently some 900 children attend grades one through eight at the school, the only private school in the village.

Sister Mary Edward, school principal, has said tuition for this year was $144 for one child and $196 for two or more children. She said registration for next year is in progress and it was hard to tell if there will be an increase in enrollment.

Several other private schools in the area have raised tuition fees for the coming year.

Well, Main And Dredging

Village Board Announces Plans For Water Projects

Plans to undertake three major water projects in the coming year were announced by the Wheeling Village Board Monday.

The board directed various village employees to begin plans and acquire cost estimates for a new well, a new section of water main and a widening and dredging project on the Wheeling drainage ditch.

The new well, which Trustee Michael Valenza said will cost the village more than $600,000 would serve the southwest area of the village currently being developed with new multi-family apartment, townhouse and condominium projects.

The board directed Village Mgr. George Passolt and Public Works Director Larry Oppenheimer to draw up preliminary specifications for the new well and to get estimated construction cost figures.

THE WORK ON the Wheeling drainage ditch, which will be partially paid for by the state, will include the area from the north end of Heritage Park south to where the ditch passes under Wolf Road.

The board directed Passolt to have Harza Engineering, the village's consulting engineer on flood control, draw up preliminary sketches for the work on the ditch.

Trustee William Hein, who heads the board's sewer, water and public health committee, said that the village already has the easements for that portion of the ditch widening.

The village eventually hopes to work on improving the ditch all the way to the Des Plaines River, but does not have easements for some of the area outside of the village limits.

In addition to sketches, the board asked for cost estimates on the ditch work.

VILLAGE PRES. Ted C. Scanlon questioned Passolt about why the work wasn't starting at Dundee Road instead of in northern Heritage Park.

Scanlon explained that he was afraid if the work did not extend to the bridge outlet on the south side of Dundee Road the area adjacent to St. Joseph the Worker School would still flood.

The Wheeling Athletic Association recently built five new baseball diamonds on property next to the school.

Passolt told Scanlon the major problem area was from northern Heritage Park south to the river. He pointed out that funds for the work are limited.

SCANLON THEN agreed to yield to an earlier motion asking for the work to begin at northern Heritage Park, but asked to have Harza check on the possibility of starting at the south side of Dundee Road.

Board members were critical of Harza because of problems the village has had with completed work on the flood control program. But they noted the village would lose between 90 and 120 days in changing engineers. "We have no choice," Scanlon said.

The third project would include laying 1,200 feet of water main from Seton Court west to Elmhurst Road.

The new main will provide a loop and connect water supplies from two existing village wells.

Valenza pointed out that the loop will mean a dual source of water for several areas of the village.

He said that whoever develops the property in the future will be required to pay the cost of the water main in a re-capture arrangement.

The board told Passolt to have preliminary work done on the water main project.

Commuter Confusion On Tollway

Commuter confusion marked the first day of a three-month construction project on the Northwest Tollway yesterday, as early-morning drivers found unmarked median crossovers and speed limits not posted.

Michael Hartigan, tollway assistant chief engineer, acknowledged commuters encountered "confusion entering certain areas" but said all of the proper signs should be posted for today's drivers.

A number of tollway incidents were reported to police, including construction workers walking off the job because of erratic drivers near O'Hare Airport, Hartigan said. "Several tickets were issued to subjects driving through medians and proceeding on lanes where workmen were located," said State Police Lt. William Burt.

There was one major accident on the Tri-State Tollway, which is also under construction, that stalled traffic for miles. Hartigan said a semi-truck jackknifed and blocked the entire roadway at 11 a.m. and stopped all traffic flow for a short time.

Tollway officials said last night that "traffic was lighter on the Northwest Tollway than expected" attributing it to "people taking other means of transportation and alternate routes." However, a Chicago and North Western Rwy. spokesman said no noticeable increase in passengers was noted yesterday.

There was a 2½-mile traffic jam on the Tri-State Tollway south of O'Hare Airport yesterday during the morning rush hour.

CONSTRUCTION ON the tollways yesterday consisted primarily of crushing concrete and work on bridges.

A tollway spokesman said he encourages drivers today "to begin their travels earlier" to avoid a possible 20 to 30-minute delay due to the barricaded lanes.

Two lanes in both directions are open to traffic with eastbound drivers crossing over to the inner lane of the opposite roadway.

Although speed limit signs were not posted yesterday, there is a 40 mile-an-hour limit through all construction zones.

The two simultaneous highway construction projects include 11 miles on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways. Northwest Tollway construction begins at the Kennedy Expressway junction and goes west to Meacham Road near Schaumburg. The Tri-State work runs from Ogden Avenue to the Northwest Tollway.

The $6.5 million projects will be completed by Aug. 1, according to tollway officials. The highways will be resurfaced as well as bridge repairs and lane striping.

'No Cost' For Sewer Work

Sewer and water mains will eventually be provided to the entire West Strong Street area without cost to any individual homeowner, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon pledged at a village board meeting Monday.

Scanlon made his comments after members of the audience laughed at the village plan to pay for water mains in an industrial area. Board members were quick to point out that the village will get its money back from the future developer of the land between Seton Court and Elmhurst Road.

Seton Court is located on the north side of Hintz Road just west of Ekco Pond.

Referring to the residents he said were "laughing in mockery," Scanlon said the water main connection near Seton Court was "relevant to the Strong Street area." Lots on Strong Street were recently rezoned so 47 six-flat apartment buildings can be built among the single-family homes currently in the area.

"From the start it has been the feeling of this board that no matter what happened no person would ever have to pay one dime for sewer or water," Scanlon said.

"WHOEVER DEVELOPS in that area" will be required to carry on existing water and sewer lines, Scanlon said. "It was agreed the board would find some way to bring in the utilities without assessments or cost to the individual," he said.

He said the village wanted to provide service to the area, but that its prime interest was bringing the water and sewer through the area to loop the mains.

Board members said at an earlier meeting that when property north of Mayer Avenue is developed all of the residents will then have water and sewer lines running past their homes.

"The individuals who nod their heads and make mockery of the board are jumping the gun," Scanlon said.

"I think you'll find you will come out a winner and not a loser," he said.

Didn't Buy Car Sticker? New Law Will 'Stick' You

A new law designed to foil people who try to avoid purchasing vehicle stickers was approved by the Wheeling Village Board this week.

The new ordinance, which will go into effect May 14, will make it impossible for a person to pay a ticket for not having a sticker without first purchasing the sticker.

Under the existing law, a violator can merely pay a $2 fine and not be forced to purchase the sticker until he is ticketed by police a second time.

The new law does not change the current yearly vehicle sticker fees, which are $6 for motorcycles, $8 for cars and from $10 to $20 for trucks.

The law does make provision for a person to transfer the sticker he buys from one car to another by paying a $1 fee or to transfer the ownership of the sticker when he sells the car by paying a $1 fee.

UNDER THE new ordinance, if you are stopped for not having a sticker you will have to pay a $5 ticket, the $8 cost of a sticker, and $5 late charge for not buying the sticker before Feb. 15.

There are provisions that give new residents 30 days after moving to the village to buy a sticker and give new car owners three working days after purchasing a car to get a sticker.

A resident buying a sticker after June 30 pays only half-price for the sticker.

Buffalo Grove Man 2nd In Ping Pong Test

Helmut Repich of 144 Bernard Dr., Buffalo Grove, won second place in the state table tennis competition recently.

Repich, who was representing the Wheeling Park District, won second place in the men's singles division. The competition in Homewood on April 15 was sponsored by the Illinois Parks and Recreation Society.

The War

Scores of North Vietnamese tanks and infantrymen continued their push toward Hue, smashing through part of South Vietnam's new northern defense line, an artillery base 20 miles to the northwest. More than 20,000 Communist soldiers captured Artillery Base Bastogne, about 12 miles south of Hue, field reports said.

The State

The Illinois Senate turned back an attempt to revive a bill that would lower the legal drinking age in the state to 18. The bill, which was rejected last week by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would have allowed 18-year-olds to buy beer, wine and malt liquor.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

J. Edgar Hoover, who built the FBI into one of the world's most renowned crime-fighting organizations, died in his sleep at age 77. (Background story on Page 6.)

Evidence of the crossover vote Gov. George C. Wallace hoped would carry him to victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in Indiana failed to materialize in early returns. In Ohio, Humphrey's head-to-head clash with Sen. George S. McGovern was marred by charges of voting machine tampering.

An FBI agent said the government used a wiretap to gather evidence against the Harrisburg Seven, but he insisted the bugged conversations never were used in the government's case. Attorneys for the Rev. Philip Berrigan contended prosecution of the Roman Catholic priest was unconstitutional.

The FBI said it arrested a United Mine Workers official from Middlesboro, Ky. — Albert E. Pass, 51 — in connection with the murders of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Honeywell Used Illegal Ads: Union

The United Electrical Union Local 1114 has charged Honeywell Inc. management with using illegal advertisements in seeking temporary employees at the Arlington Heights plant.

The union, which has been on strike for nine weeks at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd., alleges advertisements were placed in local newspapers without indicating the union was on strike. Union Atty. Irving Meyers said yesterday that failure to reveal the strike is in violation of state statutes.

Management and union officials will attend a hearing on the matter this morning at the office of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan in Chicago.

"We want to stop the violation," Meyers said, adding that conviction of the alleged offense carries a $100 to $300 fine for each advertisement.

Dan Walker To Visit Here

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dan Walker is coming to Wheeling Friday to thank local campaign workers for their efforts in the primary election campaign.

Walker will appear at a get-together at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Nuenfeldt, 32 Redwood Tr.

The 8:30 p.m. party for the Walker Workers of Wheeling will include a recap of the primary campaign and discussion of plans for the November election.

Additional information on the get-together is available by calling Richard Carlson at 541-2403 after 5:30 p.m.

While the hearing is held in Chicago, another attempt will be made by federal mediators to resolve the strike at a conciliation session.

HOWEVER, UNION officials said yesterday that chances for settlement are dim, unless the present deadlock is broken. "We're just as far apart as when we started," said Don Cameron, chief union steward.

Honeywell spokesman Tony Bartolini

said "the only encouraging thing is that we are still meeting."

More than 550 union workers walked off the job March 3, after the union turned down a two-year contract offer alleging inadequate fringe benefits.

Michael Karp, union business manager, reiterated the union demands yesterday. He said major grievances in the contract are "over inequities in fringe benefits and job classifications" as well as lack of full vacation benefits for returning veterans.

Temporary workers have been hired to replace the strikers, Honeywell officials said, so that production can be resumed. Management reports that all manufacturing commitments are being met even though the strike continues.

The Arlington Heights firm produces temperature controls and building automation systems for large buildings.

Ogilvie Rejects I-90 Cloverleaf

Construction of a full cloverleaf interchange at Interstate 90 and Biesterfield Road, as urged by the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees, would not "appear to be in the best interest of the motoring public," according to Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

Ogilvie made the statement in a letter to Elk Grove Village Clerk Richard McGrenera, in response to a letter stating the village's opinion that such an interchange be constructed.

In his letter, Ogilvie noted that the Illinois Department of Transportation has no plans for an interchange.

"... It is my understanding the spacing between the proposed interchange at Thorndale Road and the facility you have requested for Biesterfield Road is not sufficient to permit proper signing of both interchanges," Ogilvie wrote. "This would create unwarranted congestion on the major traffic lanes."

Ogilvie also wrote that another interchange would create unsafe conditions on the interstate highway, the remainder of which is scheduled to be opened by September.

"With the safety factor in mind, it would not appear to be in the best interest of the motoring public to provide an interchange at Biesterfield Road which would essentially serve traffic of a local nature."

Village Pres. Charles Zetek said he was planning to direct a letter back to Ogilvie, pointing out the reasons the village believes the interchange is needed.

Ogilvie's letter confirmed statements made in March by an Illinois Highway Department official casting doubt on the chances for such an interchange. The official, Henry Yamanaka of the planning division of the department, said there were no plans for such an interchange, which would put the number of interchanges on the highway over the limit recommended by the federal government.

Elk Grove Village officials approved a resolution in March urging county, state and federal governments and highway agencies to construct the interchange. The village based its recommendation on a report compiled by Edwin Thomas, a University of Illinois professor.

Thomas urged construction of the interchange "to ameliorate or eliminate problems stemming from the development of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve."

Hillcrest Cleanup Saturday

Volunteers will work to clean debris and trash Saturday from the Hillcrest Slough in Prospect Heights.

The project is sponsored by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association beautification committee. Also expected to be at the slough are members of the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School Ecology Club and students from Wheeling High School.

Joan Masloske, chairman of the cleanup day, said yesterday, "We're hoping for at least 50 persons to participate."

The work will be carried on at the south end of the slough, located east of Rte. 83 and north of Hillside Avenue. The project will last from 10 a.m. to about 2 p.m.

Glass Drop Off Bin To Open Saturday

Local residents may now deposit glass containers in the recycling bin behind the Wheeling Municipal Building.

The bin, part of a Wheeling Jaycees project to encourage recycling, is being set up behind the municipal building for a month to see if any problems arise.

After the trial period the village board will decide if the container can be kept there permanently.

Village insurance will cover the container without additional cost to the village.

Residents may drop off glass at the bin between 1 and 5 p.m. Saturdays or Sundays when Jaycees supervise the bin.

OK $5.7 Million For High School

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night approved more than $5.7 million worth of contracts for the construction of Buffalo Grove High School.

The general contract was awarded to Miller-Davis Co. of Melrose Park, for $3,571,130. The company submitted the lowest of seven bids.

In addition, the board awarded the high school plumbing contract to William Zeigler and Son, Inc. of Round Lake for $611,477; the heating contract to Byness, Inc. of Chicago, for $972,100; the electrical contract to Premier Electric of Chicago, for $759,000, and the testing and balancing contract, which will check heating and air-conditioning, for $19,800.

THE BOARD ALSO rejected a bid of $32,000 for maintenance of the building's rooftop air-conditioning units. Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services, said the item had been bid "mainly for information" and that the district officials believe the district's regular maintenance crew can do the work more inexpensively.

Weber said the total for the bids on the major contracts was under the district's proposed budget. Excavation, site preparation and installation of steel had been bid earlier and contractors for those operations have been on the scene since last fall.

The high school, which has a total budget of $10.5 million, will be built at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads in Buffalo Grove. It will have a design similar to the Rolling Meadows High School which opened last fall. The school is scheduled to open in September, 1973, and will be the district's eighth high school.

The Buffalo Grove Park District plans to let bids soon on a swimming pool to be built adjacent to the school. The school district and park district will split the costs of the facility.

Neil Armstrong Here To Speak To Alexian Unit

The first man on the moon, former astronaut Neil Armstrong, will be the featured guest this evening at the annual spring benefit dinner of the Alexian Associates, a group of community leaders supporting the health care programs of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Armstrong will discuss "Change in the Space Age" at the dinner, to be held at the Itasca Country Club in Itasca.

Prior to the dinner, Armstrong, now a professor of engineering at the University of Cincinnati, will tour the Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Armstrong was selected as an astronaut by NASA in 1962. He served as backup command pilot for the Gemini 5 flight and performed the first successful docking of two vehicles in space in 1966 as command pilot for the Gemini 8 mission.

As spacecraft commander for Apollo 11, the first manned lunar landing mission, Armstrong in July, 1969, became the first man to land a craft on the moon and the first to step on its surface.

Wheeling Choir To Go On Tour

The Wheeling High School concert choir will travel to Springfield, Ill. and St. Louis, Mo. to present four concerts May 12-14.

The choir, under the direction of Frank Dobler, will perform 35 numbers they have been rehearsing since January.

In Springfield the choir will perform at the state legislature and at Sacred Girls Academy. In St. Louis performances will be at the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial (known as the Gateway Arch) and a large city church.

The performances will include "Benedictus," by Simon and Garfunkel; "The Creation," "He Watching Over Israel," by Mendelssohn; "Windows of the World," and "The Windmill of Your Mind," by Legrand.

Senior Citizens

Festival Is Sunday

Wheeling and Buffalo Grove area residents are invited to celebrate Senior Citizens Month by attending a festival Sunday at the Adolorata Villa Home.

A bake sale, rummage sale, flower sale and musical show are among the activities planned at the festival. Admission is free. Refreshments will be sold.

The festival will be from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with the show scheduled to begin at 1 p.m.

The villa, which is located at 555 McHenry Rd., is a home for the elderly, operated by the Servite Sisters.

Boy Hurt Playing At Building Site

Ronald Mader, 8, of Prospect Heights remained in satisfactory condition yesterday at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines following surgery Monday night for a chest wound.

Mader sustained the injury about 6:30 p.m. Monday when, according to Cook County Sheriff's Police, he fell against a concrete reinforcing rod at a home construction site on Compton Lane in Prospect Heights. Mader lives at 12 E. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Police said Mader had been playing with a group of boys at the construction site when the accident occurred. After the mishap Mader then ran to the home of a neighbor who called the Prospect Heights Fire Department.

Mader was rushed to the hospital in the fire department chief's car. "The fire department did a terrific job in getting him to the hospital," according to a police spokesman.

HAVE STUDENTS NEED JOBS

Mr. Employer, many high school students desire part time jobs while attending school. As a service to students and employers, the guidance departments of School District 214 list jobs which are reported by employers. These students have a wide range of job skills from qualified employees to students with considerable job experience and preparation. Employers are invited to call the vocational counselors identified with the nearby high school or shown on the adjacent map.

What's Going On At School

MORE THAN 400 parents, teachers and students were on hand last Monday night for the Louisa May Alcott School art display.

Every Alcott student entered the art program and many also submitted science fair exhibits. There were 18 first-place, 12 second-place and 17 third-place awards given to students.

A gym show featuring 50 students also took place. Following all the student exhibitions the Alcott PTA sponsored an ice cream social.

THE MOUSEKETEERS of Mark Twain School presented their "Talent Roundup" Monday night. The Mouseketeers are made up of fifth and sixth grade students.

The variety show was under the direction of Miss Mackiewicz and featured scenes from selected Broadway musicals. They included "Bye Bye Birdie," "Hair," "Sound of Music" and "Charlie Brown."

SIX STUDENTS from Mark Twain School placed first in the school's science fair. The winners were Jeff Burke, first grade; Pamela Granahan, second grade; Greg Burke, third grade; Elaine Dame, fourth grade; Kevin Kent, fifth grade and Mike Dame, sixth grade.

APPROXIMATELY 40 girls from Jack London Junior High School are taking part in recreational intramurals. The girls, under the direction of teachers Louise Petty and Sue Kropp, participate in swimming, bike riding, softball and shuffleboard.

JACK LONDON Junior High School science teacher Pat Thompson has been watching the weather. When the clouds cleared he led his seventh graders, who are all members of the outdoor club, on a fishing and cook-out trip to Belleau Woods.

The club meets twice a week and studies weather prediction and making of fish lures as well as working on several other outdoor activities. Another week-end trip is planned for the near future.

THIRD GRADE boys and girls at Eugene Field School are going through a "role change" with a group of team teachers. The boys are learning basic sewing and the girls are learning basic wood construction.

The projects the class constructed will be on display during a May open house at Field school.

MARSHALL THEROUX, Wheeling Township assessor, recently spoke with the fourth and fifth graders at Nathaniel Hawthorne School. They discussed the tax system.

Theroux emphasized real estate taxes during the discussion and explained how they are used by the township to finance schools and other public services. He also clarified the role of the assessor in determining real estate values and the amount of tax to be levied on a home or business property.

Following the assessor's visit the students at Hawthorne began studying a unit on "Consumer Education."

SOCIAL STUDIES teachers at James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School selected 11 students to meet School Dist. 21 administrators so students may learn more about the operation of the district. The students were selected by submitting essays on "Why I Would Like to be Superintendent, Personnel Director, etc."

Larry Weaver, principal at Cooper Junior High, went with the students to the administration building. After a brief orientation on the structure of the district, the students met various members of the administrative staff.

Students who interviewed the administrators were: Cheryl Zetek, David Ward, David Shin, Kathy Maples, Roberta Adler, Lisa Ryan, Karen O'Connor, Mike DeGroot, Carol Case, Jim Schrader and Tom Fox.

A RECENT science fair at Henry Wadsworth Longfellow School produced 62 projects. Eight students received awards for the work.

Gerald Cain received a trophy for the outstanding project in the fifth and sixth grade. Mary Mooney and Jonathan Dorn tied for the outstanding trophy in the first through fourth grade division.

Receiving the second highest awards were Sam Planck, second grade; Vicki Sharp, third grade; Elise Breen and Judy Tessari, fifth grade, and Tim Kelly and Ricky Koehler, sixth grade.

Would Protect Village's Looks

Village Board Approves Appearance Commission

Buffalo Grove now has an appearance commission, but it won't be meeting for a while — there aren't any members yet.

The village board approved an ordinance establishing the commission Monday night, and now is seeking volunteers for the five available positions.

Once the members are organized, the commission's first goal, as set forth in the ordinance, is to write an appearance code. The commission will have six months to develop the code for approval by the village board.

Members of the commission must be residents of the village. The board hopes to include registered architects, landscape architects, real estate appraisers or land planners on the commission, as well as an owner or officer of a local firm or business.

Ron Helms, a landscape architect, has assisted the board in background for establishment of the commission, and will likely be one of the first appointees. Other qualified persons who would like to serve on the board may submit their names by phoning Helms, 537-4766, or Trustee Charles Vogt, 537-4948.

Terms will be for three years except for the first appointments, which will be two one-year terms, two two-year terms and one for three years.

The purpose of the commission is to "protect and to stabilize the general appearance of buildings, structures, landscaping and open areas in the multiple dwelling, business, commercial, planned development, new subdivision, and public lands and industrial zoning districts of the village."

THE CODE WILL BE designed so a builder may submit his own plan for approval by the commission. If the plan, including landscaping, is acceptable, the builder or owner will receive a "certificate of appropriateness."

The village board will have final approval on all plans, as they do for the plan commission, so a builder will have recourse should he choose to dispute the appearance commission's decision.

The ordinance states that the code should "encourage and promote acceptability, attractiveness and compatibility of new buildings, development, remodeling and additions so as to maintain and improve the established standards of property values within the village."

Once the commission is in operation, it would have public hearings, and operate similar to the plan commission. It would be the commission's job, however, to study only exterior design drawings, landscape and site plans and materials for any proposed development or improvement.

VILLAGE MGR. Dan Larson pointed out that the village might have no legal authority to review park district or school district plans, since such districts have equal powers with the village. Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, said the commission could still seek voluntary cooperation from such districts.

The ordinance states that no building permits will be issued by the village until proper certificates are awarded, except for internal construction which will not affect the outward appearance of a structure.

The new ordinance is patterned very closely after an appearance code ordinance established in the village of Glenview.

Commuter Confusion On Tollway

Commuter confusion marked the first day of a three-month construction project on the Northwest Tollway yesterday, as early-morning drivers found unmarked median crossovers and speed limits not posted.

Michael Hartigan, tollway assistant chief engineer, acknowledged commuters encountered "confusion" entering certain areas but said all of the proper signs should be posted for today's drivers.

A number of tollway incidents were reported to police, including construction workers walking off the job because of erratic drivers near O'Hare Airport, Hartigan said. "Several tickets were issued to subjects driving through medians and proceeding on lanes where workmen were located," said State Police Lt. William Burt.

There was one major accident on the Tri-State Tollway, which is also under construction, that stalled traffic for miles. Hartigan said a semi-truck jackknifed and blocked the entire roadway at 11 a.m. and stopped all traffic flow for a short time.

Tollway officials said last night that "traffic was lighter on the Northwest Tollway than expected" attributing it to "people taking other means of transportation and alternate routes." However, a Chicago and North Western Rwy. spokesman said no noticeable increase in passengers was noted yesterday.

There was a 2½-mile traffic jam on the Tri-State Tollway south of O'Hare Airport yesterday during the morning rush hour.

CONSTRUCTION on the tollways yesterday consisted primarily of crushing concrete and work on bridges.

A tollway spokesman said he encourages drivers today "to begin their travels earlier" to avoid a possible 20 to 30-minute delay due to the barricaded lanes.

Two lanes in both directions are open to traffic with eastbound drivers crossing over to the inner lane of the opposite roadway.

Although speed limit signs were not posted yesterday, there is a 40 mile-an-hour limit through all construction zones.

The two simultaneous highway construction projects include 11 miles on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways. Northwest Tollway construction begins at the Kennedy Expressway junction and goes west to Meacham Road near Schaumburg. The Tri-State work runs from Ogden Avenue to the Northwest Tollway.

The $6.5 million projects will be completed by Aug. 1, according to tollway officials. The highways will be resurfaced as well as bridge repairs and lane striping.

Work To Begin On Wastewater Facility

Formal groundbreaking ceremonies Monday marked the beginning of new construction for the Des Plaines River Wastewater Reclamation Facility at Pekara and Walnut Drive.

The comprehensive system is a cooperative effort that will serve the Lake County portion of Buffalo Grove and the villages of Long Grove, Riverwoods and eventually, Lincolnshire.

A 100,000-gallon treatment plant now is operating at the site, but the new system will raise that capacity to 2 million gallons.

Robert Degen, director of the Lake County Department of Public Works, said the system is designed to grow with the needs of the area. "We're already thinking seriously now of the next phase."

Village Mgr. Dan Larson and village engineer Arnold Seaberg attended the groundbreaking ceremonies along with several Lake County officials, including Degen.

Buffalo Grove trustees last month approved a plan to connect all homes in the village's Lake County portion to the new system, which is scheduled for completion by December. After connecting, the village treatment plant will be used as a standby. According to the agreement with the department of public works, the plant will be completely dismantled by 1976, with the village retaining ownership of the property.

Although connecting to the county system may result in some increase in rates for residents in the area, trustees said the only alternative was to consider expanding its present sewage treatment facilities at village expense.

OK Four New Police Cars

Buffalo Grove trustees Monday night approved the purchase of four police squad cars on a new basis which will leave four older cars for use by village personnel.

The lowest bid of $13,696 for the four cars was accepted from Grand Spaulding Dodge, Inc., of Chicago. The price does not include trade-ins on the old cars, which would have reduced the price to $8,516.

Village Mgr. Dan Larson recommended to the board that the four cars to be replaced be added to the village general staff for use primarily by the building inspectors and engineers.

At present the employees drive their own cars and receive a mileage allowance which this year amounted to more than $2,900. Larson said a 1963 all-purpose vehicle on loan from the fire department has already cost more than $600 in maintenance.

It is Larson's belief that use of the older police cars can reduce the overall cost of operations and limit damage to inspectors' personal cars. The autos, minus police equipment, would be maintained for two or three years, he said. The white doors would be painted blue to match the rest of the finish.

Larson added that village residents will also be able to identify the inspectors and engineers on official business because of the distinctive appearance of the cars.

The public works director and village engineer will be allowed to drive the cars to and from work so they will be available for emergency calls.

Trustee Edward Osmon cast the only dissenting vote on the bid acceptance because he felt only two cars are needed by the village staff. He said the other two could be traded in to save money for the village.

Drill Meet Saturday At Wheeling High

Drill teams from Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois junior ROTC units and military schools will perform in the gymnasium at Wheeling High School Saturday.

Twenty-two drill teams will compete for the honors at the third annual Northwest Suburban Invitational Drill Meet, which begins at 1 p.m. The Naval Junior ROTC unit at Wheeling is the host unit.

Tickets will be available at the door. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Teachers Council Here Seeks 8% Boost In Salaries

by JOANN VAN WYE

An initial proposal calling for an approximate 8 per cent increase in teachers' salaries was presented by teachers in a contract negotiations session in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15.

The Classroom Teachers Council's (CTC) negotiating team presented the initial proposal to the board of education's negotiating team on Monday.

The proposal has five points to be negotiated, the smallest number of proposals ever to be presented in negotiations sessions in Dist. 15.

In addition to the 8 per cent increase in salaries, the teachers' team is asking for an extended Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage and to have their CTC membership dues spread over more checks. The other two points of the initial proposal have not been released.

FRANK WHITELEY, superintendent and spokesman for the negotiations sessions, said the total initial proposal would cost an approximate additional 8.2 per cent to implement.

The initial proposal did not outline how the 8 per cent increase in teachers' salaries would be spread over the teachers' scale. Whiteley said this matter, along with the amount of the increase, would have to be negotiated.

Last year, teachers won a 7 per cent salary increase and the starting salary for first year teachers was set at $7,730. Due to the President's wage and price controls, the teachers did not receive the additional 7 per cent until February and were paid on the 1970-71 salary schedule from September to February.

Dist. 15 teachers currently receive Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage for the 10 months they are working. The teachers' negotiating team has asked the board to extend the coverage for the single working person for the additional two months.

The other part of the additional proposal made public is that the teachers' negotiating team would like CTC membership dues spread over 20 pay checks instead of six as is currently done.

THE BOARD'S negotiating team simply received the initial proposal and asked a few questions. The actual negotiations will start at the next negotiations session scheduled for May 15.

Ground rules for the negotiations sessions were also established on Monday. The major change is that both teams have agreed to issue joint press releases on the negotiations sessions through the end of the school year from the office of the superintendent. This is the first year such releases have been agreed upon.

"Both sides are sincere in working toward the goal of concluding negotiations before the end of the school year," said Whiteley.

New Library Nearer Reality

The Palatine Public Library Board moved a little further along with plans to acquire a new library site when library board members met with Palatine village trustees Monday to discuss the merits of possible locations.

Members of the two boards met in executive session to try and coordinate the library's plans for land acquisition with the village's plans for future downtown development. They also considered ways in which the two boards could work together to gain the new library site.

Several locations are reportedly being considered as possible sites, including expansion of the present library property on North Broadway Street. Other areas considered are the unused Palatine Village Dump at Smith and Northwest Highway, the area at Colfax and Smith Street near the transportation center and the area west of the existing library.

Cooperation between the library and village boards is necessary because the village's powers of condemnation may be needed to play a part in acquiring a site for the library.

SOME CONSIDERATION was also given to possible ways to spend an additional $30,000 the library will receive from collections on 1971 tax bills recently sent to Palatine residents. An extra three cents per $100 assessed valuation was placed on the library's tax rate by the county that the library board had not planned on.

This additional three cents is expected to generate about $30,000 more for the library.

The library board will discuss how to spend it at its next board meeting May 10 at the library. The money could be used towards acquiring a new site, purchasing new library materials or could be held in escrow for the year and added on to next year's budget.

The library board had previously been operating under the maximum tax rate allowable by state statute of 23 cents per $100 assessed valuation. However, home rule powers granted under the new Constitution removed the ceiling on the tax rate and consequently raised the Palatine library rate the three cents.

The library board had prepared the 1972-1973 budget based on the projected 23-cent tax rate.

Plan Unit Denies Townhouse Rezoning

Residents in Palatine's North View subdivision last night were again successful in their efforts to keep six undeveloped lots at Northwest Highway and Benton zoned for single-family use.

The Palatine Plan Commission last night recommended that the village board deny a petition to rezone the land for multiple use to construct six buildings of 24 units of townhouses.

Michael Francis, president of the North View Homeowners Association presented to the commission two petitions objecting to the rezoning. One petition was signed by 135 North View residents asking that the land remain zoned for single-family. The second petition carried the signatures of more than 20 per cent of the homeowners whose land faces the six lots, a provision which will now require a two-thirds majority vote by the village board to approve the zoning change.

SPEAKING FOR the board of directors of the homeowners association, Francis argued that the same objections stated by the plan commission in previous requests for rezoning of the same land held true in this case as well.

The plan commission last fall denied a request to rezone the land for commercial use and a proposed construction of an office-shopping center complex.

Although the plan commission recommended denial of the petition, it did state it would "consider favorably" another plan for multiple-family use as a planned unit development with a maximum of 18 units of two-bedroom apartments.

The commission said the proposal for the 24 units of townhouses was too-high a density for the area and did not leave enough open space.

SEVERAL OF the homeowners at the commission meeting said they felt the six lots could still be successfully developed for single-family use. However, Jack Whistler of Smith-Pippen-Realty, testified that the owner of the land would be forced to take a loss if he sold the land as single-family.

The plan commission generally agreed that it was unrealistic to expect the six lots to be developed for single-family use because of their frontage on Northwest Highway and probably commercial development near by.

The recommendation will go to the village board for a decision at Monday's meeting.

Taxing Lesson In Democracy

by MARGE FERROLI

The shoebox-banking scandal in state government and the under-the-lunchtable property valuation procedures charged in the county assessor's office are enough to smear the reputations of any agency that calls itself government.

Municipal governments appear to be no exception to the general distrust most taxpayers have of elected officials, particularly when it comes to spending their tax money.

When there's talk of raising taxes, the first thought that usually hits the taxpayer is whose political pocket his extra money is going into rather than what more will be getting for his money.

Suspicious like this drew a crowd to a public hearing about the recent Palatine village budget discussions when a large projected income deficit for the coming year forced the village board to increase the municipal tax rate.

Being the most local government body to which a resident pays taxes, the Palatine board had to bear the brunt of criticism residents justifiably have about being taxed to death.

RATHER THAN go to a county board meeting to object to rising taxes, the residents took their grief out on the local board. Even though the village board can do absolutely nothing about 92 per cent of the money paid on residents' tax bills, those who spoke their minds still seemed relieved after the public hearing.

Looking at percentages, the amount a Palatine resident pays to the village for municipal services each year is minute compared to what he'll pay for his children's education and to the federal and state government in income taxes.

The figures, however, don't really matter. No one really thinks that screaming at somebody down at the County Building or State of Illinois Building will do him any good on his tax bill. Instead, he goes to his local village board carrying a load of complaints about which the board has almost no control.

Not that the resident shouldn't complain. He's got to take his frustrations out on someone and it's easiest to reach the local village trustees. They've been elected to be responsive to the needs and complaints of local residents.

So when the village board proposes to raise the municipal tax rate by 10 cents as in Palatine, there will be plenty of objections. But when a taxpayer falls into a higher income bracket and pays more to the federal government in taxes during the year, he chucks it off as one of the prices you have to pay to live in this country.

THE MAIN question residents put to the village board at the recent public hearing was why the village couldn't live within its income if every homeowner is expected to do it. The answer was that it could, but only if the residents were willing to give up a few of the things they'd been used to having.

A basic policy decision had to be made during the course of budget discussions on whether there would be an increase in taxes in order to maintain the same level of village services or whether there would be a cutback.

The board opted for a combination of the two, chopping the deficit in half with cutbacks and making up the rest through more taxes.

No matter which direction the trustees had picked to balance the budget, there would have been complaints. No one likes higher taxes. But, also, no one likes being told when he calls the police to complain about a loud party that he should just close his window.

Like anything else, the costs of government are getting higher and have to be paid for if they want to be kept. But, if more cases of shoebox banking crop up, it might not be a bad idea to decide whether government is worth it.

Honeywell Used Illegal Ads: Union

The United Electrical Union Local 1114 has charged Honeywell Inc. management with using illegal advertisements in seeking temporary employees at the Arlington Heights plant.

The union, which has been on strike for nine weeks at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd., alleges advertisements were placed in local newspapers without indicating the union was on strike. Union Atty. Irving Meyers said yesterday that failure to reveal the strike is in violation of state statutes.

Management and union officials will attend a hearing on the matter this morning at the office of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan in Chicago.

"We want to stop the violation," Meyers said, adding that conviction of the alleged offense carries a $100 to $300 fine for each advertisement.

While the hearing is held in Chicago, another attempt will be made by federal mediators to resolve the strike at a conciliation session.

HOWEVER, UNION officials said yesterday that chances for settlement are dim, unless the present deadlock is broken. "We're just as far apart as when we started," said Don Cameron, chief union steward.

Honeywell spokesman Tony Bartoloni said "the only encouraging thing is that we are still meeting."

More than 550 union workers walked off the job March 3, after the union turned down a two-year contract offer alleging inadequate fringe benefits.

Michael Karpis, union business manager, reiterated the union demands yesterday. He said major grievances in the contract are "over inequities in fringe benefits and job classifications" as well as lack of full vacation benefits for returning veterans.

Temporary workers have been hired to replace the strikers, Honeywell officials said, so that production can be resumed. Management reports that all manufacturing commitments are being met even though the strike continues.

I must say that after reading Bob Frisk's column in Friday's Herald I am more proud than ever to be from Massillon, Ohio. Of course, I never played football, but I was one of the 20,000 fans sitting in Tiger Stadium every Friday night the three years I was there in school and some since.

Massillon's Tiger swing band is great, too. They have taken many state and national honors in competition. Not being an alum of the band I must hasten to add that the A Cappella Choir, too, ranks among the highest in competition. Now they tour many states. However, when I was there we felt fortunate to get to Springfield and Cincinnati.

Just to be a name dropper, do you know David Canary? He played "Candy" on the "Bonanza" show and has had numerous other TV roles. He is a former co-captain of the mighty Tigers and a member of that choir.

You're saying, "what is a Presbyterian Panther?" Well, this is a group of brave, courageous, souls who meet each morning at 6:15 a.m. (that's right, 6:15 a.m.) at the Presbyterian Church parking lot for some jogging, laughter, sweat, and conditioning.

Now I realize that 6:15 a.m. is an unreasonable hour, but Wynn Church, who is in charge of all this nonsense, insists that it is all for a good cause and that those participating will be laughing at the rest of us when they are strutting around this summer with their terrific physiques.

Nonresidents Must Pay For Parking

Nonresidents of Palatine, even if they work in town, will be required to pay an additional $3 for monthly parking permits in municipal lots.

Despite an objection made by a longtime businessman downtown, the Palatine Village Board Monday agreed to allow no exceptions to a recent rate increase from $7 to $10 for non-residents using Palatine lots.

A. Gordon Humphrey of the legal firm of Humphrey, Humphrey and Warnholtz, attorneys who have had a part-time law office in Palatine for over 40 years, sent a letter to the board objecting to the fee hike.

Humphrey said the permit fee should not be fixed on the basis of actual residence and suggested that "people in business and operation within the limits of the Village of Palatine should be treated as residents."

He recommended that the ordinance be changed "or you (the board) will be in the position of imposing on local merchants who furnish a great deal of support for the Village of Palatine."

However, the board agreed that enforcing the permit rates on the ordinance would be difficult if exceptions to it are allowed. Permits for Palatine residents are $7, while non-residents will have to pay the additional amount beginning with June parking permits.

Open House Slated At Hunting Ridge

An open house will be held at Hunting Ridge School in Palatine today from 7 to 9 p.m.

Parents with children attending Hunting Ridge are invited to attend. Teachers will be in the classrooms to meet with the parents and answer questions. Students' work will be on display. A book fair will also be in progress during the open house.

Seek To End Bug Spraying

Plum Grove Estates has joined the ranks of Palatine and Schaumburg in requesting the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District stop all spraying and fogging activities in their area.

The Plum Grove Estates Property Owners Association recently voted to ask the abatement district to replace its spraying methods with a "more permanent control, namely with proper drainage of both public lands and private lands as specified in the statutes of the State of Illinois."

Both Palatine and Schaumburg have had local ordinances that prohibit spraying within their village limits. Local officials have contended the spraying is not an effective method of permanent mosquito abatement and that it contributes to problems of water and air pollution.

The abatement district last summer took legal action against the two towns, claiming the local ordinances prohibit the operation of the abatement programs throughout the entire area of the district.

The case is still in litigation, with the next hearing on the validity of the ordinances set for June 26.

The request of the Plum Grove Estates homeowners does not have the same effect as an ordinance of a municipality because Plum Grove Estates is an unincorporated subdivision.

Teachers Council Here Seeks 8% Boost In Salaries

by JOANN VAN WYE

An initial proposal calling for an approximate 8 per cent increase in teachers' salaries was presented by teachers in a contract negotiations session in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15.

The Classroom Teachers Council's (CTC) negotiating team presented the initial proposal to the board of education's negotiating team on Monday.

The proposal has five points to be negotiated, the smallest number of proposals ever to be presented in negotiations sessions in Dist. 15.

In addition to the 8 per cent increase in salaries, the teachers' team is asking for an extended Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage and to have their CTC membership dues spread over more checks. The other two points of the initial proposal have not been released.

FRANK WHITELEY, superintendent and spokesman for the negotiations sessions, said the total initial proposal would cost an approximate additional 8.2 per cent to implement.

The initial proposal did not outline how the 8 per cent increase in teachers' salaries would be spread over the teachers' scale. Whiteley said this matter, along with the amount of the increase, would have to be negotiated.

Last year, teachers won a 7 per cent salary increase and the starting salary for first year teachers was set at $7,730. Due to the President's wage and price controls, the teachers did not receive the additional 7 per cent until February and were paid on the 1970-71 salary schedule from September to February.

Dist. 15 teachers currently receive Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage for the 10 months they are working. The teachers' negotiating team has asked the board to extend the coverage for the single working person for the additional two months.

The other part of the additional proposal made public is that the teachers' negotiating team would like CTC membership dues spread over 20 pay checks instead of six as is currently done.

THE BOARD'S negotiating team simply received the initial proposal and asked a few questions. The actual negotiations will start at the next negotiations session scheduled for May 15.

Ground rules for the negotiations sessions were also established on Monday. The major change is that both teams have agreed to issue joint press releases on the negotiations sessions through the end of the school year from the office of the superintendent. This is the first year such releases have been agreed upon.

"Both sides are sincere in working toward the goal of concluding negotiations before the end of the school year," said Whiteley.

2 Workmen Hurt On Walden Job

The injury of two workmen and the theft of a $1,300 silverware set were both reported Monday at Schaumburg's Walden development, Algonquin and Meacham roads.

The two construction workers, John Roslanowycz, 52 and Anthony Brazulia, 29, both of Chicago, were injured while working on the first floor of a motel being built at Walden. A large wooden beam dropped from the second floor striking both men, Schaumburg police said.

Commuter Confusion On Tollway

Commuter confusion marked the first day of a three-month construction project on the Northwest Tollway yesterday, as early-morning drivers found unmarked median crossovers and speed limits not posted.

Michael Hartigan, tollway assistant chief engineer, acknowledged commuters encountered "confusion entering certain areas" but said all of the proper signs should be posted for today's drivers.

A number of tollway incidents were reported to police, including construction workers walking off the job because of erratic drivers near O'Hare Airport, Hartigan said. "Several tickets were issued to subjects driving through medians and proceeding on lanes where workmen were located," said State Police Lt. William Burt.

There was one major accident on the Tri-State Tollway, which is also under construction, that stalled traffic for miles. Hartigan said a semi-truck jackknifed and blocked the entire roadway at 11 a.m. and stopped all traffic flow for a short time.

Tollway officials said last night that "traffic was lighter on the Northwest Tollway than expected" attributing it to "people taking other means of transportation and alternate routes." However, a Chicago and North Western Rwy. spokesman said no noticeable increase in passengers was noted yesterday.

There was a 2 1/2-mile traffic jam on the Tri-State Tollway south of O'Hare Airport yesterday during the morning rush hour.

CONSTRUCTION ON the tollways yesterday consisted primarily of crushing concrete and work on bridges.

A tollway spokesman said he encourages drivers today "to begin their travels earlier" to avoid a possible 20 to 30-minute delay due to the barricaded lanes.

Two lanes in both directions are open to traffic with eastbound drivers crossing over to the inner lane of the opposite roadway.

Although speed limit signs were not posted yesterday, there is a 40 mile-an-hour limit through all construction zones.

The two simultaneous highway construction projects include 11 miles on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways. Northwest Tollway construction begins at the Kennedy Expressway junction and goes west to Meacham Road near Schaumburg. The Tri-State work runs from Ogden Avenue to the Northwest Tollway.

The $6.5 million projects will be completed by Aug. 1, according to tollway officials. The highways will be resurfaced as well as bridge repairs and lane striping.

$14,000 Ambulance Placed In 'Emergency' Service

A new $14,000 ambulance has been put into service on a strictly emergency basis by the Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District.

Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty explained "this will be our front line ambulance for emergency service only, and will be used to transport emergency cases to the hospital closest to the boundaries of Rolling Meadows," which is Northwest Community Hospital.

The ambulance is equipped with portable and stationary resuscitation equipment and eventually will be equipped with a telemetry unit linking the ambulance by radio to the hospital.

The telemetry equipment will be used in conjunction with an area-wide medical emergency care system in which several towns plan to participate.

In Rolling Meadows, 16 firemen are taking a course at Northwest Community Hospital which will culminate in a test that will certify them as emergency medical technicians.

The new ambulance has been purchased by the fire department, in conjunction with the city and the state. The city and fire district are splitting half the cost of the ambulance and the state is paying the other half in matching funds.

Fighting Fires Of Bureaucracy

by KEN KOZAK

As near as anybody's been able to figure it, a fire department is supposed to serve two primary purposes.

It is supposed to try to prevent fires, through the processes of education, inspection and enforcement of various fire safety codes.

And, of course, when prevention doesn't work for some reason, it's supposed to put out the result.

There are other secondary reasons for a fire department to be. Some are serious and important, like operating an ambulance service. Others aren't, like getting cats out of trees and putting on thrill shows.

But nowhere is it written that a fire department is supposed to be a sideshow in a city circus, which is what's happening in Rolling Meadows. The city has made it so, even though the department isn't theirs.

THAT'S THE problem. The city leaders, led by Mayor Roland Meyer, decided last October to annex the department to the city, to take over its assets and liabilities, pay salaries, hire and fire and clean the trucks. In other words, pay for the whole thing.

In October, Meyer told the Fire Protection District's trustees that he didn't foresee any major problems in accomplishing the annexation in 1972. He said the city could absorb the district because of the large sales tax surplus.

More than two months passed before the city council got down to the business of negotiating the annexation with the trustees, who had said in November that they would be willing to do all they could to accomplish the annexation if agreements could be made in areas of personnel and finances.

Even more time passed before the city council realized two startling things: first, even with the tax surplus there was not enough money available to bring the $300,000 fire department operation into the city under the new budget passed last week; and second, if the city takes over the district it will not be able to take over the district's taxing authority completely, but, by law, only about 10 percent of it.

SO EVERYBODY involved now is sort of stewing in the juices of a pot that nobody expected to be in last October. The fire trustees have taken pains to wave Meyer's October pronouncement under the noses of city officials and ask what's happening. And the city people are admitting, in some cases, that maybe they didn't know all they should have when they started this thing up last year. But they're learning.

Even though the immediate future of the fire district (who is going to end up with it and how) is not certain, the firemen still are there and they still are in the business of preventing or fighting fires and getting cats from trees.

Maybe it would be better if it stayed that way, with the fire department independent of the city, running its whole show.

The way some of the city people have gotten involved in this fire district business so far, I don't know if I'd want to trust them with my cat.

PTA presidents are a busy lot this time of year with all of their open houses, conventions, spring workshops and the school census, not to mention the fact that they are trying to find responsible and interested board members for their next year's boards.

One of the busy PTA presidents is Gayle Huffman, 3503 Campbell St., president of the Cardinal Drive School group. Gayle was just elected to her second term as president along with her other new officers. They include Lyona Hales, first vice president and program chairman; Judy Smith, second vice president and legislative chairman; Georgia Bergman, secretary and also a teacher at Cardinal Drive, and Cheryl Friedrichs, treasurer.

Gayle mentioned that she and her new board have "great anticipations for the coming year." Being a former teacher, Gayle is interested in attracting both parents and teachers to PTA meetings.

"I try to look at things through both the teacher's and the PTA's eyes," she remarked. "Mr. Hess (Jim Hess, Cardinal Drive principal) presented a tremendous new program idea for next year which we're very enthusiastic about. Each month the program will be geared to a different grade level."

"BEGINNING WITH kindergarten, the parents and students will attend our first meeting where the children will be entertained with movies and a recreational type of program and the parents will visit it class rooms, talk with the kindergarten teachers, learn about all the new programs for this age level and become introduced to the motor facilitation program."

"The following month's program would be geared for first grade, and so forth. For the older children their program would be more informational. In this way we hope to involve more teachers and hope to attract more parents to the meetings."

OTHER THAN her PTA work, Gayle is also quite active in the Community Church, where she not only is a soloist in the choir, but also serves as president of the choir and the music committee and is a member of the church council. Her other volunteer work includes assisting with a reading class at Cardinal Drive and serving as a motor mom.

About her PTA experience, Gayle laughed, "I started at the top." She has always served as an officer, as secretary, then vice president, and now president. In her "spare time," Gayle enjoys sewing, trying new recipes and giving piano lessons. Gayle mentioned that she is out about three evenings a week and George sometimes teases her by telling her he is going to "throw out my schedule."

Both husband George and Gayle have extensive backgrounds in music. Gayle majored in music at Milliken University in Decatur but changed her major to elementary education. She became a kindergarten teacher and taught in Beloit, Wis., and Harvard Ill., where she and George met. At the present time George is the instrumental instructor at Winston Park School in Palatine. He plays all musical instruments but especially favors the french horn.

Although the Huffmans have lived in Rolling Meadows only 5½ years, they have already built an addition to their home. It was just recently completed and Gayle laughed, "I helped George finish it, even to hanging dry wall."

GAYLE AND GEORGE are the parents of two girls, Julie, 9, and Linda, 8, both students at Cardinal Drive School.

When asked if she is thinking about going back to teaching school, Gayle replied that she enjoys being home with her family and prefers volunteer work where she is not "obligated" to be gone every day.

Gayle remarked that they love Rolling Meadows. "It's the nicest town we've ever lived in. It's convenient and we like the way it is run."

"I also think our school district and our teachers are just great and they're doing a tremendous job with our children. They're always willing to try new things."

Gayle has also enjoyed working with Hess. "He's been very helpful, has a tremendous amount of ideas and the teachers think he is just great."

In closing, Gayle remarked, "Cardinal Drive is in the process of changing."

Nonresidents Must Pay For Parking

Nonresidents of Palatine, even if they work in town, will be required to pay an additional $3 for monthly parking permits in municipal lots.

Despite an objection made by a longtime businessman downtown, the Palatine Village Board Monday agreed to allow no exceptions to a recent rate increase from $7 to $10 for non-residents using Palatine lots.

He recommended that the ordinance be changed "or you (the board) will be in the position of imposing on local merchants who furnish a great deal of sup-

However, the board agreed that enforcing the permit rates on the ordinance would be difficult if exceptions to it are allowed. Permits for Palatine residents are $7, while non-residents will have to pay the additional amount beginning with June parking permits.

Seek To End Bug Spraying

Plum Grove Estates has joined the ranks of Palatine and Schaumburg in requesting the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District stop all spraying and fogging activities in their area.

The Plum Grove Estates Property Owners Association recently voted to ask the abatement district to replace its spraying methods with a "more permanent control, namely with proper drainage of both public lands and private lands as specified in the statutes of the State of Illinois."

Both Palatine and Schaumburg have had local ordinances that prohibit spraying within their village limits. Local officials have contended the spraying is not an effective method of permanent mosquito abatement and that it contributes to problems of water and air pollution.

The abatement district last summer took legal action against the two towns, claiming the local ordinances prohibit the operation of the abatement programs throughout the entire area of the district.

The case is still in litigation, with the next hearing on the validity of the ordinances set for June 26.

The request of the Plum Grove Estates homeowners does not have the same effect as an ordinance of a municipality because Plum Grove Estates is an unincorporated subdivision.

Was Not Asked To Leave, Says School President

Eric Sahlberg Resigns Post To Take Des Plaines Job

Eric Sahlberg has resigned as Mount Prospect Elementary Dist. 57 superintendent to take a job as superintendent of Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62.

Monday night Sahlberg turned in his resignation, effective June 30, to the school board. He begins his new job July 1, replacing Leon Smaage who held the Dist. 62 post for 26 years. Smaage, 64, announced his retirement in January.

Chosen from a field of 85 educators including 27 superintendents, Sahlberg will receive $30,000 a year as compared to the $28,350 he currently receives in Mount Prospect. Before Smaage retired, he received $35,000 a year.

SAHLBERG, 46, would not say why he was leaving Dist. 57 where he has served as superintendent for seven years.

"I will make my comments on June 19. That's my last board meeting," he said yesterday. Sahlberg has been the target of severe criticism from some residents for his actions as superintendent. They have charged him with, among other things, being unresponsive to the public. His staffing plans have also come under fire from time to time.

After a half-hour closed session, the board accepted Sahlberg's resignation "with regret." He had informed them of his plans in a closed meeting last week, Board Pres. Robert Novy said.

The board voted to employ Sahlberg as a consultant from July 1 to Aug. 30.

"I will be available to lend my assistance as requested by the new superintendent," he said. The Dist. 62 Board also agreed to employ Smaage as a consultant to assist Sahlberg in his new job.

NOVY SAID Sahlberg did not really explain why he was leaving the district "other than the new job would be in the area of self-betterment." Novy said Sahlberg was not asked to resign. Sahlberg's new district has more than 7,200 students as compared to the 3,600 in Dist. 57.

The Dist. 62 board approved hiring Sahlberg on Monday night. According to Dist. 62 Board Pres. J. Clayton Macdonald, "The board is enthusiastic about Dr. Sahlberg's appointment." Screened first by the head of the education department at Northwestern University, Sahlberg was then chosen from several candidates interviewed by the school board.

Sahlberg, of 805 S. Wa-Pella Ave. in Mount Prospect, has a doctorate in education from Harvard University. Before coming to Dist. 57, he served for five years as the superintendent of school districts in Maine and Connecticut. He has studied at the University of Heidelberg in Germany, Northeastern University and George Washington University. His graduate study was done at the University of Massachusetts and Salem State College.

Eric Sahlberg

Ponder Hiring Consultants To Pick Successor

The Mount Prospect Dist. 57 school board will consider hiring a consulting firm to help select a new superintendent to replace Eric Sahlberg.

"We're going to take a look at the kind of services that are available, the cost and whether or not we could well use them," said Board Pres. Robert Novy. "Hiring a consultant is not a requirement, but we are investigating it this week."

Sahlberg said he thought hiring a consultant was a good idea. Novy said a new superintendent could be chosen as early as 60 to 90 days or as late as six to 10 months from now.

"We certainly want to make a thorough investigation of all the possibilities and I don't think the board's intention is to rush into it," he said. The board will consider each administrator, currently employed by the district, Novy said. He said he felt a consultant could possibly help the board evaluate those administrators.

The district's two assistant superintendents would make no comments on the possibility of their candidacy for superintendent.

"It's very difficult to make speculations," said Richard Percy, assistant superintendent in charge of instruction. "We don't know what the board is going to do—they may ultimately want to restructure."

Percy, who has been with Dist. 57 for three years, has served as superintendent for nine years in Kalamazoo, Michigan in a unit district with 25,000 students. J. C. Busenhardt, assistant superintendent in charge of finance, has also served as superintendent in Homer, Ill.

Bike Auction May 27

The Mount Prospect Police Department annual bicycle auction will be held May 27. The event will start at 9 a.m. in the public works building, 11 S. Pine St. As in the past, all proceeds will go to the Police Pension Fund.

Hillcrest Cleanup Saturday

Volunteers will work to clean debris and trash Saturday from the Hillcrest Slough in Prospect Heights.

The project is sponsored by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association beautification committee. Also expected to be at the slough are members of the Douglas MacArthur Junior High School Ecology Club and students from Wheeling High School.

Joan Masloake, chairman of the cleanup day, said yesterday, "We're hoping for at least 50 persons to participate."

The work will be carried on at the south end of the slough, located east of Rte. 83 and north of Hillside Avenue. The project will last from 10 a.m. to about 2 p.m. A similar cleanup day was held last September at the south end of the slough.

An upcoming project of the beautification committee is a garage and bake sale, set for May 12 and 13 at the home of association Pres. Robert Poltzer, 109 N. Parkway. The sale will last from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Deer Dies In Jump Through Window

A frightened deer met an untimely death in a Mount Prospect home Monday after the animal crashed through a plate glass window of the house.

Mount Prospect Police said Benedict Benjamin, 1828 Willow Ln., told them the deer had run into his garage and into the house breaking windows in an attempt to escape.

"The deer was cut all over the head and throat," James Smith, of Kay's Animal Shelter, said. "There was nothing much we could do. It bled to death from the wounds it received going through the plate glass windows."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

J. Edgar Hoover, who built the FBI into one of the world's most renowned crime-fighting organizations, died in his sleep at age 77. (Background story on Page 6.)

Evidence of the crossover vote Gov. George C. Wallace hoped would carry him to victory over Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey in Indiana failed to materialize in early returns. In Ohio, Humphrey's head-to-head clash with Sen. George S. McGovern was marred by charges of voting machine tampering.

An FBI agent said the government used a wiretap to gather evidence against the Harrisburg Seven, but he insisted the bugged conversations never were used in the government's case. Attorneys for the Rev. Philip Berrigan contended prosecution of the Roman Catholic priest was unconstitutional.

The FBI said it arrested a United Mine Workers official from Middlesboro, Ky. — Albert E. Pass, 51 — in connection with the murders of UMW leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

The State

The Illinois Senate turned back an attempt to revive a bill that would lower the legal drinking age in the state to 18. The bill, which was rejected last week by the Senate Judiciary Committee, would have allowed 18-year-olds to buy beer, wine and malt liquor.

Federal and state officials assisted authorities in Madison, Ill., investigating the cause of an explosion that destroyed four homes, injured 20 persons and sent debris over a wide area. Investigators said it may have been triggered by a gas leak.

The World

Gunmen in Belfast, Northern Ireland, fired on soldiers along the "peace line" separating Protestant and Catholic communities. In Londonderry, the Protestant political party headed by militant Rev. Ian Paisley appealed for conciliation talks with Catholic civil rights leaders.

The War

Scores of North Vietnamese tanks and infantrymen continued their push toward Hue, smashing through part of South Vietnam's new northern defense line, an artillery base 20 miles to the northwest. More than 20,000 Communist soldiers captured Artillery Base Bastogne, about 12 miles south of Hue, field reports said.

Marilyn Hallman

Karen Schuett, a sixth grade student at Fairview School, thinks modeling is fun. It's especially fun when you are modeling a pretty (flower girl's dress or a white leather playsuit with zany animals handpainted on it. And it's even more special when the designer of these outfits happens to be a favorite across-the-street neighbor.

On May 15 and 22, Karen will model in the prestigious fashion show at Chicago's Goodman Theater. Her two outfits were designed and made by her neighbor, Christy Skuban, 110 N. Prospect Manor. Christy is a senior at Chicago's Art Institute and is majoring in fashion design.

Each spring, fashion design students from the Art Institute exhibit their original designs at a jury show. Serving on the jury are Chicagoans involved with the fashion industry, as well as Art Institute faculty members. This jury selects the most outstanding outfits for inclusion in the May show.

Out of 230 entries, 169 garments were chosen for this month's show. Although each senior is only expected to enter six garments, Christy entered 23. Of those, 22 were chosen.

"The night before the jury show I went down to deliver my garments," said Christy. "The other students had done beautiful things such as evening gowns. All I had were tailored things and sports clothes — all in the sportswear line. I was sort of upset. When I learned later that 22 of my garments had been selected, I was shocked. I'm really happy about it."

ONE OF THE dresses Christy will show won the $500 Jerald Hahn award for "best daytime dress." Oddly enough, she isn't sure which dress it was.

"The award is made on the basis of points awarded by the jury," she explained. "Two of my dresses tied for first place." Jerald Hahn, who offered the award, is the owner of three Chicago area dress shops.

Another award Christy won recently was a cash award for a simple dress suitable for a paper pattern design. This was the Famous Features Award. Last year she also won the cash Fashion Group Award for "best collection."

Christy's crocheted bridal collection was also included in the recent Art Institute Women's Board show. In it, Karen modeled the flower girl dress.

"She was the hit of the show," reported Christy.

This young fashion designer has had lots of experience with crocheting. Her ability with the crochet hook, in fact, played a large part in getting her where she is today.

After completing two years of art education and fashion design at Harper College, Christy hoped to continue at the Art Institute. However, she just didn't have enough money for tuition.

THAT SUMMER she took some of her crocheted hats and scarves to show the Marshall Field buyer — and came home with a whopping order for 25 dozens. Her mother, Mrs. Michael Skuban, helped fill this order in four months.

The profits from this project enabled Christy to fulfill her dream of attending the Art Institute. Later she also crocheted dresses, skirts, and suits for several Michigan Avenue shops.

Now that her days at the Art Institute are nearly over, she has something even more exciting to look forward to.

"I'm planning to go into my own fashion design business," she explained. "I will do the pattern drafting and fabric selection, and I have several people lined up to help with the sewing."

Anyone interested in attending the Goodman Theater show can still order tickets for the 2 p.m. show on May 22. Other performances have been sold out. Tickets may be ordered from 1972 Fashion Show, Goodman Theater Box Office, 200 S. Columbus Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60603. Price is $4 each.

IT'S NOT AS EASY as it looks! That's what senior son. The occasion was Teacher Switch Day at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights. The event marked Teacher Career Month, proclaimed by Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

Assessment '70 Rapped

Attorneys fighting Special Assessment '70 attempted to show through the testimony of engineers yesterday in court that the proposed $633,900 storm sewer project is designed to serve an area far greater than that being assessed.

The attorneys represent about 110 property owners in the southwestern part of Mount Prospect who object to their assessments for the Special Assessment '70 sewer project.

They contend the proposed system is actually designed to serve not only the 350 properties in Mount Prospect that were assessed for it, but also areas in Arlington Heights and in unincorporated Cook County.

This came out in the testimony of Richard F. Stalzer, a consulting engineer who has designed several sewer systems. He testified that in his opinion the original sewer system, installed when the Hatten Heights area of Mount Prospect was developed, was sufficient for the area.

Also during his testimony Stalzer said the proposed new system would be inadequate to handle storm water from the Arlington Heights and unincorporated areas in addition to the Mount Prospect areas.

According to Stalzer original plans anticipated single and multi-family development in the unincorporated and Arlington Heights areas. Stalzer feels, however, there could be some commercial development, thus making the proposed system inadequate.

During cross examination Kenneth Stonesieffer, the attorney representing the Village of Mount Prospect, asked Stalzer whether any area in Mount Prospect was benefiting from the project without being assessed for it. Stalzer said no.

Stonesieffer has maintained throughout the trial the village can legally assess only the areas within the village that benefit from the project. The attorneys for the objectors have indicated through their opening statements and their questioning of witnesses that they believe property owners in Mount Prospect should not be assessed for an improvement that will benefit other areas outside the village.

The second witness called by the objectors' attorneys was Norman Tuberman, former village engineer for Arlington Heights. He elaborated on Stalzer's testimony saying flood water came from areas outside Mount Prospect and then tracing its path through Mount Prospect.

Under questioning from Stonesieffer, Stalzer testified that if the area to the west is developed flooding in the Hatten Heights area of the village would worsen. The trial was recessed late yesterday

Honeywell Ads Illegal?

The United Electrical Union Local 1114 has charged Honeywell Inc. management with using illegal advertisements in seeking temporary employees at the Arlington Heights plant.

The union, which has been on strike for nine weeks at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd., alleges advertisements were placed in local newspapers without indicating the union was on strike. Union Atty. Irving Meyers said yesterday that failure to reveal the strike is in violation of state statutes.

Management and union officials will attend a hearing on the matter this morning at the office of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan in Chicago.

"We want to stop the violation," Meyers said, adding that conviction of the alleged offense carries a $100 to $300 fine for each advertisement.

While the hearing is held in Chicago, another attempt will be made by federal mediators to resolve the strike at a conciliation session.

HOWEVER, UNION officials said yesterday that chances for settlement are dim, unless the present deadlock is broken. "We're just as far apart as when we started," said Don Cameron, chief union steward.

Honeywell spokesman Tony Bartolini said "the only encouraging thing is that we are still meeting."

More than 550 union workers walked off the job March 3, after the union turned down a two-year contract offer alleging inadequate fringe benefits.

Michael Karpis, union business manager, reiterated the union demands yesterday. He said major grievances in the contract are "over inequities in fringe benefits and job classifications" as well as lack of full vacation benefits for returning veterans.

Temporary workers have been hired to replace the strikers, Honeywell officials said, so that production can be resumed. Management reports that all manufacturing commitments are being met even though the strike continues.

The Arlington Heights firm produces temperature controls and building automation systems for large buildings.

Music Festival Slated Friday

The third annual Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 music festival will be held at 8 p.m. Friday at Prospect High School, 701 W. Kensington Rd.

Guest conductor for the concert will be Joel B. Streightoff of New Trier East High School. More than 500 students will be in the chorus, and more than 300 in the band.

Selections include the Grand March from "Aida," a Henry Mancini medley; "Up With People," "Swingin' Shepherd Blues," and "Born to Be Free."

The public is invited. Admission to the annual performance is free.

Neil Armstrong Here To Speak To Alexian Unit

The first man on the moon, former astronaut Neil Armstrong, will be the featured guest this evening at the annual spring benefit dinner of the Alexian Associates, a group of community leaders supporting the health care programs of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Armstrong will discuss "Change in the Space Age" at the dinner, to be held at the Itasca Country Club in Itasca.

Prior to the dinner, Armstrong, now a professor of engineering at the University of Cincinnati, will tour the Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Armstrong was selected as an astronaut by NASA in 1962. He served as backup command pilot for the Gemini 5 flight and performed the first successful docking of two vehicles in space in 1966 as command pilot for the Gemini 8 mission.

As spacecraft commander for Apollo 11, the first manned lunar landing mission, Armstrong in July, 1969, became the first man to land a craft on the moon and the first to step on its surface.

Commuter Confusion On First Day Of Tollway Work

Commuter confusion marked the first day of a three-month construction project on the Northwest Tollway yesterday, as early-morning drivers found unmarked median crossovers and speed limits not posted.

Michael Hartigan, tollway assistant chief engineer, acknowledged commuters encountered "confusion entering certain areas" but said all of the proper signs should be posted for today's drivers.

A number of tollway incidents were reported to police, including construction workers walking off the job because of erratic drivers near O'Hare Airport, Hartigan said. "Several tickets were issued to subjects driving through medians and proceeding on lanes where workmen were located," said State Police Lt. William Burt.

There was one major accident on the Tri-State Tollway, which is also under construction, that stalled traffic for miles. Hartigan said a semi-truck jackknifed and blocked the entire roadway at 11 a.m. and stopped all traffic flow for a short time.

Tollway officials said last night that "traffic was lighter on the Northwest Tollway than expected" attributing it to "people taking other means of transportation and alternate routes." However, a Chicago and North Western Rwy. spokesman said no noticeable increase in passengers was noted yesterday.

There was a 2 1/2-mile traffic jam on the Tri-State Tollway south of O'Hare Airport yesterday during the morning rush hour.

CONSTRUCTION ON the tollways yesterday consisted primarily of crushing concrete and work on bridges.

A tollway spokesman said he encourages drivers today "to begin their travels earlier" to avoid a possible 20 to 30-minute delay due to the barricaded lanes.

Two lanes in both directions are open to traffic with eastbound drivers crossing over to the inner lane of the opposite roadway.

Although speed limit signs were not posted yesterday, there is a 40 mile-an-hour limit through all construction zones.

The two simultaneous highway construction projects include 11 miles on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways. Northwest Tollway construction begins at the Kennedy Expressway junction and goes west to Meacham Road near Schaumburg. The Tri-State work runs from Ogden Avenue to the Northwest Tollway.

The $6.5 million projects will be completed by Aug. 1, according to tollway officials. The highways will be resurfaced as well as bridge repairs and lane striping.

A SEEMINGLY ENDLESS string of cars inched toward Chicago yesterday during morning rush hour and suburban commuters will experience similar congested driving conditions for the next three months while the

Park Board OKs Tennis Facility Site

The Arlington Heights Park District Board last night approved Forest View High School as the site of the proposed indoor tennis facility, and directed Architect Joe Bennett to proceed with topographic study and soil tests of the site.

School Dist. 214 Board of Education last week approved the use of the land adjacent to Forest View High School for the proposed building. Though the park district owns the site, the purchase agreement includes a stipulation requiring the park district to obtain permission from the school board before building a permanent structure.

The park board plans to further study means of financing the indoor tennis courts, which are expected to cost about $600,000. The board is in the process of retaining a financial consultant to assist with the program, which is expected to cost about $5,000.

According to Frederick Leydig, chairman of the indoor tennis facility committee, the structure should be financed with revenue bonds. A local bank has already verbally agreed to underwrite at least $200,000 of the project, according to Leydig.

BY FINANCING the facility with revenue bonds, any person or corporation who would be interested in financially supporting it could buy bonds. Therefore, there would be no increase in tax rates.

Leydig estimated yearly income of the facility at $130,000, based on 75 per cent usage of the facility, $9 prime time and $7 non-prime time rates and yearly membership fees of $60 per family, $30 per adult, and $15 per junior.

Yearly operating expenses, as estimated by Leydig, would be about $20,000. Therefore, net income per year would amount to $110,000.

"I think the tennis facility would be a success because of the comparatively low prices, the great amount of interest in tennis in this area and the high class facilities we would be providing," Leydig said.

ACCORDING TO Bennett's preliminary sketches, the brick structure would include six courts, a pro shop, nursery, and men's and women's locker rooms complete with saunas and whirlpools.

Robert E. Clark, chairman of the ice facility committee, presented a final proposal for an indoor ice facility, which includes a general ice surface of 200 by 85 feet and a studio rink of 100 by 40 feet.

"It is our recommendation that the park commissioners place the utmost urgency on the building of a community artificial rink," Clark's report states. It further recommends "a tax abated general obligation bond; and if such is defeated, then approach the matter with revenue bonds."

The proposed facility would cost an estimated $1,070,000. The expenses are expected to be $200,000 per year, and expected income is $265,000 per year.

General obligation bonds would require a referendum and an increase in the tax rate. Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, suggested that if a referendum were decided upon that $300,000 in park improvements, including the lighting of ball diamonds and the renovation of Recreation Park pool be included in the referendum.

A $2 million general obligation bond would cost the taxpayer a little over 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, and Thornton said. At the present time the park district tax rate is .365 which is down .015 from last year.

Stenzel Leaving Park Board

Robert A. Stenzel resigned from the Arlington Heights Park Board last night, making him the third commissioner to do so in the past five months.

Stenzel is moving to Rochester, N.Y., to accept a position in the international patent law division of Xerox Corp. His resignation will take effect immediately as he will begin his new job May 8.

"The job offer came up within the past two weeks, so I wasn't really able to give more advance notice," Stenzel said.

In January Edward Condon resigned because of a heavy workload at his job and in December LeRoy Bressler moved out of the district.

STENZEL, who was elected to the board last April, feels that the park district has become a smoother operation over the past year.

"I think the district is better managed than ever before," Stenzel said. "For example, we went from a deficit to a profit in our concessions just because of better management."

Stenzel also feels the park district has become more forward-looking in the past year, and cites the proposed indoor ice skating and tennis facilities as examples.

"These facilities are like cars — first they were luxuries, and later became necessities," Stenzel said. "Even if a referendum has to be passed to build the facilities, they will add to the value of the homes and the community as a whole. One reason I moved to Arlington Heights five years ago was because of the fine park district."

Stenzel also has been a member of the Arlington Heights Form of Government study group, the treasurer of South Junior High School PTA and a member of Friends of Clearbrook.

Charles Cronin, chairman of the park board, said the search for a replacement for Stenzel will begin immediately. The remaining four commissioners, including Cronin, William Meister, Lloyd Meyer and Robert Rees, will screen retired board members as well as the eight park board nominees who were considered when Condon and Bressler resigned.

Honeywell Used Illegal Ads, Union Says

The United Electrical Union Local 1114 has charged Honeywell Inc. management with using illegal advertisements in seeking temporary employees at the Arlington Heights plant.

The union, which has been on strike for nine weeks at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd., alleges advertisements were placed in local newspapers without indicating the union was on strike. Union Atty. Irving Meyers said yesterday that failure to reveal the strike is in violation of state statutes.

Management and union officials will attend a hearing on the matter this morning at the office of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan in Chicago.

"We want to stop the violation," Meyers said, adding that conviction of the alleged offense carries a $100 to $300 fine for each advertisement.

While the hearing is held in Chicago, another attempt will be made by federal mediators to resolve the strike at a conciliation session.

HOWEVER, UNION officials said yesterday that chances for settlement are dim, unless the present deadlock is broken. "We're just as far apart as when we started," said Don Cameron, chief union steward.

Honeywell spokesman Tony Bartolini said "the only encouraging thing is that we are still meeting."

More than 550 union workers walked off the job March 3, after the union turned down a two-year contract offer alleging inadequate fringe benefits.

Michael Karpis, union business manager, reiterated the union demands yesterday. He said major grievances in the contract are "over inequities in fringe benefits and job classifications" as well as lack of full vacation benefits for returning veterans.

Temporary workers have been hired to replace the strikers, Honeywell officials said, so that production can be resumed. Management reports that all manufacturing commitments are being met even though the strike continues.

The Arlington Heights firm produces temperature controls and building automation systems for large buildings.

Eye On Arlington

Police Thrust In Strike Ring

by KURT BAER

The strike by electrical workers at the Honeywell plant at the north end of the village has thrust the Arlington Heights Police Department into the ring as referee between two increasingly belligerent opponents.

By enforcing the right of free access to the plant for truckers, employees and visitors who, for whatever reason, have elected not to honor the strikers' picket line, the police have been cast as partisans in the dispute.

To the striking workers, whose tempers and wallets have now begun to wear thin, police supervision which includes the frequent use of a videotape camera is unjustified and premeditated harassment.

The police have ordered the removal of a house trailer parked near the plant which strikers have used during the nine week dispute. It constitutes and apparent violation of Arlington Heights zoning ordinances, in the eyes of the village administration.

In the eyes of the strikers, the order is further evidence the police have sided with Honeywell management.

SOME UNION members have charged Honeywell management was allowed to maintain an employment office in a house trailer for nearly eight months when the plant opened last year.

Arlington Heights Building Director Marty Munson says that if a trailer was in use at Honeywell for employment purposes, he was unaware of it.

Selective enforcement of any ordinance, either by intent or accident, is theoretically impossible to justify. But as a matter of practice, infractions of law do go undetected.

Strikers have suffered additional irritation by the recent posting of no parking signs along Dundee Road in front of the Honeywell installation.

According to police, the signs may have been installed as part of the state's improvement of Pte. 53 and are unrelated to the strike.

But to the men who have been forced to walk long distances from their cars to the picket line because of strict enforcement of the parking prohibition by Arlington Heights police, the signs spell yet another attempt by the village to break their strike.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police have reported a number of incidents at the Honeywell picket line including the scattering of nails at driveway entrances to keep out delivery trucks and occasional damage to cars driven by non-union workers.

These incidents, together with the growing discontent of the strikers, would seem to justify police patrol, though perhaps not continuous surveillance.

In defiance of the strike, Honeywell has hired over 300 so-called temporary workers which, according to the company spokesmen, have brought the plant to near full production.

If this is true, company management would appear to have one less reason to press for a rapid settlement of the dispute. And yesterday both union and management said the two sides had not moved significantly closer to reconciliation.

It is unfortunate that the strict enforcement of the law in this instance has had the effect of bolstering Honeywell's leverage against the strikers.

Library Fills Two Year Vacancy From Own Ranks

After a two-year vacancy, the position of head of adult services at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library has been filled by Jay B. Larson, a library employee for nine months, began his new duties Monday.

"I just never before found a person who was right for this particular supervisory position," said Harold Ard, executive librarian. "I had to find someone who was not only qualified in administrative ability and practical judgment, but who was familiar with our library methods."

Larson, formerly on the reference department staff, will supervise and coordinate activities between the circulation, reference and audio-visual departments.

"I plan to work at the reference desk when I have time, too," said Larson. "I want to keep in touch with the needs of the public."

Larson will need to know what the public wants in his new job, since he will help select adult books for the library. At the present time he is in the process of helping choose applied science books which the library will purchase with a federal grant.

Larson earned his master's degree in library science last summer at Northern Illinois University.

Two new reference librarians will also join the staff soon. In June, Gary Friedman, from Western Michigan University, will join the staff.

"We have been interviewing candidates for another reference librarian, too, and will make a decision shortly," said Ard.

Give Nod To Economic Plan Study

The Arlington Heights Village Board has approved a $19,750 economic planning study of the village as part of a revised master plan now under study by a joint committee of the village board and the plan commission.

Cost of the study, which will be made by the firm of Larry Smith and Co., exceeds by $3,750 the figure originally budgeted for an economic base study.

The extra cost is due to four special geographic areas the joint committee decided should be included in the study, according to Trustee Frank Palmatier, a member of the master plan committee.

The four special areas of study are north Arlington Heights Road, south Arlington Heights Road, Rand Road, and the potential for future land and annexation north of the village's present boundary.

Each of the special study areas and an extra $1,500 to the cost of the study, Palmatier said.

THE MAIN TEXT of the economic planning study will cost $10,000 with an additional $3,750 to be spent on a redevelopment strategy for the downtown business district.

The committee's decision to hire an outside consulting firm to prepare the economic base study was based on Village Planner Joe Kesler's opinion that the village's planning department did not have sufficient resources to make the study itself.

The four-member planning department has been at work on a new master plan for Arlington Heights for about one year. The village planning department was assigned to task of doing the bulk of the work after estimates by private planning firms put the cost of a new master plan for the village at nearly $140,000.

The last master plan for Arlington Heights was adopted in 1959.

Village OKs Industrial Plat, Drive-In Bank

The following is a summary of other actions taken at Monday night's village board meeting

The board approved a plat of subdivision in the Kenroy Industrial Park in north Arlington Heights which is expected to be the future international headquarters for Shure Brothers, Inc., an electronics specialty company.

In other action, the trustees approved development of a drive-in bank at the northwest corner of Belmont Avenue and Northwest Highway. The new banking facility will be built by the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

A new medical building on the north side of Central Road just west of Northwest Community Hospital was approved.

The medical office building is being developed by seven area doctors, all of whom practice at Northwest Community Hospital.

The trustees agreed to rehear a liquor license request for a restaurant proposed for the corner of Algonquin and New Wilke roads.

At their meeting of April 17, trustees followed the recommendation of the public health and safety committee to deny a liquor license to the proposed restaurant.

A special committee of the village board was appointed to work with the developer of the Ethan Allen Furniture Store proposed for the southwest corner of the intersection of Clarence Avenue and Rand Road.

March, April Swimming Attendance Near 6,000

Swimming pool attendance at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge, Arlington Heights, has nearly reached the 6,000 mark during March and April. Average monthly swim attendance is about 3,500.

"We had a record day on April 5, during spring vacation, when 501 people used the pool," said Jack Peleck, recreation supervisor. "I think that there is a great interest in swimming in the area due to the many competitive swim teams from high schools and the park district. Our special pool events also help draw large crowds."

Special events, which are included almost daily during open swim sessions, include scuba demonstrations, water basketball and water polo.

Another reason more people have been using the pool lately, according to Peleck, is because of the installation of a new chlorine monitoring device which is keeping the chlorine level and water temperature constant.

"We were getting complaints about over-chlorination of the pool — people were saying the water stung their eyes," said Peleck. "The room and pool temperatures were also a problem for a while."

THE NEW EQUIPMENT, which cost about $5,000, was installed the first week in April, and has been working perfectly since, Peleck said.

Prospective park district swim team members have been frequenting the pool more often lately to get in shape for the coming season, which also accounts for more swimmers, Peleck said.

"We will have two competitive park district swim teams this year instead of one so that more people can participate in the meets," Peleck said.

Public swimming is held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, 6:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Friday, 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and 7 to 9 p.m. Sunday. Monday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 for adult swimming.

Outdoor pools will open June 17, and swim passes are now on sale at all neighborhood recreation centers. Last year's swim passes will also be revaluated to save residents from a line-up to have their picture taken.

Board Awards $5.7 Million In School Bids

The High School Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday night approved more than $5.7 million worth of contracts for the construction of Buffalo Grove High School.

The general contract was awarded to Miller-Davis Co. of Metrose Park, for $3,371,130. The company submitted the lowest of seven bids.

In addition, the board awarded the high school plumbing contract to William Zeigler and Son, Inc. of Round Lake for $611,477; the heating contract to Byness, Inc. of Chicago, for $972,100; the electrical contract to Premier Electric of Chicago, for $759,000, and the testing and balancing contract, which will check heating and air-conditioning, for $19,300.

THE BOARD ALSO rejected a bid of $32,000 for maintenance of the building's rooftop air-conditioning units. Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services, said the item had been bid "mainly for information" and that the district officials believe the district's regular maintenance crew can do the work more inexpensively.

Weber said the total for the bids on the major contracts was under the district's proposed budget. Excavation, site preparation and installation of steel had been bid earlier and contractors for those operations have been on the scene since last fall.

The high school, which has a total budget of $10.5 million, will be built at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads in Buffalo Grove. It will have a design similar to the Rolling Meadows High School which opened last fall. The school is scheduled to open in September, 1973, and will be the district's eighth high school.

The Buffalo Grove Park District plans to let bids soon on a swimming pool to be built adjacent to the school. The school district and park district will split the costs of the facility.

Consultant Hits City Water System; Calls It Inadequate

The Des Plaines municipal water system is "totally inadequate" and needs about $2 million in improvements, according to a consulting firm's report presented to city officials.

Carl F. Buettner and Associates, Inc., a St. Louis firm hired by the city last summer to conduct an $11,200 study, recommended "immediate" construction of a new pumping station, a four-million-gallon reservoir and almost five miles of new water mains.

The firm also has proposed construction, within the next four years, of another pumping station, a three-million-gallon reservoir and 14,000 feet of pipeline.

The city council will meet May 8 to study the report's findings. The council agreed to allow a study after being told by City Engineer Robert Bowen of inadequate water pressure during dry weather periods, malfunctioning water storage tanks and nearly-clogged water pipes which had been installed before 1900.

The Buettner firm, which conducted water pressure tests and simulations of water use conditions, stated that "the present storage facilities and distribution system are totally inadequate to handle present maximum" daily use.

The firm found many low-pressure sections of the water system and found that some tanks, used for water storage, empty too quickly. At one point in the tests, several important water mains were found to be empty, the report states.

A new $125,000 water pumping station should be constructed "immediately" near Central Road and the Soo Line tracks on the north side of Des Plaines, the report states.

A FOUR-MILLION-GALLON water storage tank costing $270,000 is also needed right away, according to the report.

The first phase of improvements, costing an estimated $848,800 would also include new pipelines along the Soo Line tracks; on Golf Road, between the Soo Line and Mount Prospect Road; and on Mount Prospect Road, between Golf and Central. Another pipeline should be constructed near the Northwest Tollway, the report indicates.

The second phase of construction, urged for completion within the next four years, would include another $125,000 pumping station, and a $220,000, three-million-gallon storage tank, and a series of pipelines on the northern and southern sections of Des Plaines.

The two new tanks, with a total of about seven million more gallons of water storage capacity, would add about 50 per cent to the present 14½-million-gallon storage, the report indicates.

Buettner suggests that the city could receive about $800,000 for the water system improvements from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The rest could be raised through a bond issue, to be paid with revenues from water use.

ABOUT 25 PER CENT of the cost of these bonds would eventually be paid by city industries, which use a high volume of water. The cost to the average residential customer would be $4.70 a year, the report states.

The firm also predicted that average daily use would skyrocket in the next 20 years, from 14.4 million gallons a day to 24.5 million daily, as the population increases.

The water supply, now primarily obtained from the City of Chicago will be "adequate to meet present and future water needs" unless the present well water supply diminishes. If this occurs, the report said, a second connection to Chicago water supplies should be made — a step which would require construction of three miles of pipelines for about $450,000.

Hire Mt. Prospect School Chief Here

Eric Sahlborg has resigned as Mount Prospect Elementary Dist. 57 superintendent to take a job as superintendent of Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62.

Monday night Sahlborg turned in his resignation, effective June 30, to the school board. He begins his new job July 1, replacing Leon Smaage who held the Dist. 62 post for 26 years. Smaage, 64, announced his retirement in January.

Chosen from a field of 85 educators including 27 superintendents, Sahlborg will receive $30,000 a year as compared to the $28,350 he currently receives in Mount Prospect. Before Smaage retired, he received $35,000 a year.

SAHLBERG, 46, would not say why he was leaving Dist. 57 where he has served as superintendent for seven years.

"I will make my comments on June 19. That's my last board meeting," he said yesterday. Sahlborg has been the target of severe criticism from some residents for his actions as superintendent. They have charged him with, among other things, being unresponsive to the public. His staffing plans have also come under fire from time to time.

After a half-hour closed session, the board accepted Sahlborg's resignation "with regret." He had informed them of his plans in a closed meeting last week, Board Pres. Robert Novy said.

The board voted to employ Sahlborg as a consultant from July 1 to Aug. 30.

"I will be available to lend my assistance as requested by the new superintendent," he said. The Dist. 62 Board also agreed to employ Smaage as a consultant to assist Sahlborg in his new job.

NOVY SAID Sahlborg did not really explain why he was leaving the district "other than the new job would be in the area of self-betterment." Novy said Sahlborg was not asked to resign. Sahlborg's new district has more than 7,200 students as compared to the 3,600 in Dist. 57.

The Dist. 62 board approved hiring Sahlborg on Monday night. According to Dist. 62 Board Pres. J. Clayton Macdonald, "The board is enthusiastic about Dr. Sahlborg's appointment." Screened first by the head of the education department at Northwestern University, Sahlborg was then chosen from several candidates interviewed by the school board.

Sahlborg, of 805 S. Wa-Pella Ave., in Mount Prospect, has a doctorate in education from Harvard University. Before coming to Dist. 57, he served for five years as the superintendent of school districts in Maine and Connecticut. He has studied at the University of Heidelberg in Germany, Northeastern University and George Washington University. His graduate study was done at the University of Massachusetts and Salem State College.

City Seeks To Shut Day Care Center

The City of Des Plaines will seek a court injunction to close the Angel Town Nursery School, a day-care center at 2329 Birch St., because of an alleged violation of the city's zoning ordinance.

The city council voted Monday, at the suggestion of City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi, to hire an attorney and seek court action to close the center, after DiLeonardi said it is a commercial business in an area zoned residential.

Leo McLennon, attorney for the owner of the center, Lorraine Angell, said he will fight the city's actions in court because he feels the zoning ordinance, which allows schools and churches in residential zones, can be interpreted by courts to also allow nursery schools and day-care centers.

He said the Illinois Supreme Court recently had ruled that in several similar zoning codes nursery schools cannot be barred from residential areas.

DES PLAINES Mayor Herbert Behrel said yesterday that the court case may help to clear up legal questions about establishment of a day-care center — in which working mothers leave their children in the care of a licensed center.

Several day-care centers now operate in the city's residential areas, with both a city and a state license, but these all apparently are conducted within churches, rather than former residences, the mayor indicated. Often the centers are operated with contributions from local social service groups.

DiLeonardi, whose wife is president of the board for the Northwest Suburban Day Care Center at the First Presbyterian Church of Des Plaines, has asked that another attorney handle the city court actions on the Angel Town nursery — because of possible accusations of conflict of interest.

Mrs. Angell told the Herald yesterday that she has been trying to provide a service that is badly needed by Des Plaines mothers.

Mrs. Angell, who also operates a state-licensed day-care center and nursery in Rosemont, said the city has refused to issue a license to the new center on Birch Street because of the zoning conflict.

Sports, Vacation Show Is This Weekend

The Des Plaines Park District and the Izaak Walton League are co-sponsoring the 14th annual outdoor sports and vacation show this weekend at Rand Park, 2025 Miner St., Des Plaines.

The two-day event, which opens Saturday at noon, is the largest of its kind in the Chicago suburbs and is expected to attract 20,000 persons, park officials said.

The show will feature demonstrations, displays and outdoor activities, with special emphasis this year on conservation. There will be a balloon contest at noon both days with prizes awarded to the youngsters whose balloons travel the farthest.

More than 200 types of campers, tents and trailers for vacationers as well as all-terrain vehicles and sailboats will be on display in the parking lot area. INDOOR EXHIBITS will include camping, fishing, land developers, sporting goods, fishing tackle and scuba demonstrations.

Two free admission shows will be presented Saturday at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The shows will include scuba diving, a fast draw contest, a dog demonstration, and fly casting.

Movies about hunting, fishing and canoe racing will be shown continuously both days in the fieldhouse. There will also be free stage coach rides throughout the grounds and a live wild animal exhibit for the children.

The only activity with an admission charge will be trout fishing, which will be open during the two day show.

Geological Society Workshop Planned

The Des Plaines Valley Geological Society will hold its first annual workshop 8 p.m. Thursday May 18 at West Park fieldhouse, 661 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines.

The workshop will feature demonstrations of cabochon making, faceting stones, silver work, gem stones, opening fossils and mineral identification. The public is invited.

City Will Remove 'Spring Trash'

Besides tulips and green blades of grass, springtime in Des Plaines has sprouted old refrigerators and sofas along the city's curbsides.

Used furniture and appliances have been placed outdoors by residents for collection by city garbage truck crews, during a five week city-sponsored spring clean-up program.

Since April 10 when the special collection program began, the city has picked up an average of about 40 extra truckloads a week of discarded items — including concrete blocks, washing machines and bricks. The trucks are about 10 feet long and eight feet wide, according to Joseph Schwab, Public Works Commissioner.

The special service will be offered this week to residents, whose garbage is normally picked up on Thursdays. Between May 8 and 12, those residents whose garbage is normally picked up on Fridays, will be provided with the special pick-up service.

SO FAR, THE area which has produced the most discarded items and tree trimmings is the Bellaire area of the 1st ward, according to Schwab.

City employees have also aided Boy Scout clean-up projects in the downtown area, along Ellinwood and Miner streets and the Chicago and North Western Rwy. right-of-way land, Schwab said.

The scouts have also worked to clean up a site at the northeast corner of Lee and Oakton streets, which is used by city service groups for carnivals.

The special collection of items usually too big for normal garbage pick-ups was begun several years ago, according to Ald. Lois Czabkowski (8th) chairman of the council's beautification committee.

THE COMMITTEE is also planning other clean up projects, including landscaping and clean-up work on the Soo line property, south of Oakton.

Sections of railroad sidings between Graceland Avenue and Mount Prospect Road, which were cleared last summer by scouts, may be graded this year and planted with grass, Mrs. Czabkowski has said.

Drug Expert To Address Youth Panel

The director of Forest Hospital's drug abuse treatment and prevention program will speak tomorrow at a meeting of the Des Plaines Coordinating Council on Youth Problems.

Dr. Robert Simon, who also heads a special state-supported program for heroin addicts at the psychiatric hospital, 555 Wilson Ln., Des Plaines, will discuss youth and drug problems, including the adult's role in preventing drug abuse.

The council, an organization of community, church and school leaders will meet at noon, at the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

NEW OFFICERS will also be elected. Present officers are Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation for the Des Plaines Park district; and David Veerman, who heads Campus Life, a religious-based youth activity and discussion program.

Members of the group, including representatives of Maine Township Mental Health Clinic, 1032 Lee St., Des Plaines, the Maine Township Hotline emergency phone service, Des Plaines Police youth officers and the Des Plaines Place for People Youth Center, are also expected to report on recent activities.

During the last year, members of the council have worked to create a list of guidelines for Des Plaines parents. These are intended to help parents set limits and standards for teenage activities, dating, and behavior.

Projects of the council in 1970 led to creation of the Hotline phone service. The council has also studied problems of safety and youth vandalism.

Dr. Simon, in addition to his duties working with drug abuse, heads the hospital's toxicology laboratory, which is used to identify legal and illegal drugs and to identify possibly poisonous drugs.

Dr. Simon is in charge of the methadone maintenance for drug addicts. This program, backed by the Illinois Department of Mental Health, is designed to substitute methadone for heroin.

Although an addictive chemical, methadone when taken orally replaces the desire for heroin without impairing the addicts ability to remain fully conscious. Methadone may help addicts to be more receptive to treatment and rehabilitation, according to some doctors.

Cops Nab 3 At Tavern

Three youths, including a 19-year-old from Schaumburg and two Mount Prospect juveniles, were arrested early Saturday while they were allegedly burglarizing a Des Plaines tavern.

Several Des Plaines police officers, acting on a tip, were staked out at Steve's Lounge, 1460 E. Rand Rd. when the trio reportedly entered the tavern after prying open a window.

Police arrested Vincent Baldamenti, 19, of 504 Brockton St., Schaumburg. Baldamenti also suffered three broken cheekbones when he was struck by a police officer while resisting arrest, according to police.

Det. Al Freitag was inside the tavern when the trio entered and, according to police, identified himself as a police officer. The three youths then fled out the window and were chased by other officers outside, police said.

Police reportedly fired four warning shots into the air in an effort to stop the youths from fleeing. All three had to be physically restrained.

Baldamenti was taken to Holy Family Hospital and treated for face injuries.

He was released on $5,000 bond and is scheduled to answer burglary charges May 9 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit court.

The Mount Prospect youths, ages 14 and 16, were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Zoning Panel Denies Hospital Expansion Plea

The Des Plaines Zoning Board has recommended city council denial of a rezoning request which would have allowed Forest Psychiatric Hospital, 555 Wilson Ln., to expand.

Citing community opposition, the board was not convinced "of the public need and general desirability of reclassifying the property . . . as requested."

Hospital spokesmen had sought a rezoning of property at 1717 Rand Rd., now used by the Des Plaines Funeral Home and ambulance service, from a C-1 neighborhood shopping center zoning to the C-2 commercial category.

The building would have been used for additional adolescent care and a sheltered care workshop, the spokesmen said.

The board was presented with petitions from about 70 residents who protested increased commercialization, possible increases in traffic, and possible danger to school children passing the proposed hospital annex.

Buick-In-Evanston Wins Again In Classic Bowling

It's tough to repeat as champion in any sport.

Everybody gets up a little higher, tries maybe a little bit harder, when facing the champs.

But no matter how hard they tried in the Paddock Classic Traveling League for 1971-72, the story was a repeat of 1970-71.

Buick-In-Evanston walked off with the grand championship.

Sure, it took the powerful Buick entry a rolloff this year to grab the top prize after sweeping both halves in 1970-71.

But even in the rolloff last weekend Buick was awesome.

With Russ Grosch rolling a booming 604 at Ten Pin Bowl on Saturday Buick swept seven straight points from Uncle Andy's.

Grosch combined at 233 and followed with a 246-215 domination to easy outdistance the other nine bowlers in the match.

That 246 keyed a 984 second game output, the highest by Buick in their march to the title and the real crusher for Uncle Andy's.

After a tense 944-904 opening victory for Buick, with Grosch firing a 233 for the winners and Joe Simonis a 209 and Don Eberl a 203 for the losers, the eventual champions had an easy time in the second game.

Grosch's big performance took the spotlight in a victory of over 100 pins, and although Uncle Andy's came back fighting to make it interesting in the third game, Buick had too much firepower.

Dick Kamin rolled a 225, Grosch a 215, and Ray Olson a 205 in that third game triumph while George Schmidt hit 215 and Mike Wagner 203 for Uncle Andy's.

In the windup Sunday at Striking Lanes Uncle Andy's finally crashed into the win column with 216s by Simonis and Eberl leading the way. They did gain the consolation of rolling a 996 in victory, the highest game by either team in the two day roll-off.

Fine team balance dictated for Buick-In-Evanston in the decisive finish with Ray Olson firing a steady 203 to lead the way in a 953-912 conquest.

It's tough to repeat as champion in any sport, but the group of Fred Hansen, Terry Herlihy, Dick Kamin, Russ Grosch, and Ray Olson turned the trick in style last weekend.

Hail the champs.

Demons Seventh At Palatine Track Relays

Gary Marshak took second place in the mile run and the two-mile relay took second as Maine East scored 17 points in the Palatine Relays Saturday.

The 17-point total earned the Demons seventh place in the meet. Lane Tech won the Class A trophy with 64 points and Addison Trail was second with 59.

In Class B, Maine North finished 10th with five points.

Marshak was timed in 4:28 in the mile as Larry Knapp of Lane Tech took first in 4:24.4. The two-mile relay team took second with an 8:10.2 with Mike Bell, Chris Bednarowicz, Mike Siefert and Pat Moyer as the runners.

John Lovasz finished third in the two-mile run with 9:39 and Rick Phalen was fifth in the mile run in 4:30. Rocky Read and Mike Smith tied for fifth place in the high jump with 6-0.

Oakton Cops 6-5 Thriller In Region Diamond Action

"We tried hard to give the game away, but they gave it right back to us."

Oakton baseball coach Bob Hale summed up Monday's District One Tournament game with these words after his Raiders nipped Prairie State 6-5.

The Raiders met Thornton on Tuesday and a win would put the Raiders into the District One title game today at 3:30 p.m. against the Kennedy-King-Morton winner. Results of Tuesday's games were unavailable at press time.

Oakton attempted to get itself knocked out of the tournament by committing four errors, but Prairie State was even more generous with seven errors.

A splendid relief performance and a home run by Larry Gawaluch enabled the Raiders to pick up their fourth win of the season against five losses.

Prairie State took a 1-0 lead in the first inning and made it 2-0 in the third.

Oakton came back with two runs in the fourth frame, which was started by Jim Buchholz' home run to left-center field. A single and a stolen base by Bob Egebrecht and an error tied the score.

After Prairie State took a 3-2 lead in the fifth inning, Oakton tallied three runs in the sixth.

Pat Fullen started the inning with a walk and went to second on a single by Buchholz. Egebrecht grounded into a fielder's choice which had Fullen safe at third and Buchholz out at second.

Phil Olsberg followed with an infield roller which the first baseman promptly threw into center field on an attempt to get Egebrecht out at second base. Fullen scored on the play, Egebrecht took third and Olsberg, who was replaced by pinch runner Frank Kochevar, was on first.

With a double steal play on, somebody forgot to cover second base and the Oakton catcher threw the ball into center field which permitted Olsberg and Egebrecht to score to give Oakton a 5-3 lead.

Prairie State tied the score in the top of the seventh and had runners on first and second with nobody out when Hale replaced starter Larry Teschner with Gawaluch. Gawaluch forced Prairie State to pop up and strike out twice to end the inning.

In the bottom of the seventh, Gawaluch belted a home run to left-center field to make the score 6-5.

Buchholz was the leading hitter, going 3-for-3, and Egebrecht went 2-for-4.

Dons Reap Fencing Honors At Wisconsin Tournament

Notre Dame swept the top four places in epee, three of the top four in saber and half of the top six in foil at a fencing tournament at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis., over the weekend.

Terry McConville led the Dons by taking first place in epee and second place in foil.

In saber, Sam DiFiglio took second place, Tom Alcock third place and Paul Quiniff, a Notre Dame grad, fourth place.

Russ Rempala finished in second place in epee while Gary Berlak finished third and Tim Glass fourth. Quiniff was fourth in foil and DiFiglio was sixth.

The meet was for 19-and-under boys, which made the Notre Dame finishes all that more impressive since most of the Dons are either 16 or 17 years old.

With a string of victories at Lawrence University, DiFiglio and Alcock went over the 100-win mark for the season. McConville has more than 150 victories this season.

Only six fencers have gone over 100 wins in a single season at Notre Dame — Mike Cornwall, Jim Mullinex, John Brandt, McConville, Alcock and DiFiglio. McConville and Alcock have eclipsed the century mark in two straight seasons.

Four Dons will compete in the Midwest Sectional Championships which will be held on Saturday and Sunday, May 20-21, at Battle Creek, Mich. Fencers from 10 states will compete.

McConville will compete in foil and epee, Alcock and Quiniff will compete in foil, Berlak in epee and DiFiglio in saber.

The top four finishers in each weapon will advance to the National Championships in Boston in July.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the His & Hers Mixed League at Elk Grove Bowl, Tony DeRosa was high with a 666 series which included games of 250-213-203. Other top series were 583, his wife Carol Ballard's 580 and Earl Tate's 564.

Pete Santucci hit 558, Ralph Roller 555, Barb Goeddeke 488 and Lorraine Kazning 477. Newly elected officers for the coming year are Peter Santucci, president; Mike Ballard, vice-president; and Mary Ann Tate, secretary-treasurer.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

THE GUY IN THE boat had done the right thing ... and so had a dozen or so along the shoreline ... they had taken a kid fishing.

Often, taking a kid fishing is merely an excuse some anglers think they need in order to justify going panfishing on purpose. And why there is any kind of stigma attached to swimming a worm in search of crappies, perch and bluegills is beyond me. But there is ... and there shouldn't be.

Probably part of the reason for the snickers directed toward the bobber fisherman is based on the fact that he hasn't spent a lot of money for his outfit, he isn't working very hard and he isn't taking "tackle busters." And the guy doing the chuckling has spent a lot of money for his outfit, he is casting and working and changing lures ... and he isn't taking any "tackle busters" either.

In both cases, however, the fisherman is probably to blame if he isn't catching fish. (How is it a golfer can have a bad day and blame himself ... but put the same guy on the water and his lack of experience or practice becomes the fault of "the elements"?)

Nonetheless, panfishermen too often believe that they are indulging in the simplest of all sports ... and that it is humanly impossible to do anything wrong.

Penalize yourself, if you must, but if you're going to take a kid fishing, be careful ... do it correctly. For example: Go panfishing with panfishing equipment. Use line and hooks and other accessories that are made for panfish. A Lake Michigan sized bobber, for instance, is like a signal flag to even the dumbest bluegill. Leave it home. Here are some other do's and don'ts that make fishing for the midwest's bread and butter fish a lot more productive:

1. Most important of all, sinkers or split shot have only one function — to counterbalance your bobber so that the slightest nibble carries it below the surface. Remember, your bobber should just barely hang at the surface!

2. Never put the split shot or sinker near the hook. The bait should drift down in the water naturally, not hang like a dead weight. Keeping the split shot up near the bobber will also keep fish from nibbling at that instead of the baited hook.

3. Don't believe that old malarky about "the bigger the hook the bigger the fish." It's wrong! A long-shanked, light, thinwire 8 or 10 hook gives your bait better action and damages it less, so it lasts longer and is more lively. Fish usually inhale a bait without realizing the hook is there. This also applies to big bass and walleyes. Don't buy one of those mixed assortment of hooks, the hooks are invariably too thick. Buy a box of the size you want and remember ... thin wire!

4. The lighter the line, the more strikes you'll have. You may not land every fish that strikes, but think of the fun of bragging about the one that got away.

5. Don't use a cable or wire leader unless you're fishing for muskies. (I don't even use one then, but some do.) Don't attach a hook to your line with a clip. Always tie your hook directly to the line. Leaders and snaps chase fish.

6. The largest bluegills and crappies are the smartest. They are the ones that nibble ever-so-lightly. The little ones stupidly suck up a bait without hesitation. So go back to Rule 1.

7. A small, thin hook should not be buried, or "hidden" in the bait. The more lightly a bait is hooked, the better, and the more fish it attracts.

8. The clearer the water, the lighter the line you should use. Panfishermen should never use anything heavier than 4 pound line ... and 2 pound is better, particularly in clear water.

9. Move around. If you're fishing a lake or river or mill pond, it makes no difference, don't waste time at a spot where you're not catching fish ... even if you or your Uncle John filled a bushel basket there last week. Many times too, the first fish you catch at a new spot is a big bluegill or crappie. That fish is often followed by a succession of increasingly smaller fish. When the fish start to get too small, you have to move again, because the "biggies" aren't there. If they were the little ones wouldn't be able to get at your bait.

Nite crawlers or angleworms are excellent panfish baits for most of the year (although right now a minnow would be a little better for crappies). For big panfish, bluegills, perch or crappies, cut the site crawler in half and run your hook into the broken end. If you're using an angleworm, hook it lightly, once, through the middle so both ends will wiggle.

Don't hook a nite crawler through the collar, if once through the tip of the heavy end.

Your equipment should include light or ultra-light equipment, 4 pound monofilament, a few small split shot, a small bobber, about the size of a nickel, and that thin hook tied directly to the line.

And don't fool around with any "wait and set" theories when you're bobber fishing. When the bobber disappears, set the hook and start enjoying your day.

DISTANCE STARS. The Herald area made one of its strongest showings of the Palatine Relays in the two-mile run with four of the five places. Left to right were: Joe Sweeney (St. Viator), 9:40.5 for fourth place; Curt Ostby (Riverside-Brookfield), 9:32.8 for second; Jim Wise (Forest View), the winner with 9:31.4; Gary Marshak (Maine East), third, with 9:39.4 and Mark Nugent (Fremd), fifth with 9:49.6.

Notre Dame swept the top four places in epee, three of the top four in saber and half of the top six in foil at a fencing tournament at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis., over the weekend.

Terry McConville led the Dons by taking first place in epee and second place in foil.

In saber, Sam DiFiglio took second place, Tom Alcock third place and Paul Quiniff, a Notre Dame grad, fourth place.

Russ Rempala finished in second place in epee while Gary Berlak finished third and Tim Glass fourth. Quiniff was fourth in foil and DiFiglio was sixth.

The meet was for 19-and-under boys, which made the Notre Dame finishes all that more impressive since most of the Dons are either 16 or 17 years old.

With a string of victories at Lawrence University, DiFiglio and Alcock went over the 100-win mark for the season. McConville has more than 150 victories this season.

Only six fencers have gone over 100 wins in a single season at Notre Dame — Mike Cornwall, Jim Mullinex, John Brandt, McConville, Alcock and DiFiglio. McConville and Alcock have eclipsed the century mark in two straight seasons. Four Dons will compete in the Midwest Sectional Championships which will be held on Saturday and Sunday, May 20-21, at Battle Creek, Mich. Fencers from 10 states will compete.

McConville will compete in foil and epee, Alcock and Quiniff will compete in foil, Berlak in epee and DiFiglio in saber.

The top four finishers in each weapon will advance to the National Championships in Boston in July.

At Elk Grove Bowl

In the His & Hers Mixed League at Elk Grove Bowl, Tony DeRosa was high with a 666 series which included games of 250-213-203. Other top series were Arnie Goeddeke's 593, Mike Ballard's 583, his wife Carol Ballard's 580 and Earl Tate's 564.

Pete Santucci hit 558, Ralph Roller 555, Barb Goeddeke 483 and Lorraine Kastning 477. Newly elected officers for the coming year are Peter Santucci, president; Mike Ballard, vice-president; and Mary Ann Tate, secretary-treasurer.

Sportsman's Notebook

by Bob Holiday

THE GUY IN THE boat had done the right thing . . . and so had a dozen or so along the shoreline . . . they had taken a kid fishing.

Often, taking a kid fishing is merely an excuse some anglers think they need in order to justify going panfishing on purpose. And why there is any kind of stigma attached to swimming a worm in search of crappies, perch and bluegills is beyond me. But there is . . . and there shouldn't be.

Probably part of the reason for the snickers directed toward the bobber fisherman is based on the fact that he hasn't spent a lot of money for his outfit, he isn't working very hard and he isn't taking "tackle busters." And the guy doing the chucking has spent a lot of money for his outfit, he is casting and working and changing lures . . . and he isn't taking any "tackle busters" either.

In both cases, however, the fisherman is probably to blame if he isn't catching fish. (How is it a golfer can have a bad day and blame himself . . . but put the same guy on the water and his lack of experience or practice becomes the fault of "the elements"?)

Nonetheless, panfishermen too often believe that they are indulging in the simplest of all sports . . . and that it is humanly impossible to do anything wrong.

Penalize yourself, if you must, but if you're going to take a kid fishing, be careful . . . do it correctly. For example: Go panfishing with panfishing equipment. Use line and hooks and other accessories that are made for panfish. A Lake Michigan sized bobber, for instance, is like a signal flag to even the dumbest bluegill. Leave it home. Here are some other do's and don'ts that make fishing for the midwest's bread and butter fish a lot more productive:

1. Most important of all, sinkers or split shot have only one function — to counterbalance your bobber so that the slightest nibble carries it below the surface. Remember, your bobber should just barely hang at the surface!

2. Never put the split shot or sinker near the hook. The bait should drift down in the water naturally, not hang like a dead weight. Keeping the split shot up near the bobber will also keep fish from nibbling at that instead of the baited hook.

3. Don't believe that old malarkey about "the bigger the hook the bigger the fish." It's wrong! A long-shanked, light, thinwire 8 or 10 hook gives your bait better action and damages it less, so it lasts longer and is more lively. Fish usually inhale a hook without realizing the hook is there. This also applies to big bass and walleyes. Don't buy one of those mixed assortment of hooks, the hooks are invariably too thick. Buy a box of the size you want and remember . . . thin wire!

4. The lighter the line, the more strikes you'll have. You may not land every fish that strikes, but think of the fun of bragging about the one that got away.

5. Don't use a cable or wire leader unless you're fishing for muskies. (I don't even use one then, but some do.) Don't attach a hook to your line with a clip. Always tie your hook directly to the line. Leaders and snaps chase fish.

6. The largest bluegills and crappies are the smartest. They are the ones that nibble ever-so-lightly. The little ones stupidly suck up a bait without hesitation. So go back to Rule 1.

7. A small, thin hook should not be buried, or "hidden" in the bait. The more lightly a bait is hooked, the better, and the more fish it attracts.

8. The clearer the water, the lighter the line you should use. Panfishermen should never use anything heavier than 4 pound line . . . and 2 pound is better, particularly in clear water.

9. Move around. If you're fishing a lake or river or mill pond, it makes no difference, don't waste time at a spot where you're not catching fish . . . even if you or your Uncle John filled a bushel basket there last week. Many times too, the first fish you catch at a new spot is a big bluegill or crappie. That fish is often followed by a succession of increasingly smaller fish. When the fish start to get too small, you have to move again, because the "biggies" aren't there. If they were the little ones wouldn't be able to get at your bait.

Nite crawlers or angleworms are excellent panfish baits for most of the year (although right now a minnow would be a little better for crappies). For big panfish, bluegills, perch or crappies, cut the size crawler in half and run your hook into the broken end. If you're using an angleworm, hook it lightly, once, through the middle so both ends will wiggle.

Don't hook a nite crawler through the collar, if doesn't look natural. Hook him just once through the tip of the heavy end.

Your equipment should include light or ultra-light equipment, 4 pound monofilament, a few small split shot, a small bobber, about the size of a nickel, and that thin hook tied directly to the line.

And don't fool around with any "wait and set" theories when you're bobber fishing. When the bobber disappears, set the hook and start enjoying your day.

DISTANCE STARS. The Herald area made one of its strongest showings of the Palatine Relays in the two-mile run with four of the five places. Left to right were: Joe Sweeney (St. Victor), 9:40.5 for fourth place; Curt Ostby (Riverside-Brookfield), 9:32.8 for second; Jim Wise (Forest View), the winner with 9:31.4; Gary Marshak (Maine East), third with 9:39.4 and Mark Nugent (Fremd), fifth with 9:49.6.

Demon Golfers Lose To York

York, with one of the better teams in the West Suburban League, defeated Maine East 318-357 in a dual golf meet Monday at the Park Ridge Country Club.

Chuck Graber of York was the meet's medalist with a 74 over the par-70 course. For Maine East, Tom Kelley shot an 83, Brad Kroll an 87, Jeff Castles an 89 and Greg Siefert a 90.

York also won the frosh-soph meet. Maine East will face LaGrange at the LaGrange Country Club on Thursday and will go against Niles West at Chevy Chase on Friday.

Deerfield Whips West Linksmen

Deerfield came up with four splendid scores to defeat Maine West 157-178 in a Central Suburban League golf meet at Golden Acres Monday.

For Maine West, Jeff Potter shot a 43, Mark Wagner a 44, Paul Wilkay a 45 and Glen Dalbke a 46.

Deerfield won the frosh-soph meet 180-171.

The Warriors will host Glenbrook North on Wednesday and will compete in the Chevy Chase meet on Saturday.

Warriors Edge Grove Netters

With a number of close sets and matches, Maine West edged Elk Grove 3-2 in a non-conference tennis meet Monday on the Warriors' courts.

Steve Wild of Maine West won in No. 1 singles over Mark Greenberg 11-9 and 6-3. John Anderson of Maine West defeated Len Greenberg 6-2, 4-6 and 6-4 in No. 2 singles.

Elk Grove's Ken Pollitz defeated Jack Semler 6-1 and 6-3 in No. 3 singles. Elk Grove won the No. 1 doubles match with Jim Siebold and Mike Smith 4-6, 6-0 and 6-2 over Roger Junge and Joe Thimm.

Jim Lauffenberger and Doug Meister of Maine West won the No. 2 doubles match over Bruce Kinn and Scott Holste 6-1 and 6-2.

Maine West won the frosh-soph meet 4-1.

Deerfield Rips Warrior Netmen

Deerfield, with some of the better underclassmen in Chicagoland, blanked Maine West 5-0 in a Central Suburban League tennis meet Thursday.

Sophomore Dane Neller defeated Steve Wild 6-3 and 6-2 in No. 1 singles. Freshman Harrison Bowes downed John Anderson 6-1 and 6-2 in No. 2 singles and classmate Robby White defeated Jack Semler 6-0 and 6-2.

In No. 1 doubles, Tom Cath and Jono Rothschild defeated Roger Junge and Joe Thimm 6-0 and 6-0 and, in No. 2 doubles, Brian Werth and Pete Davis shut out Jim Lauffenberger and Doug Meister 6-0 and 6-0.

The Warriors are scheduled to meet Maine North today at 4:15 p.m.

Second Branigar Open Set For Monday, May 8

The second annual Branigar Open Golf Tournament for Illinois golf professionals will be held at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomington on Monday, May 8.

The tournament players will challenge the long and well-trapped 7,040 yard Sioux Course at Indian Lakes.

According to Larry Rouse, Illinois Section PGA tournament chairman and pro at Ruth Lake Country Club in Hinsdale, more than 120 Illinois Section pros are expected to compete in this tournament, up from the 104 who participated last year. The prize money will again be $2,000 for the two-man, best-ball teams.

In the first Branigar Open last May, only four pro teams bettered the par 72 on the Sioux course out of the 82 teams who participated. The challenging course and particularly very high winds sky-rocketed scores.

The 1971 event was won by the team of Ron Bakich of Oak Park Country Club and Bill Erfurth of Skokie Country Club. Their winning score of a three under par was worth $500.

Tied for second last year were Charles Bartlett of Golfand with Dean Lind of

The Hedges Country Club along with the team of Don Stickney of Chicago Golf Club and Dee Denelli of Nordic Hills.

The tournament is sponsored by The Branigar Organization's Management Services Division under the auspices of the Illinois Section of the PGA. Branigar operates recreational properties from Florida to Wisconsin. In the Chicagoland area, Branigar operates Indian Lakes, Sportsman Country Club in Northbrook, Buffalo Grove Golf Club in Buffalo Grove, the new Hilldale Country Club in Hoffman Estates (which is scheduled to open May 20), and Midlane Country Club in Wadsworth near Waukegan. All these local clubs are daily fee courses except Midlane which is private.

Tom Speck, host pro at Indian Lakes, and Fred Koehler, Director of Club Operations for Branigar both stressed that the public is invited to attend the tournament. The pros will begin teeing off at 11:00 a.m. on Monday the 8th of May. Ample parking is available and there is no charge for visitors who wish to attend the tournament.

'Y' Members Place In State Judo Meet

Fifteen members of the Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines won trophies in the recent State YMCA Judo Championships.

In the boys division, 9-year-old Philip Fermo from Mount Prospect won 2nd place in the 9 and 10 year old lightweight division. Steve Lindstrom, from Arlington Hts., won 2nd place in the 9 and 10 year old heavyweight group, while his brother Andy won the 1st place trophy in the 11 and 12 year old lightweight division. Paul Fermo earned 2nd place in the 11 and 12 year old heavyweight group. In the 13 and 14 year old lightweight division, Mike Prelberg from Highland Park placed 1st and Paul Furlong from Hoffman Estates placed 2nd. In the 13 and 14 year old heavyweight group, Dan Prelberg won 1st place, Pete Fermo won 2nd and Steve Chelberg, from Arlington Heights earned 3rd place.

In the women's division, Lorraine Malecki, Des Plaines, won 1st place, and Carol Royster from Des Plaines won 3rd place in the White Belt-Green Belt Division. Carolyn Dobrei, Arlington Heights, won 1st place in the Brown Belt group.

In the men's division, Donald Randall, Des Plaines, won 2nd place in the White Belt-Green Belt division. Don Prelberg placed 2nd in the Brown Belt lightweight group, while Ed Gates from Arlington Hts. placed 3rd in the Brown Belt Heavyweight division.

Beginning classes in Judo for boys and girls and self-defense classes for adults, begin this week at the Northwest Suburban YMCA. Call the 'Y' at 298-3376 for information.

Dons Dazzle With Another Shutout

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

There is a sense of anticipation and excitement on Notre Dame's baseball team.

After two consecutive shutout victories—11-0 over Carmel on Sunday and 20 over Notre Dame on Monday—the Dons still have a shot at the Suburban Catholic Conference championship and are anxiously awaiting the Maine East District Tournament which will get underway Monday.

"We're playing real good ball right now," said Dons' coach Ken Maziarka after Monday's victory. "Our pitching has been outstanding, we're hitting the ball and we're making the plays in the field."

"We're still leaving too many baserunners, but, other than that, we're playing fine ball."

Ken Sommers went the distance against Carmel and yielded just one hit while striking out four and walking only one. Dick Allegretti tossed a three-hitter at St. Viator and walked only two batters.

Against Carmel, the Dons took a 1-0 lead in the first inning as Wayne Brekke singled, went to second on a hit batsman, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and scored on an error.

In the third frame, a double by Brekke, an error, a walk to Rich Luzinski, a sacrifice bunt by Marty Draths, a walk to John Loessy, another error and a single by Sommers brought in six runs to make the score 7-0.

A grand slam home run by Luzinski after Brekke, Joe Saccomanno and John O'Connor walked made the score 11-0 in the fourth inning.

The game was halted in the fifth by the Suburban Catholic League's 10-run rule.

Just when it seemed that Dons would never score a run Monday (they left eight batters on base in the first three innings and another stranded baserunner in the fourth), they tallied two runs in the fifth.

Saccomanno started the inning by drawing a walk and went to second as Luzinski was safe on an error. Randy Kamowski grounded into a fielder's choice with Saccomanno safe at third and Luzinski out at second.

John O'Connor hit a fly out to left field and Saccomanno tagged up at third base. As Saccomanno raced for the plate, the outfielder threw the ball over the cutoff man's head, the catcher's head, the backstop and the driveway behind the backstop and the run scored and Kamoski advanced to third. A single by Rich Pedit drove in Kamowski for the second run.

Allegretti was in trouble only twice in the game—runners on first and second with one out in the fourth inning and the same situation came up in the seventh. But, each time he pitched his way out of the jam.

The wins put Notre Dame's record at 5-4-1 in the Suburban Catholic Conference and the Dons still have a mathematical chance at winning the title. The Dons must beat St. Joseph at home on Thursday and St. Francis DeSales at home on Friday while Holy Cross, the current league leader, loses three games.

Notre Dame is 10-6-1 overall and has gone unbeaten in its last six games, winning five and losing one.

The Dons will open Maine East District play against Maine West on Monday.

Stirrings In The Convent

Change Comes Gradually To Conservative Order

by DOROTHY OLIVER
(First of two parts.)

Outside things haven't changed much over the years.

The rambling, red-brick convent presents a sturdy, traditional image to passing motorists as it sits sheltered by trees set back from the busy thoroughfare.

Inside the casual visitor would hardly detect any change. An aging sister in floor-length black habit unlocks the heavy front door and politely ushers the caller to a comfortable sitting room where the silence is disturbed only by noises from the outside world.

Down the hall in the ornate, golden chapel sit one or two sisters engrossed in their wordless prayer, running beads through their fingers or quietly turning the pages of small black books.

THE STILLNESS is broken by the sound of striding feet and a young, smiling sister stands in the doorway dressed in the modified short habit and veil worn by the majority of religious. She is eager to tell about the conservative but continuing changes that have taken place in her order. Changes only those inside the secure convent walls can fully understand.

"Religious life before tended to be an isolation from the world. Now we are people of the church reaching out to people," said Sister Carol Marie, assistant director of novices and vocation director of Sacred Heart Province, Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, Des Plaines.

"New fields have opened up and the religious are going out to people more. We're taking more of a part in parish work and in the schools."

"THERE IS MORE stress on, 'I am a person, an individual, a woman putting herself in a religious life,'" she said.

Sister Carol Marie's job is to go to elementary schools and interest 8th grade girls in the order's new home aspirancy program and to interest high school girls in becoming affiliated with the order.

Before last year girls could affiliate with the convent right after they graduated from 8th grade. They lived in a large white house in back of the convent during their high school years and their lives were guided by the sisters.

Now the future sister lives with her parents, attends the high school of her choice, dates and joins activities while she is affiliated with the community. One sister guides the aspirant toward her vocation.

"ONCE A MONTH the aspirant comes here for a spiritual talk. While guiding them you watch the changes taking place in them — their whole personality begins changing towards the religious life," Sister Carol Marie said.

If, after high school graduation, the aspirant chooses the religious vocation, she becomes a postulant and moves into the Province House. A year later she becomes a novice and spends the next two years studying the spiritual life, the constitution of the order and attending classes at DeLourdes College in Des Plaines, run by the sisters.

At the end of the second year the novice takes the first of three temporary vows and becomes a scholastic. Once she has made the three one-year vows she can ask for permission from the community to take her final vows, make a final commitment and become a senior or final professed sister.

"IT IS psychologically and emotionally better to have girls enter the convent after they have completed high school or work or college," Sister Carol Marie said. "There are now many lifestyles to choose from. The older woman knows what life is, she makes a more mature decision to enter the religious life."

There are no postulants with the Province House now and only three novices. The three are 30, 29 and 19 years of age.

"The older (women) have a harder time adjusting. They tend to ask why a lot but are willing to accept more challenges once they know why," she said.

Once in the convent the future nun leads a full day. There are morning mass, prayers, meditation, college classes, meals, spiritual classes, one or two hours of free time for recreation, television or hobbies and homework. There is no time for idle hands or idle minds; there is always something to learn, something to do, someone to talk to, some part of one's self to know more about.

THE NUMBERS who have entered communities like Sister of the Holy Family of Nazareth are small. The three-story convent has room for many more than the 60 who presently live there.

Large numbers have left the vocation and turned to other lives. "Some leave because they want more freedom," Sister Carol Marie explained. "I have freely accepted the rules we have and follow them. Some can't. Some leave because of psychological illness. Some can't contend with community life. Others may wake up to the fact that they made a mistake."

"Some tend to think religious are super-human. We're not, we are very human," she smiled.

What brings a young woman into an order admittedly conservative, cautious when contemplating change and steeped in the desire to remain a close-knit community?

SISTER CAROL MARIE had been dating, going steady, when she decided at 17 that Christ would be the man in her life. "I decided to give myself to Him but therefore to everybody," she said. "I hoped it would be the right life for me and found it was. I found peacefulness, assurance."

Despite her happiness she is realistic in looking back over her 12 years as a sister. "Everyone is faced with the question, did I make the right choice? In our life we work with people, children, we see our families. Our woman's instinct says, I could have had that. But this is your life — you can help so many people in this life."

AT 14 SISTER KRISTIN became an aspirant and began living in the community. Now, six years later she is a scholastic preparing for her final vows and ready to teach full-time next year. She is one of the seven who have continued their vocation out of the original class of 20.

"I don't hold anything against those who left. I don't think anything in our life is easily accepted," she said.

"Everything has not been as I thought. I've been growing up, finding what I like. Anyone making a decision at 14 finds out things are different than they thought."

"My life is being a witness, being of service — personally not just through the community — being what I am."

SISTER ELLEN MARIE, formerly Mary Ellen Cherry of Hoffman Estates, was ready to join a convent at 13, but her parents persuaded her to complete high school, date and find out about the world before entering her vocation. She did so, but while in high school her desire to be a sister grew. She looked around for an order and joined Sisters of the Holy Family at 18.

"Being a religious is not the only way you can serve but it was the one for me," Sister Ellen Marie explained, adding that serving and giving were the things she most wanted from her life.

She adjusted to the community life, leaving home, going to college, the restrictions, the newness.

"I chose this order because of its family spirit and closeness. Their ideals match mine."

PROBABLY THE biggest change in the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth is their regard for the individual. When the order voted on changing to the new habit, those who preferred the old were allowed to keep it. The new rules don't hesitate to question or challenge.

"After talking to one of the new sisters the older ones will come to me and shake their heads. They have so many questions, they are so bold," they say," Sister Carol Marie said.

To this order change has been gradual and slow. Will it continue?

"Yes," Sister Carol Marie said with a wide smile. "Without change there cannot be growth. If we're supposed to be working for the church, the needs of the church change and we must also."

Tomorrow: The Liberal Religious

IN SOME RESPECT the Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth haven't changed at all. Their day remains structured and time is allotted for each sister to participate in prayer, meditation and mass.

OUR FOUNDER WORE barbed belts under her habit and stones in her shoes as penance," explained Sister Carol Marie of the relics kept in the Chapel Gallery of the convent. "She found out all it did was made her grouchy so she stopped," she laughed.

ALL SISTERS ARE equal now and have been for the past 10 years. There was formerly two classes of sisters, the domestics and the choir. A move by the Catholic Church to bring more human rights to the convent changed the class practice.

A FEW HOURS EACH day are set aside for sharing and enjoying community life. Sister Carol Marie leads novice Sister, Ellen Marie, center and other members of the order in a sing-a-long. Every one in the convent receives music instruction as part of her education and the sisters play together as an orchestra in performances for friends.
